U. S. Washes Hands of GSI Dispute Over Wages

Union's Failure To Comply With Anti-Red Oath Ends Peace Effort

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

A second agency of the Federal Government yesterday withdrew from the GSI dispute.

The agency is the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service which had made an earlier effort to avert the strike of 1500 workers in 42 Government cafeterias. The strike began Monday morning.

Cyrus S. Ching, mediation service director, announced a general policy that the service would not intervene where an employer is refusing to meet with a union because of the failure of union officers to sign the non-Communist oath required by the Taft-Hartley law.

NLRB Previously Stepped Out

The National Labor Relations Board had previously stepped out of the dispute by refusing to hold a collective bargaining election to determine whether the union represented the workers. NLRB said is had no authority to settle this question because of the union's failure to comply with the Taft-Hartley law. NLRB assistance had been requested by the employers, Government Services, Inc.

The union asked a 15 cents an hour increase in a proposed new contract in November, but negotiations never got under way after GSI demanded filing of the non-Communist affidavits. The old contract expired at the end of 1947. GSI, on its own, raised wages 6½ cents an hour for non-striking employes.

The union, the CIO United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Local 471, is apparently left without appeal to any Government agency set up to adjust labor disputes.

GSI was able to offer improved service yesterday in the 40 cafeterias operating. J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel director, attributed the improvement—approaching normal service in some instance—to the employment of more than 500 substitute workers. Including supervisory workers and others who stayed on the job, the GSI work force yesterday totalled 1000, Niehuss claimed.

Two Cafeterias Closed

Two cafeterias, those at the Supreme Court and Labor Department, closed Monday and yesterday at the request of the agencies.

An estimated 80,000 Federal workers buy their lunches in the 42 cafeterias.

The union, an affiliate of the CIO United Public Workers, insisted that 95 per cent of GSI employes are on strike, according to Richard A. Bancroft, union president.

"We are still holding those lines—as solidly as ever," Bancroft declared.

In another new development yesterday, Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works administrator, turned down for the present a request from Undersecretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman that the Interior cafeteria be closed down.

Improved Service Evident

Fleming said he had taken the action because other agencies besides the Interior Department were served at the cafeteria. He told Chapman he was "watching" the situation, however.

Fleming ordered the closing of the Interior cafeteria on a similar request last year. Last night, he explained that he "hadn't thought" about the other agencies last year.

Chapman, who signed the request as Acting Interior Secretary, said he would take up the matter with Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug this morning.

Improved service was most evident yesterday at Interior and Commerce. Niehuss promised near-normal service at those and at the Postoffice cafeteria today.

Niehuss made it clear last night that the new workers GSI has

Dewey Lays Living Costs To Truman

Attacks Dropping Of Price Controls As 'Fatal Action'

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 7 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey blamed President Truman today for the "exorbitant" cost of living, and submitted to the New York Legislature a program to check inflation in the State, highlighted by a pledge of no new taxes.

Dollar devaluation, the increase in debt, and other policies of President Roosevelt in the 1930s also contributed "to the perilous situation in which our country finds itself," Dewey asserted.

"Such a situation as we have today in the Nation," the Governor insisted, "could have come about only as the cumulative result of a history of errors over many years."

"Clearly," Dewey said, "the situation cries out for the most careful husbanding of our resources."

He also proposed continuation of the State's standby rent control law, and the commercial rent laws, for one year.

Dewey, an undeclared candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said "the danger of runaway price inflation resulting from wartime pressures, was clear at the end of hostilities."

"However, instead of controls being maintained until peacetime production could get started," he said, "the entire structure of wartime inflation control was undermined by Executive order on October 30, 1945, relaxing wage controls.

"In greater production lies the direct answer to the shortages of the things that are at the seat of national and world inflation," the Governor told the Republican-controlled Legislature.

To help combat inflation, Dewey said, "here are some of the things the State government has done and proposes to do in the coming year:

"1. We have kept expense down to the limit possible without impairing essential services to our people.

"2. We have restrained expenditures wherever possible on every kind of public works, particularly highways and parkways, because of the high costs and the directly inflationary effect of such governmental expenditures.

"3. We have continued our policies in every direction to increase the productivity of our State and enterprise within it."

Investigation Ordered

Police Officer Suspended, Prisoner-Accuser Goes Free

A policeman's charge of disorderly conduct against Peter J. Stathis was dismissed in Municipal Court yesterday, and the arresting officer later was suspended pending full investigation.

Both actions were victories for Stathis, 25, an unemployed tile-setter and railroad worker, of 3228 Park pl. nw. He had complained he was unjustly arrested and assaulted by Police Pvt. Jerome J. Jones, Saturday night, in an argument over near-midnight trash removal.

"I see no occasion for either the arrest or the subsequent use of force," declared Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey, after lengthy hearing of both sides of the case.

"To have a very simple affair like this blow up is out of all proportion to the officer's mission and authority," said Judge Casey.

Principals in the case were then taken to the Tenth Precinct Station House at the request of Capt. Walter Storm, precinct commanding officer. And even before completion of formal taking of statements for police investigation, Captain Storm notified Private Jones he was suspended from the force.

Guilty Plea Entered Here By Lamarre

'Dummy' President Of Meyers Firm Admits Perjury

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Bleriot H. Lamarre, "dummy" president of the war contracts firm founded by Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, entered a guilty plea to three charges of perjury in District Court yesterday.

Meyers, retired AAF procurement officer, faces arraignment before Judge David A. Pine here today on charges of perjury and inducing Lamarre to commit perjury before the Senate War Investigating Committee.

In his guilty plea, Lamarre admitted he had lied under oath to the Senate Committee investigating Meyers' wartime activities to help the general conceal his harvest of profits and luxuries from the Aviation Electric Company of Dayton, Ohio.

Changed Testimony

Lamarre had made the same admission to the Senate group on October 9, and voluntarily changed his testimony and told what he said was the real story of the general's activities in connection with Aviation Electric.

At the request of Lamarre's attorney, Robert C. Knee of Dayton, Ohio, Judge Pine deferred sentence until a report can be obtained from the probation officer.

District Attorney George Morris Fay and Assistant District Attorney Edward Molenof concurred in a request from Knee that Lamarre be released under the same $1000 bond originally put up when Lamarre and Meyers were indicted here December 19.

The move left little doubt that Lamarre would return as star witness against Meyers when the deputy AAF procurement chief comes up for trial.

A First Offense

Before agreeing to the request, Judge Pine ascertained that Lamarre had never previously been in difficulty with the law.

Maximum sentence under the District law for perjury is 10 years. The minimum sentence is two years, but sentence can be suspended, and the defendent put on probation if there have been no previous criminal convictions.

Lamarre returned last night to his gasoline-pumping job at a Dayton filling station.

Because of Lamarre's lack of funds, Judge Pine appointed Donald Weed, a local attorney, to be associated with Knee in Lamarre's defense, since the Ohio attorney is not a member of the bar here.

Knee, who said he is an old friend of Lamarre's, told reporters he is serving without fee and even paid his own train fare to Washington.

Steps Taken For Peace in School Strike

Approval Is Given Plan for Fulltime Junior High Courses At Browne Annexes

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

School officials yesterday took two steps to end the parent-inspired strike of students at the Negro Browne Junior High School:

1. The Board of Education's committee on buildings and grounds approved a plan, effective February 1, that will provide fulltime junior high school instruction at Blow and Webb annexes.

2. Attendance officers began a door-to-door visit to the homes of parents who have kept their children out of school since December 3, a step in enforcing the truany laws.

At the same time, the committee rejected demands by the parents that either the white Eliot Junior High School or the white Eastern High School be turned over to use by Negro children or that students now assigned to Blow and Webb for a portion of their schooling each day be returned to part-time programs at Browne.

Made Additional Annex

The committee also approved the use of portions of the Negro Merritt Elementary School, Hayes and Lowrie sts. ne., as an additional annex to Browne to place all Browne students on a full instruction program.

The committee also yesterday accepted from the construction firm the Lucy Diggs Slowe Elementary School for Negroes after visiting the new building at 14th and Jackson sts. ne. One hundred and forty-three children now attending classes in two portables and an old house adjoining the new building will move into the $214,248 structure this week.

The strike at Browne and the two annex buildings began two days after Blow and Webb, formerly used as white elementary schools, were transferred to Negro students to relieve part-time instruction at Browne.

Under the present plan 278 students are assigned to Browne part time in the morning and 397 students part time in the afternoon.

Complain About Distances

An additional 553 students attend Blow and Webb annexes in the morning for academic subjects and Browne in the afternoon for shops, laboratories, gym work and assemblies. Another group of 579 students attends Browne in the morning and Webb and Blow in the afternoon.

Parents removed their children from school complaining about the long distances the children were forced to travel between classes.

Blow at 19th st. and Benning rd. ne., is nine blocks from the main Browne building, near 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., and Webb at 15th and Rosedale sts. ne. is 15 blocks away.

The plan approved by the committee yesterday would do away

Greek Reds Pick Capital Near Border

Markos Is Reported Establishing Rule For His Separate State in Village

Athens, Jan. 6 (AP).—A Greek war correspondent reported today that Markos Vafiiades had established a temporary capital for a separate Greek Communist state in an isolated village in the heart of the Grammos Mountains only 10 miles from the Albanian border.

Vasso Tsimberados, correspondent for the conservative Athens newspaper Embros, said villagers fleeing from the Grammos Mountains told him the capital was at Lykorrahki, 17 miles northeast of Konitsa.

The villagers told Tsimberados that several well-dressed civilians, who declared they were ministers in the Markos government, had been seen in Lykorrakhi.

Heavily Defended

The village is heavily defended by a large force of guerillas and batteries of 20-mm. antiaircraft guns, Tsimberados was told.

Meanwhile, John Howard, deputy chief for the American aid mission in Greece, said funds would be reallocated to cover increased military expenses, following approval of a boost in the Greek army from 120,000 to 132,000 men, and in the national guard from 20,000 to 50,000 men.

Howard said cutbacks are possible in some sections of the aid program, but no curtailment on imports of essential commodities. He estimated cost of the expansion of the armed forces at about 15 million dollars. The United States Congress allotted 300 million dollars for aid to Greece.

Konitsa Hard Hit

Tsimberados said Konitsa suffered heavily from artillery and mortar fire during its siege. The northwestern section of the town, into which the guerillas succeeded in driving a wedge, was virtually destroyed before they were driven out.

Other press dispatches said the guerillas had been driven from the heights around Bourozani Bridge, 11 miles west of Konitsa. Greek army troops were moving across the Aoos River to join an offensive aimed at expanding the perimeter around Konitsa, and cutting off rebels trying to withdraw northeastward toward the Grammos Mountains.

Post Holds Government Girl Contest for Model Heroine

The Washington Post

ADVICE FROM EXPERTS—Bess McManus and Patricia Bamman, secretaries to Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.), tell Allen Saunders, author of the "Mary Worth" strip in The Washington Post, what they think of his preliminary outline of the forthcoming Government girl episode. The Washington Post's "Miss Government Girl" contest is to select model for heroine

Two hundred dollars in cash and national fame as a model will come to some Government girl through a "Miss Government Girl" contest sponsored by The Washington Post.

Purpose is to select a Government girl to serve as a model for the next heroine of the Mary Worth comic strip which appears daily in The Washington Post.

There will be a total of $300 in cash prizes, $200 to the winner, $50 to the runner-up, and ten additional prizes of $5 each.

Mary Worth heroines have been of all types. Followers of her comic strip will remember blond dancer Pixie, the bespectacled Brick, and business-like Elissa, whose career as a department store manager has been occupying Mary Worth's attention recently. Newest heroine of the series is Junior Jaxon, night club singer.

European Recovery, Inflation Control, Tax Cut Among Pressing Problems

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress came back to Washington yesterday in a fingers-crossed mood to face as dramatic a slate of issues as ever confronted members in an election year.

In drab opening ceremonies, that lacked even that new look, there was no hint of the coming struggle to enact a four-year European recovery program, more effective inflation controls, to cut or not to cut taxes.

The President will set the pace in a 5000-word, 40-minute State of the Union message personally delivered to a joint session of both Houses at 1:30 p. m. today.

Fireworks Start Tomorrow

Both houses ran swiftly through opening formalities, postponing all major business until after today's speech. Acting Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) told reporters "the lid's off" after that. Said Wherry, "The fireworks will start tomorrow."

A top-ranking Democrat, who asked not to be identified, replied: "If they want it rough, we are ready for them."

Both houses convened at noon. By 12:15 the Senate had completed a quick quorum call, notified the President and the House that it was organized for business, and recessed until 1 p. m. today.

Note of Portent

The opening prayer, by the Rev. Peter Marshall, Senate chaplain, struck the one note of portent:

"Our Father, Who art Lord of Heaven and of all the earth, Thou knowest the difficulties these men have to face and the grave decisions they must make. Have mercy upon them, for Jesus' sake, Amen."

Across the Capitol, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, House chaplain, led House members in the Lord's Prayer. The House adjourned at 2:34 p. m. after congratulating former Speaker Sam Rayburn on his birthday and hearing a series of tributes to recently deceased members.

Harmony on Surface

On the surface all was back-slapping harmony, but off the floor the first campaign broadsides were taking shape. Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), author of a bill to slash taxes $5,600,000,000, released this sample:

"Reports leaking from the White House bear out the prediction I've been making all the time—that if the President recommends a tax cut, it will be a political bill. The President evidently knows that corporations do not vote."

Knutson said he was referring to some published reports that the President might propose "cost of living" tax reductions for persons in the lower brackets, with the revenue loss offset by increased taxation of corporations.

The Marshall Plan, overshadowing all other issues, meanwhile was officially laid before the House.

Meat May Cost D. C. Consumer 7 to 8 Cents More a Pound

Senator Believes Producers Will Welcome Rationing

By The Associated Press

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said yesterday he thinks livestock producers "will welcome" a modified meat rationing system which he proposes in legislation he plans to introduce next week.

Flanders said he has noted complaints from producing areas that growers are opposed to any meat rationing plan, but he told reporters he thinks they will change their attitude when they understand it.

Senators Ives (R., N. Y.) and Murray (D., Mont.), meanwhile, indorsed Flanders' proposal that Congress act at once to set up meat rationing machinery on a standby basis.

It would become effective only when Congress passed a resolution, and Flanders said this should not be done "until the country is anxiously insistent for it."

The livestock producers, he said, are in a precarious position in the present market because "they can easily go broke" if, after buying young cattle at present price levels, the bottom drops out of the market.

"And the market is going to collapse when inflation blows up," he said, adding:

"The growers will welcome a steadying of demand and price at a level which will assure them a profit."

Flanders said he hoped to see Secretary of Agriculture Anderson later this week about details of a rationing plan being formulated in the department.

Senator Robertson (R., Wyo.) asserted, meanwhile, that rationing of meat would divert all choice cuts to the black market "for consumption by expense-account bureaucrats in swank restaurants where price is no object."

The Wyoming Senator added in a statement:

"Instead of insuring each housewife a fair share of the available meat, rationing would result in immediate reduction of supplies available to legitimate retailers because of black market operations and the inevitable tendency of livestock raisers to withhold cattle from market until such controls are removed."

Butter Quotation Takes New Drop on New York Exchange

Increased prices ranging from 1 to 10 cents a pound for most cuts of beef, lamb, veal and ham at the wholesale level were reported here yesterday.

The rise, which probably will not reach the general consumer for a day or two, will average an additional 7 or 8 cents a pound on the housewife's meat bill, one official said.

Other bad news for consumers yesterday was a price boost for radio tubes reported by three manufacturers, and a prediction of increased costs for household appliances.

Only bright spot on the market front was a 2¾-cent-a-pound drop in the price of butter on the New York wholesale exchange.

The butter decrease represented a total decrease of 4¾ cents in three days.

Grade AA butter was quoted at 88 cents a pound in New York, and Grade A, the most widely used variety, 87¼ cents. Grade B butter dropped 3 cents to 86 a pound. Normally there is a two to three-day lag between price changes here and New York quotations.

The average wholesale meat rise here was 3 cents a pound, said Joseph B. Danzansky, who represents the wholesale food division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

"This will probably be reflected by an average increase of 7 to 8 cents a pound at retail," he said.

"Wholesalers do not relish the thought," said Danzansky, "because it means more of an investment, and in turn, consumers' resistance, which means less of a return."

One restaurant operator yesterday said he paid 8 to 10 cents a pound more for some cuts of beef, and 5 to 8 cents a pound more for ham.

Wholesalers reported wide ranges of increases, scaled from 1 to 7 cents on various cuts and grades of meat. Part of this increase, they said, is normal because of an an-

Unpacks 9 Cases of Gin

Mihai Denies He Quit Throne For Love of Danish Princess

Lausanne, Switzerland, Jan 6 (U.P.).—Former King Mihai of Romania rested in his hotel suite today while aides unpacked a relatively small amount of royal baggage which included nine cases of gin.

He took time to issue a statement to the press denying he had abdicated his throne for love, that he brought with him refugees from Romania or that he had a personal fortune of one million dollars.

A crowd gathered to watch the unloading of two royal baggage cars, which contained three American automobiles, a jeep, a motorcycle and the gin. The royal party's personal luggage was contained in four big trunks and about 40 bags and suitcases.

Mihai reportedly told his sweetheart, Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, over the telephone yesterday to remain in Copenhagen until he was settled here.

He denied emphatically that he had abdicated for the love of Princess Anne.

Maj. Jacques Vergotti, Mihai's aide, said he and Mihai planned to go skiing.

Vergotti stressed that Mihai abdicated only his throne and not his title. He should be called, he said, "His majesty, the ex-king."

UAW to Demand And Win Pay Hike, Reuther Asserts

Detroit, Jan. 6 (AP).—The CIO United AutoWorkers Union will "demand and win" wage increases this year for its more than 800,000 members, President Walter Reuther said tonight.

Reuther announced the union's objective in broad terms, without stating a particular sum, after a "wage palicy" meeting of the UAW's top officers.

Already, however, several locals of the UAW in Michigan have demanded that the international union press for a 25-cent-an-hour increase.

U-E to Seek Hike

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The CIO United Electrical Workers Union announced tonight it would seek "substantial wage increases" from the General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric Corp and the electrical division of General Motors.

The decision to seek the increase in pay was made at a two-day conference of 300 U-E delegates representing nearly 300,000 workers.

Stassen to Appear 1st in Grain Probe

Pauley, Graham Also to Testify At Hearing Friday

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, will lead off a full-dress Senate inquiry into grain speculation by Government officials and employes Friday morning.

Following Stassen will be Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, and Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall.

In preparation for Friday's hearing the Senate Appropriations Investigating subcommittee, headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), called a high-ranking Justice Department official yesterday.

John F. Baecher, chief assistant to Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett, was summoned to report on investigations he made of market operations by Graham and other top-level Government officials.

Baecher Silent After Hearing

Before the hearing Baecher told newsmen he "presumed" he was called to discuss the inquiry the Justice Department's antitrust division, headed by Sonnett, has been conducting.

At the close of his testimony an hour later he refused to amplify that statement, declaring that he could not discuss the matters before the committee.

In announcing that no more secret hearings would be held until Stassen appears Friday, Ferguson said that Graham would be given a chance to "tell his side of the story" immediately after Stassen.

It was Stassen who last month first brought the name of Pauley into the rumpus over speculation by Government insiders, and who later charged that the trail of speculation led into the White House staff. It is believed that the latter remark was aimed at Graham.

Graham's brokers, Bache & Co., earlier in the day furnished the committee a complete record of the White House physician's commodity trading. Ferguson, who Monday had complained that Bache & Co. were withholding some records, reported yesterday the committee was satisfied with the new data.

Records Compared With Story

The records were compared, it was reported, with Graham's story of his dealings, in which he said he "lost his socks," Graham had stated he had left his account in the hands of his brokers, and did not know he had been speculating in wheat until Octboer 7, two days after President Truman had publicly denounced such trading as "just plain gambling."

Ferguson said Bache's accountant, Robert C. Donovan, was questioned privately about "a couple of entries" in Graham's account.

Before the committee heard Donovan it spent half an hour questioning William C. Brister, director of the food supply division of the State Department's Institute of Inter-American Affairs. Brister was listed in a State Department report as having admitted speculating in commodities during the last two years.

Williams Is New Pilot For Truman

Williams

Myers

A 41-year-old Arlington airman who hasn't had an accident in 15 years of Air Force and airline flying yesterday became President Truman's personal pilot.

Lieut. Col. Francis W. (Frenchy) Williams, a United States Air Force announcement said, replaces Lieut. Col. Henry T. (Hank) Myers—veteran skipper of the Sacred Cow and Independence, who flew two Presidents thousands of miles without mishap.

Myers is returning to American Airlines at his own request, the USAF said. He is a reservist who turned down a permanent commission and wants to get back to civil life, according to friends.

Star Athlete At College

The new presidential pilot is a native of Alameda, Calif. An all-star athlete in his college days at Santa Barbara State, Williams has been a hotel clerk, coach and teacher. He lives with his wife and 8-year-old daughter, Diana, at 248 North Park dr., Arlington Farms.

Williams has been chief pilot of the Air Transport Service for several months. He met Mr. Truman for the first time several days ago and tells reporters he has no politics.

"Hank" Myers, the soft-spoken Georgian who became one of the world's best-known pilots, has flown many of the world's great, including Winston Churchill, Secretary of State George C. Marshall, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and President Aleman of Mexico.

Truman Fond of Myers

American Airlines officials said Myers will be stationed in Fort Worth, Tex., and fly out of there as a captain pilot. He lived in that Texas city before entering the service and married a Fort Worth girl. Myers has 14,300 flying hours to his credit, 4500 of them as an Air Transport Command and presidential pilot.

President Truman is very fond of the veteran flier and aides say he regrets seeing him go.

Williams has 10,500 hours of flying. He entered the Air Forces as a flying cadet and won his wings in 1932. After three years as a bomber pilot he left the Army. He flew DC-3s as a commercial pilot for several years and was with ATC throughout the war.

After VJ-Day he went with American Airlines. Last September he accepted a permanent commission and returned to active duty.

Sales Tax Income Off in November

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Final tabulations today showed Maryland's 2 per cent sales tax brought in $2,245,791 in November.

This was $24,577 less then the October receipts, and Walter E. Kennedy, chief of the Comptroller's sales tax division, attributed the decline to an increase in the exemption from 9 to 14 cents, enacted by a special legislative session.

November receipts brought total income from the tax in the first five months of operation to $10,218,000. Governor Lane's administration estimated when the sales tax law was enacted that it would produce about $18,400,000 annually.

Kennedy predicted December receipts will set a new record despite the increased exemption.

Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) introduced the Administration's revised bill.

Eaton's measure made only the single change recommended by Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and approved by President Truman. This omitted the 17 billion dollars estimated over-all cost of the program. It authorized simply a $6,800,000,000 initial outlay for the first 15 months of the program, and continuing authority for the remaining three years. Congress would determine the balance in year-to-year appropriations.

Eaton said the Vandenberg-recommended change satisfied his single criticism of the Administration draft—that "you can't bind future Congresses by setting an over-all cost figure." Eaton's Foreign Affairs Committee will meet Thursday to arrange a schedule of hearings probably opening Monday in the House.

Vandenberg's Senate Foreign Relations Committee will open public hearings at 10 a. m. tomorrow, with Secretary of State George C. Marshall the first witness. The Senate President Pro Tem indicated he will not introduce Senate legislation until Marshall Plan hearings are completed.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), leading critic of the program, meanwhile said he did not think erasure of the 17-billion-dollar price tag will greatly affect Congress' attitude toward the program. Taft said he did not believe it would greatly diminish opposition.

With Capitol business at a standstill until the President speaks, Mr. Truman last night put the finishing touches on his message after going over the entire speech with his Cabinet.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said no changes of great consequence were made in the rough draft. He said advance hold-for-release copies will be made available to newsmen before 9 a. m. this morning.

The Cabinet conference on his speech lasted 90 minutes. Attending the meeting were Secretary of State Marshall, Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, National Defense Secretary James Forrestal and Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson.

Leaving the White House, Forrestal said: "I think it's a good message." Donaldson agreed: "It sounded good to me."

A reported asked Clark: "What about the 'soak the rich' recommendation?"

"I don't know anything about it," said Clark.

A second message on Friday, presenting the President's economic report, had been scheduled. At the request of congressional leaders, who plan a recess over the weekend, delivery of this was postponed until next Wednesday. Budget recommendations will be delivered on schedule in a third message next Monday.

In his State of the Union message today the President is expected to reemphasize his special session Marshal Plan appeal, call again for universal training, more adequate inflation controls and a wide range of other previously recommended measures, including expanded social security coverage and health insurance.

Reports that the President in addition would ask low income tax relief, with increased corporation taxes as an offset, were without confirmation. There have been reliable indications for some time, however. that the President, though opposed to a big general tax slash, would approve increased exemptions for individuals and split income privileges for married couples when the fiscal situation permits.

The Administration's tax position will be developed both in today's message and when Treasury Secretary Snyder appears before the House Ways and Means Committee on the Knutson bill January 16. Snyder was originally invited to testify January 13 but the Treasury yesterday requested the later date

Pinball Fee Collection Held Up in Baltimore

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—A temporary injunction stopped the City of Baltimore from collecting license fees on pinball, claw and music machines today, as the result of a complaint that the licensing ordinance is "ambiguous."

Circuit Court Judge John T. Tucker ordered suspension of collections pending court clarification of the law, after Jacham Enterprises, Inc., contended that the new ruling, passing last December 17 is "susceptible to different interpretations" and that the city's right to impose the fees was questionable.

Truman Joins Birthday Fete For Rayburn

President Truman, House Democrats and Republicans all paid tribute yesterday to House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn on his sixty-sixth birthday.

The Chief Executive unexpectedly walked in on a little birthday luncheon some of the veteran Texan's old friends were giving him at the Capitol.

Only a few minutes earlier, Rayburn, with tears welling in his eyes, had listened to the praise of his colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

He received a standing ovation from the entire membership of the House in which he has served 35 years.

Halleck Sparks Celebration

It was House Republican Leader Charles Halleck of Indiana who sparked the surprise celebration.

Halleck emphasized Rayburn's integrity and "fine sense of sportsmanship."

The Texan appeared to be getting younger every day, Halleck told the House, and added:

"Of course I don't want him to be too young and vigorous because I have trouble enough with him now."

Speaking for the Democrats, Representatives Eugene E. Cox of Georgia called Rayburn "genuine . . . strong . . . wise and good."

No one who has ever served in Congress has more completely won the love and confidence of his colleagues than Rayburn, Cox declared.

Bolton Adds Praise

Representative Frances Bolton (R., Ohio) took the floor to tell the House that Rayburn is a statesman, "a man of vision who recognizes the great responsibilities of this Nation."

Rayburn was already sitting down at a luncheon ready to take his first mouthful of broiled salmon steak when President Truman, who had arrived very quietly, appeared for his surprise visit.

Laughing at Rayburn's start of amazement, Mr. Truman stepped into the same room where as vice-president he first got the fateful news he must assume the responsibilities of the Presidency.

The luncheon was given by Jack Cowart, a long-time friend of Rayburn's from Texas and now employe relations officer of the Agriculture Department's Production and Marketing Administration.

Others Present

United States Court of Claims Judge Marvin Jones, former Amarillo, Tex., Congressman, and Attorney General Tom C. Clark, also of Texas, were present.

Other guests included Representatives Eugene Worley and Wright Patman, both Texas Democrats; Jesse Gilmer, former El Paso resident, who now heads Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration; Ralph S. Trigg, deputy administrator of the same branch; L. C. Holm, assistant administrator; R. Douglas Smith, personnel director; Martin J. Hudtloff, comptroller, and Robert W. Herder, budget and management branch.

James E. Barnes, a retired businessman and fishing companion of Rayburn, and James N. Barnes, a former White House administrative assistant, completed the list.

The Gallup Poll

Top Limit of 50% of Income For Taxes Favored by Voters

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 6.—With tax reform scheduled for early consideration in the new Congress, there is one change which has considerable popular support.

That is to put a limit of 50 per cent on the proportion of a man's income the Government can take in income taxes.

Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential candidate, suggested such a limit some time ago. Incomes in the higher brackets are taxed as much as 86 per cent.

The issue was put before the voters in a survey by the Institute as follows:

Do you think an income tax limit shouldbe placed on large incomes so that no one would pay more than half of his income in Federal income tax?

The vote:

Favor limit	50%
Opposed	38
No opinion	12

Of those expressing an opinion, the results are 57 per cent in favor of the limit, 43 per cent opposed.

It is to be expected that people who pay the most taxes would be most in favor of the 50 per cent limitation. The poll results show that to be true. When people were asked how much money they have to pay annually in income taxes, those paying more than $500 a year are, more in favor of the limitation than any other group, their vote being 58 per cent in favor, 36 per cent opposed and 6 per cent without opinions.

But the interesting thing is that even among people who pay very small annual sums in income taxes—below $150 a year—there is sentiment in favor of the limitation on taxing of the well-to-do. This bears out findings in other years that Americans of moderate means are not out to "soak the rich."

In today's study, families taxed less than $50 a year show a substantial margin in favor of the limitation, while those paying between $50 and $150 are also in favor of it.

Another factor, they said, is bad weather and transportation delays, which boosts costs.

Highest in Mid-December

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, in reporting final food price figures for mid-December, said yesterday that preliminary estimates indicate an all-time high for food prices in mid-December.

The increased prices for radio receiving tubes, disclosed yesterday by the Associated Press, were reported by General Electric Co., National Union Radio Corp. and Hytron Radio & Electronics Corp. Tube increases were from 10 to 12 per cent, with some rises already in effect.

While one manufacturer of household appliances was quoted in Chicago yesterday as saying the industry is making a "desperate effort" to hold the price line, four others predicted it would be unsuccessful.

British Labor Unions Purge Leftist Leaders

London, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Britain's labor unions, with memberships totaling seven million developed a snowballing anti-Communist drive today as the Labor Government prepared to map a sweeping campaign at a cabinet meeting Thursday against Russian expansionism in Europe.

Two leftist union leaders, both Communist-supported, have been defeated for union office in the last few days. A purge of the executive of a third union is believed imminent.

The abinet is to take up Thursday a blueprint for a completely revised foreign policy as the result of the break-up in failure of the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Two decisions of importance may be taken soon as the result of this meeting:

1. The reinforcement of the 5000 British troops still in Greece to aid joint United States-British support of the Greek government against the Communist guerillas in the north.

2. A strong formal statement to Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria warning of the danger of any diplomatic recognition of the Communist "government" set up by the guerillas.

The National Union of Mine Workers may have a showdown on the Communist issue at a meeting of its national executive Thursday when Scottish members are expected to demand a vote of confidence in Communist General Secretary Arthur Horner.

Nimitz Urges Use Of Navy to Fight

Sponge Diver Wins Blessing

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

GREEK RITUAL—Mike Koulis, 18-year-old Greek sponge diver, receives the blessing of Bishop Germanos of the Greek Orthodox Church, after recovering the crucifix in annual Epiphany Day ceremonies at Tarpon Spring, Fla. The feast day, 12 days after Christmas, commemorates Christ's manifestation to the gentiles, particularly in the visit of the Magi to Bethlehem

Criticizes 'Faulty Tendency' Toward Nonoffensive Role

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz yesterday criticized "a faulty tendency" in defense planning "to give no major offensive role to the Navy."

In a valedictory report, the former chief of naval operations declared the United States should "exploit, not neglect" our greatest element of military strength control of the seas.

So "absolute" is America's domination of the world's oceans, said Nimitz, that we are able to maintain powerful floating air bases offshore anywhere on the globe. From these, he says, we can exert "unique pressure" against an enemy and best destroy his vital inland centers in event of war.

Navy of the Future

"The Navy of the future," declared Nimitz, "will be capable of launching missiles from surface vessels and submarines, and of delivering atomic bombs from carrier-based planes."

Naval officials pointed to the current role of the United States Mediterranean task force as a peace-time application of the war strategy urged by Admiral Nimitz.

That unit—made up of an aircraft carrier, cruisers, destroyers, tankers, repair ships and supply craft—is based on American East Coast ports. Strengthened in event of trouble, they said, it could operate as a floating air base in the way Nimitz advocates—and as was done in the Pacific during the war.

Nimitz's farewell counsel stressed that American interest in controlling the seas rests on two points: the "ass:urance of our national security" and "the creation and perpetuation of that balance and stability among nations which will insure to each the right of self-determination under the framework of the United Nations."

Urging "balanced" defense forces, the Admiral declared that the fact the United States now has complete control of the seas is being used as an argument that the Navy be relegated to a supporting role.

"Defensively," he stated in refutation, "the Navy is still the first line the enemy must hurdle either in the air or on the sea in approaching our coasts across any ocean.

"The earliest warning of enemy air attack against our vital centers should be provided by naval air, surface and submarine radar pickets deployed in the vast ocean spaces which surround the continent. This is part of the radar screen which should surround the continental United States and its possessions."

First enemy bombers shot down in an attack on the United States well may be destroyed by Navy carrier fighters, he said. Protection of our cities against missille-launching submarines can best be handled by "hunter-killer" groups of carriers, new type carriers and naval land-based planes.

Russian Yule Rites Held at D. C. Church

Christmas Eve and the Epiphany Feast Day were both celebrated here yesterday.

Some Eastern Orthodox churches observe Christmas by the Julian calendar during Epiphany, which commemorates the manifestation of Christ's light in a darkened world.

At St. Nicholas' Russian Orthodox Church, 1768 Church st. nw., the Rev. John Scotty dipped a brush in olive oil, made a cross-sign on worshipers' foreheads, symbolizing that God's goodwill abides in the person.

The tiny chapel of St. Nicholas Church was adorned with Christmas foliage, while candles flickered on the altar. The Most Rev. Theophilus, Metropolitan of the Russian Orthodox Church of North America, designated Father Scotty of New York City to conduct the service in place of the Rev. Paul Lutov, the pastor, now visiting Europe. A Christmas liturgy will be conducted today at 11 a. m. at St. Nicholas' Church.

Meanwhile, Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw., celebrated Epiphany Day—it's patronymic festival—at a "Feast of Lights" service. The church was founded on Epiphany Day in 1842. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector, conducted last night's rites, assisted by the Rev. Leonard Edmonds, director of the Federation of Churches' social welfare department; the Rev. J. Brooke Mosley, director of the Washington diocesan department of social relations; the Rev. Benjamin Axleroad, missionary from Brazil; the Rev. Hunter M. Lewis, rector of the La Plata (Md.) Episcopal Church, and the Rev. F. Richard Williams, assistant rector of Epiphany Church.

Bishop Angus Dun of the Washington Diocese installed three cathedral canons at a service at the Washington Cathedral. They were the Revs. George J. Cleaveland, canon librarian; the Rev. Crawford William Brown, canon precentor, and the Rev. George Gardner Monks.

The Gospel for the Feast of the Epiphany was read at Catholic masses.

N. J. Nickel Beer Plan Balked by ABC Officials

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6 (AP).—Erwin B. Hock, Alcoholic Beverage Control commissioner, today put thumbs down on a New Jersey tavern owner's plan to bring back the 5-cent beer.

Hock said the plan required the tavern's patrons to post a weekly fee of $1.50 before they would be entitled to buy the 5-cent beer. Hock added that the patrons would have to buy 30 glasses of beer each "just to break even."

He said the program was not conducive to wise liquor control.

Bank of Virginia Meets Opposition On Norfolk Branch

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—A hearing on the Bank of Virginia's application to open a new branch in Norfolk developed into a hot-tempered row before the State Corporation Commission today, as a Portsmouth banker denounced the Bank of Virginia for "misleading" advertising and "unfair competition."

The battle between litigants got so noisy at one stage that Judge L. McCarthy Downs ordered counsel summarily to "break it up."

Old-timers at the commission said they could not remember a case, at least within recent years, where so much animosity has been displayed at a public hearing. The fight concerns the Bank of Virginia's effort to open a new branch at Twenty-First and Granby sts. in Norfolk. Banks of Norfolk and Portsmouth have united in opposition to the proposal.

County Building To Be Remodeled

The Montgomery commissioners, meeting yesterday, approved plans for remodeling the Bethesda County Building. A cost-plus-fixed-fee contract for the job was approved.

Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter of the Bethesda district, estimated cost of the project at approximately $35,000. He said work will begin immediately and completion is expected in about three months.

A move by Commission President Brooke Johns during a closed session of the commission to abolish the post of police commissioner held by Sauter failed for lack of support. Johns said he had moved that the post be abolished but that he did not get a second to his motion.

Woolworth Sales Up

F. W. Woolworth reported sales of $593,354,652 for 1947, an increase of 7.4 per cent over the $552,353,423 in 1946. December sales totaled $101,671,475, compared with $86,090,475 in the previous December, an increase of 18.1 per cent.

Greek Army To Get Funds

national guard by 30,000 men to a total of 50,000, and of the Greek Army by 12,000 men to a total of 132,000.

This is the second diversion of American funds from the 150 million dollars originally earmarked for economic recovery in Greece. Previously nine million had been switched to military uses, thus bringing the total diversion to 24 million dollars.

To Permit Offensive

The present increases, the State Department explained, "will free the Greek national army from static defense tasks for mobile operations against the guerillas." The announcement made it clear that the national guard, or reservists, would be asked to perform the "static" tasks which have pinned down much of the regular army in recent months.

It indicated that American authorities in Greece and the Greek government were determined to launch bolder offensive operations to clear the guerillas, if possible, from Greek soil.

As long as the guerillas have so little Greek territory in their possession, and not even a town they can call their capital, it is felt here that there is little immediate danger of their formal recognition as government by the Communist neighboring countries to the north or by Soviet Russia.

Regarded As Urgent

Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett has already warned publicly that any such recognition of the guerillas would have "serious implications." Further military defeats of the guerillas, it is felt here, will do more than anything else to stave off such recognition and to prevent a genuinely serious emergency from arising.

The army and national guard increases, according to the State Department, "have been regarded as a matter of urgency by the Greek government." They were approved by Dwight P. Griswold, American head of the American mission in Greece, only after studies by the American military mission there "had shown such aid was essential if the Greek government was effectively to combat the guerilla forces, thus maintaining Greece's independence and national integrity."

15 Die in Crash Of French Plane

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP).—Fifteen persons, including three Americans, died tonight when a Paris-bound Air France DC-4 airliner from Brussels crashed and burned while coming in for a landing at Le Bourget Field.

Only one person—a Polish woman passenger—of the 11 passengers and 5 crew members survived.

Air France said the Americans' surnames were Burrel, Sibre and Power. Their first names and home towns were not available immediately.

Government Rebukes Hagana For Hotel Blast 'Murders'

Jerusalem, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Palestine government today sharply rebuked Hagana, the Jewish defense army, for the "dastardly and wholesale murder of innocent people" in the blasting of the Semiramis Hotel.

The government announced it was "carefully considering the situation created by the action of Hagana in publicly claiming credit" for yesterday's blasting that killed 19 Arabs and the acting consul for the Spanish government.

Woman Taken from Ruins

This morning rescue workers liberated a 28-year-old Arab woman who had been imprisoner in the ruins of the hotel for 34 hours beside the body of her 4-year-old son.

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency executive, was summoned by High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham. An official statement said "matters concerning the security situation were discussed."

Scattered violence during the day raised to 597 the unofficial count of persons slain in the Holy Land since the United Nations partition decision.

Deaths in Palestine today included those of a 9-year-old Arab boy, who police said was felled by Jewish snipers, and a British constable shot to death in all-Arab Jaffa.

Briton Killed At Acre

A British officer was shot and killed by Arabs at Acre in northern Palestine while driving through an Arab road block, an official statement said.

A Jewish source said British military and police armored cars carried food supplies to 1500 Jews beseiged inside the old walled city of Jerusalem. The supplies were transferred from Jewish trucks to armored cars on a quiet street near the old city, while gunfire echoed from sniper's duels between the Jews and numerically superior Arab riflemen.

Italian Police Rout Defiant Partisan Mob

Rome, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Five hundred police today broke up a secret meeting of partisans at Bisceglie, 25 miles north of Bari, and searched the area for arms and ammunition the leftists had boasted were hidden there.

The meeting was held in defiance of a police order forbidding it, after the partisans announced they planned an "armed demonstration" by 2000 members of the Garibaldi Brigade.

Riding in jeeps, with nightsticks swinging, police yesterday broke up a demonstration of 1000 soldiers in Bologna. They were protesting the government's postponement of discharge of men drafted in the class of 1926.

Communist-directed unrest in the labor field continued as 6000 farm workers demonstrated at Venice yesterday. Police scattered the crowd with tear gas.

At Savona, unemployed workers occupied city hall and blocked the main street for two hours. At Fano, during a general strike, 2500 workers smashed windows of buildings.

Meanwhile, Francesco Nitti, 79-year old former premier, today announced formation of a new contender in the political arena, "the National Bloc," composed of Liberals, members of the Common Man Party, small rightist groups and independents.

France Plans Foreign Trade Franc Soon

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP).—A highly placed government official said tonight France will issue a new franc within the next two weeks in an effort to revive this country's foreign trade.

The plan was seen as part of Premier Robert Schuman's campaign to import as much foodstuffs as possible in an effort to break the black market and force food prices down.

This will require a large amount of foreign currency, which can be obtained only by stimulating French exports.

U. S. 'More Friendly'

The official said the French government had received assurance from Washington that the American attitude toward the new franc was "more friendly" following the action of the National Assembly last night in approving a tax bill aimed at mopping up excess purchasing power.

French financial circles said negotiations to permit issuance of a devalued "export franc" had already begun in Washington between officials of the International Monetary Fund and the permanent French representative to the fund, Jean de Largentaye.

The official explained that for import purposes and within France the old rate of 119 francs to the dollar will be maintained. The "export franc" is expected to be set at about 240 to a dollar and would only affect French exporters and foreign importers and tourists.

Session Is Recessed

Meanwhile, the French Parliament wound up its extraordinary session and recessed until January 13. In addition to passing the tax bill the Parliament approved a widespread fiscal-reform measure, agreed to elimination of 150,000 civil servants from the government payroll, approved increases in prices of some industrial goods and basic wages, and voted to carry over into 1948 the government's 1947 budget after stringent cuts had been made in it.

Blum Hits Both U. S., Soviet

Paris, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Veteran Socialist Leader Leon Blum suggested today that Britain and France lead a "third force of the world" which would stand between the United States and Russia.

Blum, premier before and after the war, said this "third force" could fight both American capitalism's "expansion and inhumanity" and Russian communism's "imperialism and extinction of civil rights."

Writing in his newspaper, the Socialist organ "Le Populaire," Blum suggested the third force could be substituted for the United Nations in bringing about a reconciliation between Russia and the United States.

The United Nations, he said, "has allowed this antagonism to reduce it to paralysis."

Blum said the third force could work internationally just as the present moderate French government was standing between the Communists and the Rightist forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

"Between the United States, champion of individual liberty and rights of man, but where capitalist economy conserves all its integrity and all its inhuman rigor, and the Soviet Union, which has destroyed capitalist private property but eliminated all private liberties, civil and social, there is room for nations which want at the same time personal liberty and collective economy, democracy and social justice," he wrote.

Tojo Blames War On U. S. 'Blindness'

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Former Premier Hideki Tojo, testifying before the International War Crimes Tribunal, declared today the Pacific war resulted from "the United States' failure to recognize changed conditions in the Orient."

Chief War Crimes Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan asked during formal cross-examination whether Tojo could identify a note sent him by Secretary of State Cordell Hull November 26, 1941—the "ultimatum" note refusing to countenance Jap conquests.

"I shall never forget it as long as I live," Tojo said.

"The whole misunderstanding," he went on, "arose from the United States failure to recognize changed conditions in the Orient since the Nine-Power Pact of 1922."

U. N. Plea for Kashmir Truce Made to Pakistan and India

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (AP).—Fernand van Langenhove of Belgium, president of the Security Council for this month, appealed urgently today to Pakistan and India from any act which would aggravate their dispute over Kashmir, princely state in northern India.

Van Langenhove, backed by the Council, decided that debate on the inter-dominion dispute would begin Monday or Tuesday, or not later than January 15. The delay was granted to Pakistan so Foreign Minister Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan could reach Lake Success.

P. P. Pillai of India, agreed, but told the delegates the case was urgent. He read a report he had just received saying 4000 raiders attacked Indian positions on Indian soil.

(A New Delhi dispatch said about 4000 invading tribesmen made their "first daylight attacks" of the Kashmir state campaign on Indian army positions near Naushehra, but that Indian troops beat them back.)

Pillai said India also is sending a special representative.

M. A. Hasan Ispahani, Pakistan Ambassador to the United States, told the delegates that his Foreign Minister would speak on the Kashmir case "and other matters." Observers speculated this meant Pakistan might bring up other problems growing out of the partition troubles between Moslem Pakistan and Hindu India.

Bill Seeks to Forgive Finland Debt to U. S.

By The Associated Press

A bill to release Finland from further payments on its debt to the United States was introduced by Representative Plumley (R., Va.), in the House yesterday.

"Her payment consistently and consecutively of every cent she owed us, as it came due, deserves positive recognition by a full and complete discharge of all liability," Plumley said.

Finland still owes this country $8,129,970 from World War I.

21 Nazi Government Chiefs Go on Trial for War Crimes

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP). A United States War Crimes Court began trial today of 21 former top Nazi civil servants, accused of having transferred "the plans and ideologies of the Third Reich into action."

"Without their administration," Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, chief prosecutor, told the court, "and without the directives and orders which they prepared, no Hitler, no Goering, could have planned and waged aggressive war, no Himmler could have wiped out six million Jews."

Those in the dock included eight former Nazi Foreign Office executives, headed by Baron Ernst von Wiezsaecker, who was No. 2 man under Joaquim von Ribbentrop and formerly ambassador to the Vatican.

Among the others being tried are Otto Meissner, secretary of state under Presidents Friederich Ebert, Paul von Hindenberg and Hitler; Otto Dietrich, press control chief under Goebbels; Richard Darre, who was agriculture chief, and Paul Koerner, Goering's deputy.

Taylor accused the "bureaucrats" of hatching the "final solution of the Jewish problem" early in 1942. He said he could prove that they held a cold-blooded session in which the outright murder of all 11 million European Jews was decided. He added that Heinrich Himmler's SS carried out the plan.

(Another United States Military Court was told here today that the Krupp steel combine arranged to have its royalties from the General Electric Corp. collected by a Swiss go-between firm long before the United States entered World War II.

(The prosecution in the trial of Alfred Krugg and his subordinates on war crimes charged said the object was to prevent American confiscation.)

4000 Reds Slain, Says Peiping Press

Hundred Thousand Reported Massing North of Mukden for Possible Drive

Peiping, Jan. 6 (AP).—Press dispatches asserted today 4000 Communists had been slain north of Mukden on a front where 100,000 Reds were reported massing for a possible new onslaught.

One renewed attack by the Communists, stalled momentarily in their winter offensive, already is rolling up against one of Mukden's outposts, Sinlitun, 70 miles to the west.

By press accounts there were signs other Communist troops were regrouping either for an assault on Szepingkai, midway between Mukden and the Manchurian capital of Changchun, or on Changchun itself.

[The United Press quoted government military sources in Shanghai on stabs by Communists bands into the Hunan Province "rice bowl," while large-scale fighting was waged on the north banks of the Yangtze River, west of Hankow.

[Hunan Gov. Wang Tung-yuan sent an urgent appeal to Nanking for reinforcements, the United Press said, as the sudden thrust from the west threatened Changsha, the Hunan capital. Editor's note.]

Truman Asks U. S. to Back 'Dimes' Drive

Americans were urged yesterday by President Truman to join in supporting the 1948 March of Dimes campaign to fight infantile paralysis. The campaign will run from January 15 to 30. Its goal is 30 million dollars.

In a letter to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Mr. Truman announced he would broadcast a radio appeal the night of January 30 in connection with the drive.

In his letter, Mr. Truman said the annual March of Dimes campaign "is our greatest assurance that this struggle will go forward unremittingly until polio is driven forever from the environment of man."

The President said that "the fight against polio is far from won and only through the March of Dimes can we supply the sinews of war to carry it through to the finish."

"I am sure," wrote Mr. Truman, "few people realize the staggering costs involved in this struggle—not only in the fields of research and education, but also in providing long-range treatment for thousands of victims of the disease in keeping with the principles set forth by Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Two Chapters Urge Paring of Red Cross Goal

The American Red Cross' intention to raise 75 million dollars during its 1948 campaign has run into some opposition, but Red Cross officials insist the opposition does not constitute a "revolt".

Two chapters of the Red Cross, one in Birmingham, Ala., and one in El Paso, Tex., have asked that the quota—15 million dollars more than yast year's—be scaled down for more economical postwar operation.

E. M. Kelly, chairman of the El Paso Chapter, said, "the war is over. If we can cut down 20 per cent locally the national body should be able to reduce 10 per cent of its overhead."

To Best Keep Faith

Preston H. Haskell, jr., vice president of the Jefferson County (Ala.) Chapter, which includes Birmingham, said its chapter had cut it own budget 15 per cent, feeling that the faith of Red Cross donors can best be kept "by effecting every possible economy without impairment of essential services."

Locally, Red Cross officials did not appear to share this view. Gardner Bishop, director of the District's Red Cross fund campaign, which gets under way March 1, said that officials here had anticipated an increase in the national quota because of the inauguration of the Red Cross blood bank chain.

Washington has been selected for one of these blood banks, which, in three to five years, are expected to include some 140 metropolitan centers, about 250 secondary centers and several hundred mobile units, to reach suburban and rural sections.

Only Open Objections

Howard Bonham, vice president in charge of public relations for the Red Cross, said the Birmingham and El Paso Chapters were the only ones among 3751 to make open objections to the size of the 1948 goal.

Although the year's campaign quota is higher than that for 1947, actual budget expenditures show a decline, from 97 million dollars to 92 million dollars. Exceptional disaster relief costs last year, plus administrative expenses and cost of setting up the blood bank system, swelled expenses, it was said.

On another front, the national ARC has threatened revocation of the Van Wert (Ohio) Chapter's charter unless local officials there comply with the Red Cross' 12-year policy against joint fund-raising enterprises. The Chapter has an affiliation with the Community Chest, which is contrary to national policy.

Bonham explained that ARC chapters "do not wish to submerge their idetnity or bind themselves to other fund-raising arrangements and thereby risk the loss of control of their own service programs."

High Court to Rule On Veterans' Rights

Suit Involves Claim of Two Civilians Who Aided Coast Guard in Spare Time

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Spare-time Coast Guardsmen claimed the same civil service rights as regular veterans in the Supreme Court yesterday.

Government counsel fought the claim, saying it was not fair to full-time soldiers and sailors. They said job rights of thousands of Government workers depend on the way the case comes out.

During the war one of the Coast Guard's temporary reserves was the Volunteer Port Security Force. Its members were given uniforms, but no pay. They could quit if they found coast guarding cut into their civilian jobs, and they could not be transferred to duty away from home. There were about 70,000 men in the temporary force, and most of them were in the part-time class.

398 Are 250-Hour Veterans

Jack W. Cohen, a civilian economist in the War Department, joined this group on April 13, 1944, and served 398 hours, on 58 days, before he left the rolls on September 5, 1945. Later Cohen was dropped in a staff cut.

Harry W. Hubickey, a civilian architect in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, joined October 18, 1944, and served 250 hours, on 32 days, before he left the rolls on September 30, 1945. After a while, he was told he was to be dropped.

Both men went to court to make the Civil Service Commission give them the same preference as other veterans. They said the law gave an edge to all "former service men and women," without saying any special kind of service was required. And since they had served, even though only a few hours at a time, they were "former service men."

Cohen and Hubickey—and with them the thousands of other part-time Coast Guards—won their point in the District Court here. Then the United States Court of Appeals here backed them up by a 2-to-1 decision.

CSC Appeals to High Court

The Civil Service Commission took the fight to the high court, where Herbert A. Bergson—Assistant Attorney General—said yesterday Congress could not have meant to give weekend Guardsmen the same rights it gave to combat veterans.

Bergson pointed out that the volunteer reserves could quit if the duties took too much time. What would have happened to a man in the Army, Bergson asked, who asked his captain for a discharge on the ground that being a soldier cut into his civilian job?

Attorney Gerhard A. Gesell told the justices, however, that Congress drew no limits about the words "former servicemen," and that the civil service rights ought to be granted on a broad basis—which would mean giving them to Cohen, Hubickey and their thousands of colleagues.

The justices probed with questions for the differences between the spare-time guards and men who were in the armed forces.

Justices Reed and Black brought out that the Veterans Administration does not allow the spare-time men to buy GI insurance.

Justice Burton asked, and was told that veterans' preferences are given to volunteer reserves who were on duty full time.

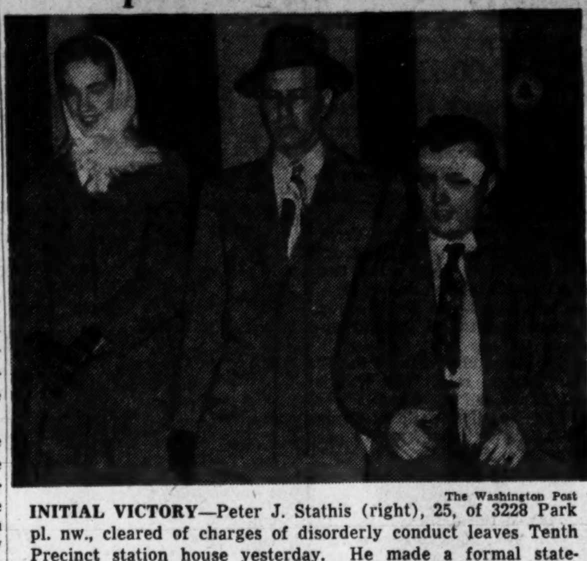
Principals in Police Case



The Washington Post

INITIAL VICTORY—Peter J. Stathis (right), 25, of 3228 Park pl. nw., cleared of charges of disorderly conduct leaves Tenth Precinct station house yesterday. He made a formal statement for the police investigation of Pvt. Jerome J. Jones, suspended as a result of Stathis' complaint that he was unjustly arrested and assaulted. With Stathis are his lawyer, Allen J. Krouse (center). and Diane Davis, 14, of 650½ Newton pl. nw., a witness in the case with investigations also resulted in advancing until 2:30 p. m. today a hearing before U. S. Assistant District Attorney Warren J. Wilson on charges of assault filed against the policeman by Stathis. The hearing had been scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Police Officer Suspended

Jones, to substantiate the disorderly conduct charge he had placed against Stathis, testified yesterday that the defendant used profane language. When he attempted to arrest Stathis, he testified, he was twice shoved away.

The third time, he said, Stathis raised his fist "and I hit him in the face with my club."

Stathis and a witness, Diane Davis, 14, of 650½ Newton pl. nw., however, testified the policeman spun Stathis around and struck him without warning after Stathis agreed to go to the police station and turned to go upstairs to get his coat.

The defendant had testified he was visiting the Davis family at xthe Newton pl. address, when Pvt. Jones knocked and entered without invitation to demand that trash outside the house be cleared up immediately.

He said he volunteered to help Diane pick up the newspapers, and Jones stood guard to see that it was done. He said he "joked" with Diane about the policeman standing by, told the officer he had "entered the house illegally" and was told he was under arrest.

Diane corroborated the defendant's testimony, adding that there also was some discussion about who made the original complaint on the trash. The policeman told them, she said, that he saw it while patroling his beat.

Jones had testified he had been notified of the trash complaint at 10 p. m. when he checked with the station house, and took action on it shortly after 11:30 p. m. The complaint had been telephoned in by Mrs. L. M. Jones (no relation) who owns the house and lives in the first floor apartment.

Mrs. Mae A. Davis, Diane's mother, testified she was in her upstairs apartment and did not witness the arrest. Her door was open, she said, and she heard no profanity or loud talking, which Jones testified had occurred.

After he was hit, Stathis said, he ran up an alley toward his home, but found himself growing faint and had to stop. Jones then caught up to him, jammed a gun in his back and marched him toward the police station.

"His (Jones') hand was shaking so I thought he might pull the trigger," testified Stathis.

After posting $5 collateral on the disorderly charge, Stathis said he was forced to await arrival of a patrol wagon to take him to Garfield Hospital. He was treated there for a cut over the left eye.

D. C. Man Held In $17,500 Check Forgery

A 34-year-old Washingtonian, who is a card dealer in a Las Vegas gambling house, was in District Jail last night awaiting extradition proceedings on a charge of forging a $17,500 check.

John Dallas Lawrence of 505 A st. se., was arrested at his home Christmas Eve by FBI agents on a charge of violating the National Stolen Property Act.

According to the FBI, he had taken a check on the Riggs Bank, made it out to himself and then forged a fictitious name. He then deposited the check in a savings account at the First National Bank in Las Vegas, and drew $11,000 on the account.

The FBI was brought into the case when the Riggs Bank notified the Las Vegas bank that they had no account in the name of the fictitious person.

At a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday, FBI agents dropped their charge so that Lawrence could be arrested by Washington police on warrant from Las Vegas, Nev., charging forgery.

Lawrence is being held pending extradition proceedings at District Court, February 6.

Government Girl Contest

whatever adventures are scheduled for her with Junior Jaxon, she is heading for Washington. The comic strip will then go into a Government girl episode. The "Miss Government Girl" contest will select a girl to serve as the model from whom artist Ken Ernst can draw his heroine.

The contest starts today and extends through January 28. All Government girls in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible. This is not a beauty contest. Any one of the thousands of girls employed here by the Federal Government may strike the artist's fancy.

Entries will be by photograph only. After finalists have been selected from the photographs, they will be invited to meet Ernst. He will select the dozen prize winners, including the model to receive first prize.

Rules must be followed exactly. An entry blank will be published daily in The Washington Post, but it is not necessary to use this blank. The required information may be written on a piece of paper and pasted to the photograph.

The Rules:

1. The Mary Worth Government girl contest is designed to select a model Government girl upon whom the artist of the Mary Worth strip will base the drawing of the heroine of his Government girl episode.
2. All girls employed by the United States Government in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible.
3. Entries shall consist of photographs only, one photograph from each entrant, the photograph to be not more than one year old at the time of entry.
4. Any kind of black and white picture (no color shots or tints) may be entered, including snapshots, but be sure to get one that does you justice and is big enough for the judges to see what you look like.
5. Pictures must be entered unmounted. No frames, no glass.
6. The Washington Post will make reasonable efforts to return photographs but accepts no responsibility for their return.
7. Each photograph must be accompanied by a slip of paper pasted to the bottom of the photograph, carrying the following information, typed or printed: Name, local address, age, home address, type of work, Government office in which employed, and statement of release, plus signature. (For convenience, The Washington Post will run a form every day which can be used as an entry blank.)
8. Winner will be used as a model for the comic strip and will receive $200 in cash. Runner-up gets $50 in cash. Next 10 get $5 each.
9. Decision of the judges will be final. There will be no correspondence of any kind in regard to individual entries.
10. Entries postmarked later than January 28 will not be considered
11. By entering the contest, the entrant binds herself to accept these rules and conditions as here stated.

U. S. Won't Aid Unions Failing Taft Act Test

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

When unions run into bargaining trouble because they failed to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act, Federal conciliators will not help them out.

This was the gist of a policy statement put out last night by Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. It served to make clear some of the questions that came up in conection with unions which have not filed oaths required by the new law, that their officers are not Communists.

Ching said that if it appears in a labor dispute that the employer "will not accept the authority of a union to act for the employes," his mediation agency will not come into the case.

This is in line with previous policy of the conciliation service, Ching said. Whenever there were two or more unions competing for recognition as the proper bargaining agent, the conciliation service kept hands off. The problem was one for the National Labor Relations Board to settle.

"It is regarded beyond the authority and jurisdiction of the service," Ching's policy statement said, "in the ordinary . . . to intervene for the purpose of indentifying bargaining representatives."

So, in the same way, the statement implied, if the union has failed to comply with the requirements of the law in filing the non-Communist oaths, and other data that the law calls for, the service will stay out of the picture. This means that the non-complying union will have to fight its battle alone, without help from any government agency.

Ching added two important modifications to this policy, however:

1. If the union has not complied with the filing requirements of the law, but the employer bargains with it anyway and does not raise a question as to the union's right to speak for the employes, the conciliation service will help out in any dispute.

That is, in any dispute which has to do just with the terms of an agreement—and there is no question of representation—the service will function as usual, trying to help both sides come together.

2. In any labor dispute "which imperils the national safety and health," the service will enter the case whether or not the union has complied with the filing provisions and whether or not the employer recognizes the union as the proper and lawful bargaining agent.

These are the sort of disputes which the Taft-Hartley Act said should be handled under the "National Emergency" procedure. One phase of that process involves an attempt by the conciliation service to get both parties to agree to settle the dispute.

11% of Bay State Voters Indicated for Wallace

Boston, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—The Boston Globe said today that a poll of Massachusetts indicated that about 11 per cent of the voters favored Henry A. Wallace for President—much of the support coming from Democrats.

"In fact," the dispatch said, "he draws so heavily from the Democrats than when compared to the Roosevelt-Dewey vote in Massachusetts four years ago, it would make the State a 50-50 proposition and might put the commonwealth into the Republican column in a presidential election for the first time since 1924 and the days of Calvin Coolidge."

hired to replace strikers are being taken on permanently.

In case of a later settlement, he said, "GSI cannot take back anyone whose job has been filled."

GSI was having trouble finding replacements for skilled workers—mainly cooks and bakers. Nearly all the cafeterias were serving "commercial" baked goods. At several eating places, supervisors were cooking meals.

Dishwashing machines sounded again in some cafeterias as new employes were taught how to run them.

Outside the struck cafeterias, light snowfall until union president Bancroft called a halt at 2 p. m. He said "there is no need to expose them to illness" and promised they would be back at 5 a. m. this morning.

A group of leading Negro citizens yesterday presented the union's case to President Truman. In a telegram, they expressed concern over "GSI's refusal to bargain" with the union, adding:

"We urge you to use your good offices to induce this company, whih operates on property of the United States Government, to bargain in good faith in the American way with the union of its employes."

The message was signed by Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, past president of the National Association of Colored Women; Rev. W. H. Jernigan, executive secretary of the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches; Belford V. Lawson, jr., Washington attorney and national president of Alpha Phi Alpha; Dr. Joseph L. Townsend, dean of Howard University medical school, and Dr. E. Franklin Frazier, Howard University professor.

Green Predicts Wallace Won't Get Union Vote

By The Associated Press

AFL President William Green predicted last night that organized labor would oppose the presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace on a third-party ticket.

"I think, as the picture unfolds, it will be made pretty clear that he (Mr. Wallace) is sponsored by Communists," Green told reporters after a meeting of the 30-man administrative committee of the AFL's political league.

The AFL president expressed the opinion that "the genuine liberals and progressives who think clearly and soundly will not be for him."

He said that personally he is against Wallace's candidacy and added, "I followed his speeches and got the impression that Russia is right in everything and America is wrong."

"I believe in America first," Green added.

The administrative committee itself made no announcement on the Wallace campaign.

The AFL Committee, which changed the name of the league to "Labor's League for Political Education," discussed legal phases of the AFL's forthcoming participation in the 1948 elections. The league will be financel by voluntary contributions of at least $1 apiece from the 7,500,000 members, Green said, and will work to defeat supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act in the congressional elections.

The committee will meet February 4, in Miami, Fla., during the session there of the 15-man AFL executive council to select a director to run the political drive.

Strategy for supporting the Wallace candidacy is expected to be discussed at the second annual convention of the Progressive Citizens of America in Chicago January 17-18, the PCA announced yesterday.

It said 600 delegates from 26 States will attend the gathering, at which Wallace will be guest speaker.

The convention "is expected to indorse the Walace candidacy" for president on an independent ticket and to draw up plans for supporting his campaign, said the announcement .

Illinois CIO Won't Aid Wallace's Candidacy

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP).—Leaders of 350,000 CIO union members in Illinois decided today "not to promote or approve" Henry A. Wallace's third party bid for President of the United States.

The State CIO supported Wallace's 1944 attempt to win the Democratic vice presidential nomination which went to President Truman.

The executive board of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council (CIO) at a meeting "discussed" the Wallace presidential candidacy but withheld any formal indorsement or repudiation of it because of a national CIO convention's decision at Boston last November.

Boston convention delegates, the State CIO statement said, "voted not to promote or approve a third party ticket in the coming presidential election."

Citizens to Discuss Slaughter House Ban

Manassas, Va., Jan. 6.—Manassas citizens will appear before the Town Council at 8 p. m. Friday in the Town Hall to discuss the repeal of an ordinance prohibiting operation of slaughter houses in the corporation limits.

Frank Parrish, manager of the Manassas Frozen Food Co., said the slaughter house would be built to look like any other building, and that he thought objections would be withdrawn once the full facts were known.

Court to Rule on Va. City Realty Sale Tax

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Can a Virginia city constitutionally impose a tax on the sale of real estate?

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals agreed today to decide this question, when it granted an appeal to the city of Roanoke from an order of the Hustings Court of Roanoke holding a $1 per $100 tax on sales of real property to be unconstitutional and void.

Stassen Sees Campaign In Its Crucial Period

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor, said today he believed the next 90 days would be a crucial period in his campaign for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

Answering questions at the opening of his Eastern States campaign headquarters in the Hotel Sheraton, Stassen said "we have been greatly encouraged by developments so far in the campaign."

He added "we have moved into first place in several polls in the Middle West where we are known best."

The Minnesotan said he and his supporters would be "very active" in the next three months in prepartaion for the preferential primary elections in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Nebraska, in all of which he has entered slates of delegates.

Daniel C. Gainey, Owatonna (Minn.) manufacturer and national chairman of the Neighbors for Stassen organization, who attended the news conference, announced that his group was being expanded into a Nation-wide Citizens for Stassen group.

Baltimore, Richmond On Opera Itinerary

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Metropolitan Opera Co. today announced the itinerary for its annual spring tour which it said would be "the most extensive since 1905."

The itinerary includes: Baltimore, Md. ,March 29-30, and Richmond, Va., March 31.

Break Provides Holiday

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES!

A well-prepared nurse has innumerable fields open to her.

The Profession of Nursing offers you a well-paid lifetime career!

Whether you choose a career or marriage or whether like so many modern girls you want both, your nursing education will enrich your entire life.

If you are looking for a profitable career that will give you poise, teach you how to handle people, educate you and develop all your potentialities—then find out today what nursing has to offer you:

Education: You will receive one of the finest three-year scientific educations, for far less than the cost of four years at college. When you have successfully completed your studies, you will be qualified to become a professional Registered Nurse. In some schools, you can also receive a Bachelor of Science degree.

In addition, you will enjoy life in a dormitory, and all the fun that goes with it, recreation, time off every week, occasional week ends and, of course, a vacation.

Career: After thorough training under physicians and nurses, there are innumerable fields open to you. You may become a staff or private duty nurse in one of our fine hospitals. You may work in industry, psychiatry, child or public health, Veterans' Administration, U. S. Public Health Service, Army or Navy.

You can stay in your own home town or you can easily find work that will take you to any part of this country or to any corner of the earth. That's another of the many advantages you may enjoy as a graduate nurse.

Marriage: Most nurses do marry. When you do, you will find that your nursing education was an ideal preparation for family life and for leadership in the community where you live.

You: The knowledge of human psychology, the confidence you gain from your rich experience working with fine professional men and women will help you in every type of work you undertake.

THERE ARE MANY OPPORTUNITIES OPEN TO YOU—IF YOU QUALIFY

To qualify for this profession, you must be under 35, a high school graduate, or a college girl.

Fall classes are being filled now, so go or write today to the hospital where you would like to enter nursing. A friendly adviser is waiting there to talk confidentially with you.

FORMER SERVICE WOMEN
Wacs, Waves, Marines and Spars!

If you qualify as a student nurse, your allowance under the G. I. Bill of Rights may cover your entire nursing education.

U.S. News and World Report

ARE NOW COMBINED INTO ONE MAGAZINE

EVENTS during the last few weeks have demonstrated that a line can no longer be drawn between the news of national and the news of international affairs.

A four-year program of world recovery—the Marshall Plan—estimated to cost America seventeen billion dollars has just been recommended to Congress by the President of the United States.

Whether adopted as the President proposes or in modified form, the Plan marks the beginning of a new epoch in America's economic history. It will have long-range effects on the whole future of world trade. It means a new responsibility in reporting and analyzing the news of both national and international affairs.

Americans will want to be informed on what happens to these billions—what the various governments do with the money and what the peoples themselves do to bring about recovery.

Today the cost of living in the United States is dependent to no small extent on European harvests and European needs. Steel and other commodities in short supply may soon be allocated to American users because of the requirements of the world recovery program.

National defense now costs 10 billion dollars a year. This is twice the amount of all revenues collected by our government in 1939. Defense costs are related to what Russia will do—to what happens to world peace. National and international affairs are truly inseparable.

For the last 15 years, the United States News has devoted its entire attention to reporting, interpreting and forecasting each week the news of national affairs—the news of the economic life of our country.

National factors have dominated the course of business and industry, agriculture and labor, inflation and deflation, prosperity and depression.

International factors as well now affect business and individual planning.

The United States News, founded in 1933, has been the only weekly newsmagazine devoted entirely to national affairs.

World Report, founded May 1946, has been the only weekly newsmagazine devoted entirely to international affairs.

The United States News by November 1947 had already exceeded the circulation figure of 300,000 guaranteed for 1948.

World Report in 18 months has achieved a circulation inside the United States of 125,000 — a phenomenal record in the history of news magazines.

Already 25,000 persons subscribe to both magazines. Test surveys, recently completed, show conclusively that the other readers of each magazine would like to get the news of both national and international affairs.

To fulfill the needs of the readers of each magazine, the two publications have been merged—effective with the issue to be delivered next week.

Subscribers to each magazine now will get all the national news which the United States News presents every week plus all the regular features of World Report—a bigger and better magazine for both groups of readers.

Writers of experience, stationed by World Report throughout the world, will serve the enlarged magazine. Bureaus to assemble the news from different regions have been established and are now operating in London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, Tokyo, Buenos Aires, and Mexico City.

U. S. News-World Report is different from any other weekly magazine. The mass newsweeklies devote only a portion of their contents to national and international affairs for naturally they must include other departments of news such as sports, music, theatre, cinema, science, etc. U. S. News-World Report devotes 100 percent of its contents to national and international affairs.

U. S. News-World Report is different in another respect. It does not offer summaries or reviews of what has already appeared in the press but analyzes the meaning of the news as it happens, relating it to business and individual planning.

Advertisers placing their 1948 schedules in U. S. News-World Report will be addressing leaders in business and industry and finance, leaders in trade associations, leaders in labor and farm organizations, leaders in the professions, leaders in civic affairs and community life — the public-opinion forming groups of America.

U. S. Won't Aid Unions Failing Taft Act Test

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

When unions run into bargaining trouble because they failed to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act, Federal conciliators will not help them out.

This was the gist of a policy statement put out last night by Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. It served to make clear some of the questions that came up in conection with unions which have not filed oaths required by the new law, that their officers are not Communists.

Ching said that if it appears in a labor dispute that the employer "will not accept the authority of a union to act for the employes," his mediation agency will not come into the case.

This is in line with previous policy of the conciliation service, Ching said. Whenever there were two or more unions competing for recognition as the proper bargaining agent, the conciliation service kept hands off. The problem was one for the National Labor Relations Board to settle.

"It is regarded beyond the authority and jurisdiction of the service," Ching's policy statement said, "in the ordinary . . . to intervene for the purpose of indentifying bargaining representatives."

So, in the same way, the statement implied, if the union has failed to comply with the requirements of the law in filing the non-Communist oaths, and other data that the law calls for, the service will stay out of the picture. This means that the non-complying union will have to fight its battle alone, without help from any government agency.

Ching added two important modifications to this policy, however:

1. If the union has not complied with the filing requirements of the law, but the employer bargains with it anyway and does not raise a question as to the union's right to speak for the employes, the conciliation service will help out in any dispute.

That is, in any dispute which has to do just with the terms of an agreement—and there is no question of representation—the service will function as usual, trying to help both sides come together.

2. In any labor dispute "which imperils the national safety and health," the service will enter the case whether or not the union has complied with the filing provisions and whether or not the employer recognizes the union as the proper and lawful bargaining agent.

These are the sort of disputes which the Taft-Hartley Act said should be handled under the "National Emergency" procedure. One phase of that process involves an attempt by the conciliation service to get both parties to agree to settle the dispute.

11% of Bay State Voters Indicated for Wallace

Boston, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—The Boston Globe said today that a poll of Massachusetts indicated that about 11 per cent of the voters favored Henry A. Wallace for President—much of the support coming from Democrats.

"In fact," the dispatch said, "he draws so heavily from the Democrats than when compared to the Roosevelt-Dewey vote in Massachusetts four years ago, it would make the State a 50-50 proposition and might put the commonwealth into the Republican column in a presidential election for the first time since 1924 and the days of Calvin Coolidge."

hired to replace strikers are being taken on permanently.

In case of a later settlement, he said, "GSI cannot take back anyone whose job has been filled."

GSI was having trouble finding replacements for skilled workers—mainly cooks and bakers. Nearly all the cafeterias were serving "commercial" baked goods. At several eating places, supervisors were cooking meals.

Dishwashing machines sounded again in some cafeterias as new employes were taught how to run them.

Outside the struck cafeterias, light snowfall until union president Bancroft called a halt at 2 p. m. He said "there is no need to expose them to illness" and promised they would be back at 5 a. m. this morning.

A group of leading Negro citizens yesterday presented the union's case to President Truman. In a telegram, they expressed concern over "GSI's refusal to bargain" with the union, adding:

"We urge you to use your good offices to induce this company, whih operates on property of the United States Government, to bargain in good faith in the American way with the union of its employes."

The message was signed by Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, past president of the National Association of Colored Women; Rev. W. H. Jernigan, executive secretary of the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches; Belford V. Lawson, jr., Washington attorney and national president of Alpha Phi Alpha; Dr. Joseph L. Townsend, dean of Howard University medical school, and Dr. E. Franklin Frazier, Howard University professor.

Green Predicts Wallace Won't Get Union Vote

By The Associated Press

AFL President William Green predicted last night that organized labor would oppose the presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace on a third-party ticket.

"I think, as the picture unfolds, it will be made pretty clear that he (Mr. Wallace) is sponsored by Communists," Green told reporters after a meeting of the 30-man administrative committee of the AFL's political league.

The AFL president expressed the opinion that "the genuine liberals and progressives who think clearly and soundly will not be for him."

He said that personally he is against Wallace's candidacy and added, "I followed his speeches and got the impression that Russia is right in everything and America is wrong."

"I believe in America first," Green added.

The administrative committee itself made no announcement on the Wallace campaign.

The AFL Committee, which changed the name of the league to "Labor's League for Political Education," discussed legal phases of the AFL's forthcoming participation in the 1948 elections. The league will be financel by voluntary contributions of at least $1 apiece from the 7,500,000 members, Green said, and will work to defeat supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act in the congressional elections.

The committee will meet February 4, in Miami, Fla., during the session there of the 15-man AFL executive council to select a director to run the political drive.

Strategy for supporting the Wallace candidacy is expected to be discussed at the second annual convention of the Progressive Citizens of America in Chicago January 17-18, the PCA announced yesterday.

It said 600 delegates from 26 States will attend the gathering, at which Wallace will be guest speaker.

The convention "is expected to indorse the Walace candidacy" for president on an independent ticket and to draw up plans for supporting his campaign, said the announcement .

Illinois CIO Won't Aid Wallace's Candidacy

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP).—Leaders of 350,000 CIO union members in Illinois decided today "not to promote or approve" Henry A. Wallace's third party bid for President of the United States.

The State CIO supported Wallace's 1944 attempt to win the Democratic vice presidential nomination which went to President Truman.

The executive board of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council (CIO) at a meeting "discussed" the Wallace presidential candidacy but withheld any formal indorsement or repudiation of it because of a national CIO convention's decision at Boston last November.

Boston convention delegates, the State CIO statement said, "voted not to promote or approve a third party ticket in the coming presidential election."

Court to Rule on Va. City Realty Sale Tax

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Can a Virginia city constitutionally impose a tax on the sale of real estate?

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals agreed today to decide this question, when it granted an appeal to the city of Roanoke from an order of the Hustings Court of Roanoke holding a $1 per $100 tax on sales of real property to be unconstitutional and void.

Stassen Sees Campaign In Its Crucial Period

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor, said today he believed the next 90 days would be a crucial period in his campaign for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

Answering questions at the opening of his Eastern States campaign headquarters in the Hotel Sheraton, Stassen said "we have been greatly encouraged by developments so far in the campaign."

He added "we have moved into first place in several polls in the Middle West where we are known best."

The Minnesotan said he and his supporters would be "very active" in the next three months in prepartaion for the preferential primary elections in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Nebraska, in all of which he has entered slates of delegates.

Daniel C. Gainey, Owatonna (Minn.) manufacturer and national chairman of the Neighbors for Stassen organization, who attended the news conference, announced that his group was being expanded into a Nation-wide Citizens for Stassen group.

Baltimore, Richmond On Opera Itinerary

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Metropolitan Opera Co. today announced the itinerary for its annual spring tour which it said would be "the most extensive since 1905."

The itinerary includes: Baltimore, Md., March 29-30, and Richmond, Va., March 31.

U.S. News and World Report

ARE NOW COMBINED INTO ONE MAGAZINE

EVENTS during the last few weeks have demonstrated that a line can no longer be drawn between the news of national and the news of international affairs.

A four-year program of world recovery—the Marshall Plan—estimated to cost America seventeen billion dollars has just been recommended to Congress by the President of the United States.

Whether adopted as the President proposes or in modified form, the Plan marks the beginning of a new epoch in America's economic history. It will have long-range effects on the whole future of world trade. It means a new responsibility in reporting and analyzing the news of both national and international affairs.

Americans will want to be informed on what happens to these billions—what the various governments do with the money and what the peoples themselves do to bring about recovery.

Today the cost of living in the United States is dependent to no small extent on European harvests and European needs. Steel and other commodities in short supply may soon be allocated to American users because of the requirements of the world recovery program.

National defense now costs 10 billion dollars a year. This is twice the amount of all revenues collected by our government in 1939. Defense costs are related to what Russia will do—to what happens to world peace. National and international affairs are truly inseparable.

For the last 15 years, the United States News has devoted its entire attention to reporting, interpreting and forecasting each week the news of national affairs—the news of the economic life of our country.

Municipal Court

The persistent and apparently substantial rumor that the candidates recommended by the District bar associations to fill the vacancy on the Municipal Court will be passed over in favor of Milton S. Kronheim, jr., seems to us highly disquieting. Mr. Kronheim is reputed to be a lawyer of probity and competence, and we have no wish to disparage him personally in any way. But his association with the local liquor firm headed by his father disqualifies him, in our judgment, from service on a court which must necessarily consider cases arising out of violation of the laws governing the sale of liquor.

The Municipal Court is already in a seriously weakened condition. To seat upon this bench another judge who would be required to disqualify himself in a considerable category of cases and who would find it difficult to command public confidence would be to weaken it still more at a time when it most needs strengthening. Judgeships on the Municipal Court have rather too frequently been considered appropriate payment for political obligations. We hope that on this occasion the Attorney General and the President will confine themselves to merit considerations only. They will find thoroughly suitable selections among the names submitted by the bar associations.

Mr. Hague Again

Last June, as you may remember, Mr. Frank Hague resigned as Mayor of Jersey City and by an interesting stroke of nepotism, in the literal sense of the word, announced that his successor would be his namesake and nephew, Mr. Frank Hague Eggers. There may or may not have been a conscious irony in Mr. Hague's explanation that he had taken this step "in justice to my city and my family." Theoretically and legalistically, it was not for Mr. Hague but for the city commission to say who should be mayor for the remainder of Mr. Hague's term. But whatever their shortcomings in other respects, the Jersey City commissioners are not incapable of taking a hint, if it is a sufficiently broad one. Accordingly, they elected Mr. Eggers; and last Thursday for the first time in a full generation, Mr. Hague had a reasonable excuse for exempting himself from his customary New Year's ordeal of shaking hands with his innumerable henchmen and admirers.

But those who considered that the Hague machine was going out of business, or curtailing its activities to limits compatible with an hereditary dynasty, seem to have spoken prematurely. Mr. Hague did not resign as Democratic leader of the State nor relinquish his place as vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee. And, if today nobody has more than the slightest notion who will be the regular Democratic candidate for nomination as United States Senator in the primary election four months hence, it is apparently because Mr. Hague either has not made up his mind or is keeping his own counsel on the subject.

There is, in short, no reason to suppose that Haguism is dead in New Jersey and some reason to suppose that it is already convalescent from the disabilities it has suffered in the last year or so. The third-party candidacy of Mr. Henry Wallace appears to have accelerated the recovery. Its net effect has been to increase the importance of the Hague machine to the National Administration. Certainly, Mr. Wallace is not going to entice any of Mr. Hague's habitual followers into his camp, but it is not altogether impossible, seeing how strongly the wind now blows, that Mr. Hague may enter into alliance with some of his former enemies of the "left-liberal" persuasion who are now seeking a means of clearing themselves of any suspicion of fellow-travelership. It has not been Mr. Hague's habit to bear grudges where it is to his advantage to forget them, and he has got rid of many a troublesome critic simply by giving him a job or getting him elected to an office in which the support of the Hague machine would be useful.

This may not, of course, have anything to do with the repudiation of Mr. Wallace and his party by Dr. Frank Kingdon. Dr. Kingdon, whose name has appeared on the letterheads of almost as many organizations of low to medium color saturation as Mr. Wallace's own, has recently been assailing Communist influences and has announced himself as an independent candidate for the Democratic nomination to the United State Senate. It would be very strange indeed if Mr. Hague decided that Dr. Kingdon would also make a good organization candidate for the same post, but in politics, as you know, even stranger things have happened.

President's Power

Chairman Eaton of the House Foreign Affairs Committee has raised an objection to the Herter bill which no amount of debate can hurdle. "I cannot conceive," he said, "of any way in which an independent agency can be established to handle our foreign relations without invading the constitutional duties of the Chief Executive." One has only to read the Constitution and the decisions of the Supreme Court on this point to see how unassailable that position is.

Representative Herter's bill would give authority to carry out the proposed European Recovery Program to a Government corporation under control of a bipartisan board of directors to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The bill specifically provides that this "emergency foreign reconstruction authority" should be an "independent agency of the United States." To it would be delegated the enormous power "to determine, prescribe and conclude" the arrangements under which commodities, machinery and equipment for reconstruction purposes would be made available to the various countries participating in ERP. In short, foreign relations, so far as implementing the Marshall Plan is concerned, would be lifted out of the hands of the Secretary of State and placed into the hands of a Federal corporation.

This scheme seems to us to fly directly into the face of the constitutional requirement that the relations of the United States with other countries shall be under control of the President. The most important decision of the Supreme Court on this point was rendered in 1936 when airplane manufacturers and exporters challenged the validity of the embargo proclaimed by the President, under an act of Congress, to prevent the shipment of arms to Bolivia and Paraguay during the Chaco War. Sweeping beyond the immediate point at issue, apparently to clarify the scope of the President's power in the conduct of foreign relations, the court said that in this field "the President alone had the power to speak or listen as a representative of the Nation."

Justice Sutherland spoke for a court that was unanimous except for the dissent of Justice McReynolds. "Congressional legislation which is to be made effective through negotiation and inquiry within the international field," the opinion continued, "must often accord to the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restrictions which would not be admissible were domestic affairs alone involved." Here is a clear statement by a conservative judge of the orthodox view of the President's power in the conduct of negotiations with other nations. That power was given to him by the Constitution and cannot be taken away or diminished by Congress.

Sound administration, as we have previously noted, demands that the United States shall have one voice and not two in foreign affairs. Since the Constitution makes the same demand, we think Congress must necessarily discard this provision of the Herter bill in favor of the more practicable and constitutional plan recommended by the President.

Voluntary Censorship

A good example of the inadequacy of the hodgepodge military security system under which the country is now operating was the story in Sunday's newspapers about the operation of the world's first low-pressure supersonic wind tunnel at the University of California. Funds for the development of this tunnel were provided by the Office of Naval Research. Yet the Secretary of Defense had no prior knowledge of the release. Whether the announcement in this case actually constituted a breach of security is not the question. The point is that there are some areas of research in which maintenance of secrecy is essential to national security. Top scientists associated with the Government are genuinely concerned about the military implications of some of the technical information which already has found its way into print.

A reader has seen in our editorial of last Saturday, "Supersonic Security," an implied plea for a return of voluntary censorship such as existed during the war under Byron Price. We intended no such formal connotation. What we suggested was the establishment of a single office or agency, respected by the press, with authority to coordinate and pass upon military information vital to the national security. Our suggestion was inspired by the present unintentional leakage of such information for want of a consistent security policy. It is obvious that from the security standpoint the Government's left hand does not know what the right is doing.

Congress recognized the existence of an area in which secrecy is paramount in passing the Atomic Energy Act of 1946. Indeed, the Atomic Energy Commission already has instituted a reasonable procedure for the release of important information. The Espionage Act of 1917 also covers military secrets, although there is some difficulty of application in ordinary cases because of its concern with "intent." Within the framework of these laws there is always a certain amount of voluntary censorship by the press. The trouble is that in many instances the press is not competent to know what is and what is not information vital to security. We think there ought to be a clear definition of such information. The way to obtain the cooperation of the press in this cause is not by enacting additional legal penalties but by substituting for the present willy-nilly approach a unified security policy administered by the Department of National Defense.

Unreasonable Search

A bold attempt to extend the power of police officers to arrest and search individuals without warrant has been slapped down by the Supreme Court in the case of Michael Di Re. New York police took Di Re into custody at Buffalo when they found him in an automobile with an alleged purveyor of counterfeit gasoline ration coupons and an OPA informer. There was no warrant for the arrest of Di Re, but he was taken to the police station, searched, booked and later convicted of knowingly possessing counterfeit gasoline ration coupons in violation of the Second War Powers Act. If that sort of action had been sustained by the Supreme Court, the right of citizens to be free from police molestation would have been dangerously narrowed.

The Government assumed that there was reasonable cause for searching the car in which Di Re was found (although the car itself was not searched) and that this gave warrant to search all its occupants. "Common sense," it argued, "demands that such rights exist in a case such as this where the contraband sought is a small article which could easily be concealed on the person." But if a guest in a car could be searched by the police without warrant, the guests in a home could likewise be searched whenever the police have occasion to enter that household. "We are not convinced," the court said through Justice Robert H. Jackson, "that a person, by mere presence in a suspected car, loces immunities from search of his person to which he would otherwise be entitled."

"We meet in this case, as in many," the opinion continues, "the appeal to necessity. It is said that if such arrests and searches cannot be made, law enforcement will be more difficult and uncertain. But the forefathers, after consulting the lessons of history, designed our Constitution to place obstacles in the way of a too permeating police surveillance, which they seemed to think was a greater danger to a free people than the escape of some criminals from punishment." It is good to see the Supreme Court upholding this safeguard of the Fourth Amendment, despite the dissents of Chief Justice Vinson and Mr. Justice Black.

The Murphy Case

There would be less concern about the dismissal of 4 of the 13 counts against Fire Chief Clement Murphy were it not for the widespread fear that a whitewashing is in process. The trial board has narrowed its hearing to the charges of misconduct against Mr. Murphy since he became fire chief on the ground that it should not concern itself with his conduct before he occupied that office. No doubt there is a good deal of technical justification for this view. Yet the issue about which the public is concerned is whether Chief Murphy is fit to be head of the Fire Department. From this viewpoint his conduct before his latest appointment is no less relevant than his subsequent conduct.

Perhaps the trial board reasoned, too, that since the District Commissioners did not regard Chief Murphy's record prior to March 1, 1946, as cause for not appointing him, it should not now be used as a reason for dismissing him. That logic would be sound if there were any indication that the Commissioners had made a conscientious study of Mr. Murphy's qualifications. Unfortunately, there is not. Apparently Mr. Murphy was selected in the same casual manner that has characterized the handling of other important municipal business in recent months.

We do not think that the public should assume that the trial board has failed in its duty because it has dismissed four of the charges and refused to allow the attorney for Mr. Murphy's accuser to enter the case as a "friend of the court." But these incidents plus the lifting of the case out of the hands of the corporation counsel, whose office had made the original investigation, will strengthen public skepticism. The board will have to watch every step from now on to avoid a complete loss of confidence.

THE HIDDEN FORCE

If only the body had a might geared to the torrent force
That storms within like a river poured from some mysterious source!
If only the body could express, from under its sodden sheath,
The rush and the flow and the leap and drive of the barriered self beneath!

If I were free from the pulsing heart, as the fenceless wind is free,
And loose from the flesh that tires and fails, chained to the hours' decree,
Then restlessly over the world I'd range, strong as a gale, and find
A captain's place and a prophet's voice in the councils of mankind!

Fleet as a bird, and unwearying as a cloud, a wave or stream,
I'd be a quenchless fire, a lamp that never would cease to beam,
If only the body had a might geared to the torrent force
That beats within like the tides that sway from some primeval source!

Administering ERP

There is danger that in setting up an organization to administer the European Recovery Plan we shall repeat most of the mistakes made by the wartime agencies concerned with foreign economic relations.

It is clear from what happened between 1940 and 1945 that the Department of State should determine general policy toward each general area or individual country abroad. However, it should not be concerned with detailed economic policies and operations.

Nor is there any need for a new corporation, or some new agency of administration, which operates through some kind of committee. A committee diffuses and obscures responsibility for decisions and action. A congressional committee, however, might exercise a continuous role as observer with no direct power over decisions or administration.

One department should be charged with loans, exports of materials, technical aid and other items of reconstruction, particularly with reference to producers goods and raw materials. This will be important during the relief stages of the recovery plan but more especially in the later reconstruction stages. One department can most easily administer both domestic and foreign aspects of this range of commodities. No existing department exactly fills this role. There should be a department of production with which one department American business men and foreign representatives would deal.

Another department should be charged with the purchase, export, distribution and rationing of consumer relief goods, food, clothes, medical supplies, and perhaps some aspects of housing exclusive of construction. It would handle the same problems for domestic purposes in the United States.

A third department should deal with relief and reconstruction so far as they pertain to rebuilding of public works. These are normally matters for government financing and operation in both Europe and the United States.

The Secretary of Defense should deal with all matters involving the furnishing of military materials, supplies and aid.

The Department of State would then review quarterly in advance the operating plans of each of these departments regarding European recovery; and after approving and revising the plans would not usually interfere with the operations of the other departments' representatives here or abroad. Copies of departmental instructions and reports from abroad would, however, be furnished the State Department so that it could exercise a veto or postreview of operations which appeared to deviate from American foreign policy.

Poetic Definition

A judicial application of a poetic definition of when a man is to be regarded as "drunk," as made by Justice Jennings Bailey is duly recorded in an amusing bit appearing in The Washington Post of December 20. The quatrain judicially applied is not, as was stated, anonymous. It may interest a few of your readers to note that it appears in Chapter III of The Misfortunes of Elphin, a poem by Thomas Love Peacock, published in 1829. The correct wording differs somewhat from that recorded as having been given by the legal lights in the courtroom. It runs:

"Not drunk is he, who from the floor
Can rise alone, and still drink more;
But drunk is he, who prostrate lies,
Without the power to drink or rise."

Peacock was an Englishman of parts, poet, satirist, novelist of note, and known to have been an able policy molder in the councils of the great East India Co. He was an intimate of the poet Shelley and the executor of his will. He died in 1866.

"Gallinger Mess"

I wish to commend your excellent editorial of December 31, "Gallinger Mess." You have placed the facts clearly before the people of the District and I hope they will be sufficiently aroused to demand that the situation be corrected.

As a volunteer worker at Gallinger for many years, I feel greatly concerned when criticism is unjustly leveled at its administration. In this case not even perfect administration could substitute for the larger appropriations for the psychiatric department, which have been requested consistently year after year.

It is our hope that you will continue your efforts until those responsible for recommending and making appropriations for our municipal hospital have a more informed opinion on the cost of adequate medical care, especially for the mentally ill.

YMCA Sitdown

I was sorry to see in The Washington Post of December 7 an error in the news story about the group which has been staging a series of protests against racial discrimination in Washington.

The article stated that in a three-day sit-down at the downtown YMCA Coffee Shop last July, the participants "were finally removed with the aid of police." That is a misstatement.

As there is no law in the District requiring segregation, any person may enter a place open to the public. Therefore, any ejection on the part of the police would have been a violation of civil rights.

The fact is that the group voluntarily left the coffee shop that July day without any interference from the police. A sit-down is a form of peaceful protest against restaurant refusal to serve all persons as equals. Every participant is committed to the principle of nonviolence, refusing to use violence even in self-defense.

The story as it was printed works an injustice not only to the Workshop but to the Metropolitan Police force who have been scrupulously neutral in performing their duty.

We are, therefore, anxious to correct the impression created by the account and know that you will want to maintain your reputation for fair and accurate reporting.

KATHRYN BAKER,
Secretary, Washington Interracial Workshop.

Editor's Note: The story was in error. The group left voluntarily after being barred by YMCA officials. Police at the scene took no action.

Reasons For Panama's Rejection

In the attempts to explain the reasons why the Panama National Assembly unanimously rejected the Filos-Hines agreement on defense bases, the arguments against Panama have been the following:

(1) That the political movement which brought about the rejection was directed by the Communist Party; (2) that the rejection was due to the present political situation in Panama and to the approaching national elections; (3) that Panama hopes to obtain greater economic advantages through the leasing of the areas necessary for the defense of the canal; (4) that the Panamanian people are not grateful for the benefits derived from our relations with the United States; (5) that the Panamanian people are exceedingly nationalistic; (6) that Panama has refused to fulfill her contractual obligations with the United States; (7) that Panama has attempted to evade her promises of cooperation in the defense of the hemisphere.

The Communist Party in Panama is so small that it has no representation whatever in the National Assembly. We, indeed, believe that in spite of the fact that we do not fight communism by means of "witch-hunts" or through the use of force, but rather with a more faithful practice of the principles and ideals of democracy, the Communist doctrine does not prosper in our midst.

Undoubtedly, national politics played a minor role in the development of events, just as it happens in the United States and in other countries in similar cases. We deny, however, that this role was decisive, since the movement against the Filos-Hines agreement did not arise from any of the political parties that have nominated candidates for the Presidency and for the National Assembly, but from the Federation of Students of Panama and from other groups of an entirely civic nature.

If the Panamanian people were a calculating lot, they would have favored the approval of the Filos-Hines agreement, because in that way they would have avoided the economic reprisals anticipated by the United States and which are at the present time being effected. It is strange that the United States should clamor for gratitude from the Panamanian people, when in all of our relations over a period of 45 years, we have always been the victims of inequitable treatment. (Treaty of 1903, discrimination in the Canal Zone, unfair competition of the United States commissaries with Panamanian commerce, armed intervention in matters exclusively Panamanian, etc.)

Panama, like other nations of the world, has definitely some nationalistic characteristics, but to cite an example, the Panamanian people have never been characterized by odious racial discriminations. It is incorrect to accuse Panama of "anti-Yankee hysteria" when our country was among the first to adopt a sincere belligerent position as an ally of the United States in the two wars of this century. There are many official documents in the United States which specifically commend Panama for her integrity in fulfilling to the letter its contractual obligations.

At Chapultepec and Rio de Janeiro the principles of continental solidarity were developed. Panama has played an important role in both conferences and her representatives have been considered as deserving of confidence. It is difficult to conceive that a country which had not acted in good faith and in the highest spirit of sacrifice would have been honored in Rio, for example, with the presidency of the Committee of the Second Commission in charge of "Measures That Are to Be Taken in Cases of Menace and in Acts of Aggression" and that Sumner Welles would have declared in The Washington Post of September 9, 1947, that "It is impossible to overlook the outstanding contribution made by Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro."

It denotes an evil intention to confuse the defense of Panama of her sovereign integrity, which has been jeopardized by the United States by holding, as she has, the 14 bases, the cause of our latest differences, with the lack of cooperation in hemispheric defense, of which we are so freely and unjustly accused.

Rehearsal For History

By Malvina Lindsay

Congress On Trial

THEY LOOK like most other men and women, these members of the Eightieth Congress who are beginning their historic session of 1948. Yet we who are audience at their new drama see something special about them. Familiar as they are, we regard them with fresh curiosity. They are suddenly set a little apart.

Perhaps it is because they are about to try out for their roles in history. How will posterity finally judge a Vandenberg for his performance? Or a Taft? A Martin? A Taber? Or the seven Congresswomen, minute symbol of the feminine millions who are praying for freedom from fear of war? Or a freshman legislator who has one of the 531 votes that may sway the destiny of the world?

We think of all that is expected of them—to curb inflation, prevent depression, get enough houses built, settle the factious universal training issue, make the Nation's moral decision about Europe's tragic displaced, decide which turn a critically sick world is to take—toward recovery or relapse.

WE SEE THEM standing out with a few other little groups in the procession of Congresses since 1789. Another reconstruction Congress is at the job of building peace, which is always so much harder than waging war. Will it do any better than did the stubborn, myopic, politics-ridden one of 1919? Or the passionate, vengeful one of 1867? Will the seeds of peace or of war be sown in the reconstruction it ordains? Will another Thaddeus Stevens achieve legislation of fear and hate? Will provincialism and political ambition bring about timid, negative subterfuges when bold, far-visioned action is needed?

We shudder momentarily at thought of the endless debate ahead—the demagogic archaisms that will provide a field day for cliche experts, the chauvinistic and petty utterances that will advertise our worst side to the world. Yet, that is part of our freedom—and there will be noble expressions too, which school children may some day learn.

We think sadly of the world cry for leaders. "There is paralysis in leadership from the Elbe to Washington," laments the London Economist. Our fellow Americans sigh, "If only we had some great figures as in the early days of the Republic!"

YET WE know that the leaders of those days appeared to their contemporaries much as ours do to us. They were ridiculed, berated, even physically attacked. The first Congress was widely criticized for log rolling and for catering to money interests. A later Congress passed the notorious Alien and Sedition Acts which ruthlessly invaded civil liberties. Yet—these Congresses at times acted with audacity and vision to strengthen the foundations of the Republic. Is there not a chance this one will take the steps that will strengthen foundations of freedom throughout the world?

After all, we tell ourselves, our legislators have the advantage of hindsight. They know of hate's bitter reconstruction fruits of the sixties and seventies. They know of the whirlwind of boom, bust and war that was reaped in part from congressional plantings of selfishness after the First World War. Nor is this Congress dominated by the venegeance and passion that prevailed in 1867. It is not ruled by the provincialism of 1919. One third of its members were abroad last summer. Most of them know that our oceans have become creeks.

We see these men and women, weighted with their loads of decision, sitting in Senate and House, watched by the world. Modern communications have brought them an audience of hundreds of millions—the hungry, the homeless, the suffering, the eager, the cynical and the scornful abroad; the anxious, the searching, the hopeful at home. Never has a Congress played to such an unseen "house." Surely it will be inspired to a great and self-forgetful performance.

Spelling Reform

On December 16, The Washington Post reported the findings of the President's Commission on Higher Education. The report urged that we make available to all two years of college education in the same way that high school education is now available.

However, while we plan to spend more time and money on education in the future, we should also plan improvements within the present educational framework. Surely it is foolish to spend billions of dollars for free college education while continuing to waste a year of our earlier education on spelling.

It has been almost 40 years since the last major attempt to reform our spelling took place. Many changes have occurred since that time and I believe that the present time is much more favorable to spelling reform. Our educational requirements are greater and the public is aware of this. There should be more support to spelling reform than in 1910. Similarly, spelling reform, as a means of making English easier for the foreigner, should appeal more strongly to the internationalminded generation of today than it did to the isolationist America of 1910.

Recently spelling reform activity has been revived in England and much experimental and propaganda work is now being done. Certainly it is time for America, also, to revive interest in this subject. Time and money devoted to it now might pay even bigger dividends than that which we will devote to college education in the future.

Russian Psychology

A Communication

IT IS discouraging to note how very few of our people are conscious of the profound differences which exist between Asiatic and European-American psychology. It is a matter of fundamental importance. An unprejudiced consideration of the subject will reveal the reasons for the suspiciousness and consequent indirectness characteristic of those reared under the age-old totalitarian system under which sovereignty is lodged in the hands of an individual or of a small group; where each individual must be prepared to defend himself against any charge, however fantastic, which may be brought against him. He is held to be guilty until he proves his innocence to the satisfaction of those in whose power he finds himself.

Opposed to that are the systems of recent historical development, especially in England and the United States, wherein sovereignty is diffused throughout the nation and an individual is held to possess certain inalienable rights, one of which is that he shall be held innocent of any charge until he has been proved guilty.

Under the one system the people exist for the state and under the other the state exists for the people. The former breeds fear, the latter confidence.

In a cooperative democracy, laws are enacted for the purpose of preserving the rights of the sovereign citizen. In the autocratic state, laws are promulgated with the object of enabling those who hold the power further to subject the people to their will. A profound difference when one considers it.

I CANNOT refrain from again quoting the observation of a Russian general who escaped from the Bolsheviks in 1918: "You Americans and Europeans always misunderstand Russia because you insist on judging Russia by European standards. We are not Europeans, we are Asiatics. Not more than 10 per cent of us are European" (which 10 per cent has long since been liquidated).

Our statesmen are puzzled by the attitude of the Russians toward international agreements and by their search for hidden intent in our declarations. The Russian must keep his masters, who hold the power of swift and fatal vengeance, convinced of his utter devotion to the regime. The European and especially the American must look to his people for approval.

Differences in the definition of words are of vital importance. Revolution, for instance, as pointed out by a Russian-American professor, means, for the subjects of any totalitarian regime, an attempted change from one autocratic form of government to another, while for us the word connotes the effort to gain freedom from oppression and to order one's life along cooperative lines. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Russian concept of democracy should not harmonize with ours.

The interpretation and binding qualities of a treaty are likewise differently conceived. The Anglo-Saxon concept of a sacrosanct instrument, the terms of which must be fulfilled to the letter regardless of consequences to either of the parties, is to the Asiatic mind unthinkable as opposed to the rule of reason. Since agreements cannot be perpetual, he argues, they naturally become void whenever they grow dangerously onerous for either of the parties or out of date, as held by the Japanese Special Ambassador Kurusu in regard to the Nine-Power Treaty just prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor.

A PRIVATE contract in this country is of value solely because its terms can be enforced by officers of the law. Many of us have apparently hypnotized ourselves into the belief that a contract between nations is in some way enforceable through a hypothetical power called world public opinion, whereas we should know that unless economic or military pressure can be resorted to a treaty becomes the traditional scrap of paper.

Pushing it along another step toward pure convenience, the teachings of Marx, Lenin and Stalin that agreements are not binding on Communists must not be overlooked. Yet some of our minor executives, both in and out of Government, mentally inelastic or blindly greedy, continue to honor (sic) their signatures after agreements, even by Asiatic standards, have lapsed. Naturally the party of the second part is pleased to get these windfalls and, supported in this country by fifth columnists and by visionary sentimentalists, clamors for more.

Under the Anglo-Saxon cooperative form of government, sovereignty and a consciousness of part ownership by each individual, however humble, permeate the entire political body. Each copartner raises his chin and demands his rights in no uncertain tone.

Under the totalitarian state, however, the individual must be on his guard unceasingly against possible informers. He lives in the shadow of an all-powerful police force. His natural reaction is to give evasive answers and to search for the hidden intent behind any statement made to him. He cannot understand freedom of speech. He has never experienced it.

A western Asiatic in search of information, when asked if he always repeated exactly what I said to him, replied quite frankly, "No, I say what I think you meant." The subjects of a totalitarian government must develop caution or perish, and they, not unnaturally, expect the same of others. Unrestrained power to punish or destroy is a potent inducement for the development of devious methods of expression. The real objective is never revealed at the outset.

OBVIOUSLY, the approach to any question by members of these opposing groups is from opposite poles. The one complains that his cards on the table are not taken at their face value because, to him, their genuineness should be obvious. The other, whose forebears since the age of Noah have been subjects of absolutist governments, has fear in his heart, fear of false witnesses who could compass his downfall. Incidentally, this natural urge for self-protection is largely accountable for his front or face, which is basically designed to discourage attack. From his personal experience and traditions he cannot comprehend the mental processes of the sovereign citizen. Hence, a stalemate.

The beginning of wisdom is to know that you don't know. Unfortunately, in this instance, this cannot be said of a large number of our statesmen, columnists commentators and Russian specialists, if one is to judge from their verbal emanations. If the basic causes of disease are unrecognized, a cure cannot be wrought by treating the symptoms and if a fundamental premise is overlooked, no conclusion can be sound.

It requires a distinct mental effort to readjust the mind to a realization of the fact that our own standards may not be the only conceivable ones; that each set of conditions—geographic, political and social—develops its own standards of conduct, which seem as unquestionably right to others as our do to us. As to our top officials, the cost to the Nation is very great each time this mental readjustment has to be repeated. Furthermore, no one should venture to speak or write on international relations until he has reconditioned his mind in this sense; otherwise his conclusions are sure to be faulty, to put it mildly. Waiving inconvenient premises in the grand manner of the courtroom or political forum can be a costly gesture when applied to international intercourse.

I FIRST became aware of the fundamental differences between Eastern and Western methods of reasoning, or, to be more precise, the different mental approach to human problems characteristic of people living under the two opposed systems of government, while I lived under the shadow of Abdul Hamid II, whose reign was a perfect example of autocracy at its worst. The tyranny of the Soviet regime in Russia bears a striking resemblance to that under Abdul Hamid, the only essential difference being the substitution of Marxian fanaticism for that of the Moslem.

It is well to remember in our present predicament that the Russians are the heirs and successors of the Mongolian Golden Horde—the Tartars of terrifying memory — who first conquered and then, after more than two centuries of rule, were absorbed by the Russians, leaving indelible traces of their racial characteristics, their culture and their mental processes.

Nor should it be forgotten that the members of the present governing group at Moscow have never come into intimate or protracted association with Europeans. Most of them not at all. How, then, can they be measured by our standards? It is not the similarities but the differences which must be recognized.

Some good people cry out that we should try to understand the Russians while they themselves have failed to take the first essential step toward it.

Without a full comprehension and a constant awareness of these facts, there can be no possibility of our dealing with this ever present threat to our interests, not to say to our very existence, with any hope of success. We shall constantly be taken by surprise, for which we must ourselves bear the blame.

Washington Calling

Wallace's Injury to Truman

THE FORCE of the blow that Henry Wallace has dealt to President Truman's chances for relection will become increasingly evident as time goes by. It may well be a mortal blow.

Childs

That is why the Old Guard of the Republican Party is so overjoyed. They are getting the feeling that they can sit tight and win without making any concessions to the independent voter. They feel that the prize will at long last fall to them no matter who the candidate or what the platform.

This is the profound disservice that Wallace has done to his country at a moment when the whole world is watching to see what America's course will be. He has done his best to make sure that there will be no real contest in the fall.

It is not that he wasn't warned, and well in advance, of the effect of a third-party move in 1948. A little behind-scenes history is revealing of Wallace's determination to go through with the gesture even though, like Samson, he might pull down the pillars of the very structure he professed to defend.

Several months ago a prominent New Deal Democrat was approached by Wallace and his followers with an interesting offer. They wanted this man, who has real grass-roots connections and influence, to become Wallace's political manager. What is more, they offered him a salary so large that at first he did not believe he had heard correctly.

IN THE discussion it became clear that Wallace intended to go through with the third-party bid. The offer was refused by the New Dealer, who phrased his refusal more or less as follows:

"If you go through with this, you will make reaction more or less inevitable. And in the process you will destroy yourself.

"I am going to stay in the Democratic Party and I am going to support Truman in 1948. I strongly urge you to do the same. In that way you will be able to influence the policies of the Administration and the nature of the campaign.

"Then if you still feel after the election that the President has let you down, you will have two courses ahead of you. You can start a third party with a clear conscience that you have paid a debt of loyalty. Or you can work for a liberalization of the Democratic Party and for your own nomination in 1952."

Wallace did not care for this advice. It went against the decision that had been taking shape in his mind. That decision has been constantly seconded by a little group of Communists and ardent fellow travelers who see in Wallace, with his cloudy idealism and his ready emotionalism, a heaven-sent opportunity

THROUGHOUT his career this has been Wallace's chief weakness. He has let himself be guided by some very curious people. That was true even when he was Vice President. In his character is a kind of passivity that makes him willing to follow those who are aggressively sure of the direction in which they want to go and who say so in loud, determined voices.

Wallace is not so much a politician as a scientist and philosopher. His contribution to science is not small. That is perhaps why, when he forces himself to become the stump orator, as he did in announcing his candidacy, the result is painful demagoguery.

It was significant that at least some of Wallace's friends wanted to hire a manager with practical political knowledge. There is no one who comes close to that description in his camp today.

Today Wallace is the captive of nimble-minded men who know the exact measure of his usefulness to them. During the past month he has been deserted by many former camp followers who came to a sudden realization of where the road was leading. They declined to follow their one time hero to that dead end.

This is not intended to minimize Wallace's influence. I think that influence is considerable. In a following column I want to analyze why that should be so.

A realist long familiar with the failures and successes of the Democratic Party put it this way: "We Democrats cannot win without the lunatic fringe, and Wallace will take it with him." In that statement there is an element of brutal truth. But it is more than that. It is the appeal of a man who seems to voice the hopes and fears of many people who are troubled and confused.

Hearings to Start Soon On Smith, America First

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) said yesterday the House Un-American Activities Committee probably will begin public hearings next week on Gerald L. K. Smith and his organization, America First.

Thomas told reporters the hearings will cover such things as Smith's finanical backing and the kind of pamphlets he issues.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Virtue's Blackmail

AT THE commencement of the most important congressional session in history, two men seem somehow larger than any others in the rather stunted throng. George C. Marshall and Arthur H. Vandenberg stand out, for the simple reason that the Secretary of State and the Michigan Senator now stand above politics. On them, in a quite liberal sense, depends the future of the European Recovery Program, and therefore the future of this country and of the free world.

In the gloomy forecasts of congressional action on the European Recovery Program, one major point has been overlooked. A public man who stands above politics enjoys a quite unusual power of what may be called virtuous blackmail over his colleagues down in the political mire. Two public men, both standing above politics, and acting together, can wield persuasions strong enough to reduce all the Speaker Martins, Representative Browns and Senator Wherrys to a condition of happy pliability. Disinterestedness is so rare a quality that it justly has its special perquisites.

The real question is not whether Marshall and Vandenberg (who must be the protagonists) are able to get the European Recovery Program through Congress. The question is, rather, whether they are prepared to employ these strong persuasions, which must be their chief weapon in dealing with those who will not listen to reason. The signs suggest that they are so prepared.

From those close to Secretary Marshall, authoritative word has come that he regards the fight ahead as the final showdown. If the European Recovery Program is even dangerously reduced or restricted, he has privately said that he would not be responsible for the consequences. The indications are that he means to tell the Senators and Representatives as much, and couch the information in the bluntest language. There is even a chance that this public warning will be unconventionally supplemented in a private manner.

IT IS Secretary Marshall's known conviction that a reduced or restricted ERP will defeat the aims of American foreign policy, and bring disaster to the world. There is no reason why he should remain silently in office, presiding over a disaster against which he has warned. And there is equally no reason why these rather pertinent facts should not be made to penetrate even the most impenetrable congressional skulls.

The effect of a such a move can be easily imagined. Perhaps Henry Agard Wallace, mooning among his fellow travelers, and the songbird Senator Glenn Taylor of Idaho may be exceptions. But there are no other American politicians, even among the most extreme isolationists, who would care to have Secretary Marshall pin upon them and their friends the public responsibility for disaster to the United States. If they fear any such result as that, they are likely to come around.

As for Senator Vandenberg, his position is more complex. Today, he stands above politics. But he is still, by origin and training, a leader of the Republican Party. His isolationist Republican colleagues are hard at work to make this conflict within Vandenberg operate in their favor. Not long ago, a semiformal depuation of several Senators, headed by Senator C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois, waited upon him for this purpose. It must have amused Vandenberg to have Col. Robert R. McCormick's protege asking him for terms, considering that Brooks' master long ago relegated Vandenberg to the rather numerous and distinguished Benedict Arnold class.

VANDENBERG made no terms with Brooks. But neither did he give him the rude answer he deserved. The reason was the special and extremely astute strategy Vandenberg has adopted for the big fight. On the one hand, in accordance with this strategy he will retain his independence of the Administration, in order to retain his authority in his party. But on the other hand, he will not yield on matters of substantive principle.

This is the explanation of his reference of the ERP administrative problem to the Brookings Institution. This also explains his shrewd change in the language of the bill, so that a continuing ERP is authorized without specifying the sum of 17 billion dollars for four years, which may be more or less than enough. These are sound moves, and indicative of independence as well. By such careful planning, Vandenberg hopes to secure another unanimous report of his committee: and then, on the Senate floor, will come the time to be unyielding.

If he is firm, his strength will hardly be less than Secretary Marshall's. He, too, believes that the future of the country and the world depends upon the outcome; he can hardly be less than firm, considering his character.

Firmness probably will be required. There is every indication that Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio will at last come to an open breach with his coleader on this great issue, which has stirred a renewed surge of the old isolationism in the Taft bosom. A great many Republicans would like to follow Taft. But the rank and file are beginning to feel healthy doubts about the election outcome. They will hardly dare to flock to the Taft standard if this means a great fight within the party, and acceptance of the isolationist tag from Vandenberg's own hands. If this occurs, it will not be the first time the world has had reason to be grateful for the blackmail of virtue.

To our many new friends . . . many thanks!

Though we are new neighbors of yours, you've already made us feel like old friends. Our Washington office was opened only last July, yet last summer, thousands of vacationists from here and farther south enjoyed our cruises through Canada's scenic inland waterways . . . from Niagara to the Saguenay and on the Great Lakes.

Many others were guests at our company owned and operated hotels, the Manoir Richelieu, Murray Bay, Hotel Tadoussac, Tadoussac, P. Q. and the Thousand Islands Club, Wellesley Island, New York.

Our sincere thanks to those who were with us and to the tourist agents and transportation lines who worked with us. We consider your cooperation one of our most invaluable assets.

Our aim for 1948, as for always, is to serve you efficiently and faithfully. Our hope is that we may continue to please our growing list of friends.

A Real Nice Clambake

'Carousel' Opens At the National

By Richard L. Coe

(Reprinted from yesterday's final edition)

A CROWDED NATIONAL last night welcomed "Carousel," a musical play of which the American theater is justly proud.

The production is a good one and though only two of the original cast remain, most of these people played their roles many months of the long Broadway run. It is certainly an evening no one will want to miss.

Nearly three years have gone by since that April night when Rodgers and Hammerstein unveiled their successor to their fabulous "Oklahoma!" Unfortunately, inevitable comparisons have been made; the two are quite different fundamentally and the pristine light-heartedness of the first is not the essential quality of its successor.

"Carousel," for all its cheerful scenes and characters, is a sentimental, often moving, fantasy. It has been adapted with consummate skill by Hammerstein from Ferenc Molnar's play, "Liliom." The setting, no longer Budapest, is New England of the '70's. But the charm of "Liliom" remains.

Julie's and Billy's unspoken love for each other is the story. Just why Julie should love the swaggering barker of the carousel, she doesn't know. But she does know she loves him. And when he dies a disgraceful death, she remains true to her dreams of him; she tells their child loving stories of her father, though all the village taunts young Louise about her worthless dad. In a half-way heaven, the repentant Billy is given one day on earth to redeem himself; if he does, he may even be allowed to remain in Heaven. Billy's kindly heart eventually makes a good deed possible—though only a very small good deed, it's the best that's in him.

A Rare Score

Such, you see, is a far cry from the frontier gayety of "Oklahoma!" But the fusion of the two men's music and story is uncommonly fine.

Rodgers' score couldn't be better. The lovely waltz he wrote for the carousel's swirling, the happy-hearted "This Was a Real Nice Clambake," "When I Marry Mr. Snow," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over" and "If I Loved You" are grandly fitting and expert examples of composition.

"Carousel" benefits, too, from Rouben Mamoulian's imaginative staging. His stage at all times makes a fascinating picture of life and color. Agnes de Mille's dances, as in "Oklahoma!" and "Brigadoon," play that integral part of the story which has had so great an influence on our theater.

As Julie, Iva Withers is splendid. In this role, which Eva Le Gallienne played so memorably in the original play, Miss Withers creates an appealing character without overdoing it. She sings prettily and you couldn't ask for a better Julie.

I wish I could say that last night's performance was perfect, but it wasn't. On a Saturday night last spring I saw the same company give a far finer performance in New York. While last night's was probably just one of those things that will happen—and it was, I assure you, at least a workmanlike performance—it lacked the lift and sparkle that is essential to Rodgers' beautiful score.

And it is a most demanding score—particularly for Billy, whose soliloquy at the end of the first act is a tremendous chore for one singer to handle eight times a week. Henry Michel, who looks and acts the part splendidly, certainly sang it thrillingly in New York. But last night his rich tones were ragged in some of those telling top notes. Gloria Elwood's Carrie is pert enough, not to say coy, but her voice has hardly the lyric quality for her early numbers.

Jane McGowan's Nettie does "June" in full spirit and Eric Mattson's Enoch Snow (the original) is probably the best in the company. He uses a good voice well.

The chorus' singing was effective, but there was a listlessness that should be overcome if this property is to enjoy the long life of "Oklahoma!" None other than radio's Joseph Littau conducted the orchestra, but there were some gaffes in the pit which often made the going pretty thin.

I go into all this at some length because "Carousel" remains one of America's finest theatrical achievements and quite possibly last night's performance was, as I've said, just one of those things. And for all that, "Carousel" is a show you'll treasure a long time.

"CAROUSEL." The Theatre Guild presents the musical play in two acts and nine scenes. Book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein 2d, music by Richard Rodgers. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Settings by Jo Mielziner. Costumes by Miles White. Dances directed by Agnes de Mille. Orchestra directed by Joseph Littau. Story adapted by Benjamin F. Glazer from Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom." D. C. Criminal In Baltimore Escape Plot

A notorious Washington criminal was one of several convicts in special confinement yesterday at the Maryland Penitentiary at Baltimore following discovery of what is believed to have been an escape plot.

He is Bernard F. Beasley, 32, alias James Williams, many-time inmate of Lorton, who formerly lived at 621 3½ st. ne. He has a record of six convictions, four of them in the District.

Col. Edwin T. Swensen, warden of the Maryland Penitentiary, said discovery of a pistol smuggled into the prison and concealed under a pile of lumber led authorities to believe that a plotted escape of several dangerous inmates had been foiled.

"We are convinced," said Col. Swenson, "that a plot of considerable proportions has been uncovered, and that there would have been some widows around here but for the action of the guards in cracking down."

The weapon, a German automatic pistol, was found in the prison woodworking shop, where furniture is manufactured.

Colonel Swenson said Beasley acted as a "go-between" for the prisoners planning the break, but was not a member of the group. The inmates forl whom the weapon was intended, along with Beasley, have been placed in special detention pending a full investigation, he said.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells and the FBI are participating in the inquiry.

The warden said Beasley had a woman visitor who talked to him on Saturday and again on Sunday in the visitors' room. The pistol was found by two guards Sunday night.

Prince Georges County police arrested Beasley for holdup and robbery in 1946. He received a 10-year sentence in the Maryland Penitentiary. He escaped from the sheriff's detention room and was at liberty for about a year. When picked up in New York City 15 years were added to his sentence.

Duties Stressed

22 Become Citizens in Court Here

Citizenship entails duties as well as rights, Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts told 22 newly naturalized citizens in District Court ceremonies yesterday.

"From the Government they may expect protection," Letts said, "and to this Government they owe allegiance."

Frederick A. Ballard, member of the District Bar Association, in a brief address told the group: "The American dream has not yet been fully realized, but the important part is that the majority of our citizens recognize we are on our way to a solution of problems of bigotry, poverty and racial prejudice."

No action was taken on the final papers of the former Elizabeth R. Rogers, who gave up her citizenship in 1915 when she married a prince of the House of Hesse. Officials were working on additional data.

Those who received their final papers yesterday and their former nationality were: Kurt A. Ex-British Aide Reported Missing

Pittsburgh, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Alexander M. Galbreath, former acting British consul here, has been missing for six days, police disclosed today.

His two daughters told Superintendent of Police Harvey Scott that their father walked out of his office in a downtown office building December 31 and has not been heard from since.

The 50-year-old career diplomat received notice from the British Foreign Office only a few hours before his disappearance that he was to be "released" from duty here effective January 1.

One of his daughters, Jean Galbreath, who served as his secretary, said her father had been in ill health for the past two years.

J. S. McAuliffe Named County Detective Chief

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Capt. James S. McAuliffe, 19-year veteran of the Montgomery County police force, yesterday was named inspector in command of the county detective bureau by Police Chief Charles M. Orme.

McAuliffe

The 11-man detective bureau has been without a chief since December 4, when its previous head, Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, was retired for physical disability.

Named to succeed McAuliffe as commander of the Bethesda substation with the rank of acting captain was Lieut. Ernest Thompson, who is currently second in command there.

The promotions, along with six others, three transfers and one appointment, will become effective on Saturday.

Dayhoff Advanced

Sergt. Marion Dayhoff was advanced to acting lieutenant and second in command at police headquarters in Rockville and Lieut. Charles Barnes, who currently holds that post, was ordered transferred to Bethesda.

Corpl. Wilson Payne was promoted to acting sergeant in place of Dayhoff and Pvt. Ralph Offutt to corporal succeeding Payne. Pvt. William Broschart was promoted to corporal in place of Corpl. Jesse B. Day, who was transferred to the detective bureau.

Detective Corpl. William B. Whalen was promoted to detective sergeant, and Detective Corpl. Earl U. Stearn, in charge of the identification bureau, was advanced to the rank of detective sergeant.

Appointed as a patrolman was Paul O. Federline, a Maryland State trooper, and transferred from Bethesda to Rockville was Pvt. Walter C. Heflin.

McAuliffe Promoted in 1944

Captain McAuliffe, who is 41 and lives at 320 High st., Chevy Chase, Md., was promoted from sergeant to captain in July of 1944. As a captain he draws a salary of $4000 annually, and in his new post will earn $4300.

Chief Orme also disclosed he had requested the county commissioners to approve his proposed "modernization" of the "antiquated" police manual.

At present, he said, the manual includes no regulations governing the detective bureau and he has recommended 29 specific points on that score. He said he had also recommended that privates be compelled to wait three years before being eligible for promotion, and all other ranks two years.

Group to Discuss Juvenile Crime In Falls Church

Falls Church Mayor Fenner Hazelgrove will represent the town council at a meeting tonight to discuss the town's mounting juvenile vandalism and delinquency.

The meeting, to be held at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Mason Barr, 49 Ravenwood lane, is open to local and county police, school principals and parents.

Fairfax County police are investigating numerous acts of vandalism, including damage to several automobiles, attributed to a group of about 25 teen-agers on New Year's eve.

Columbia Tech's GIs to Ask Probe of Dispute

GI students of Columbia Technical Institute will meet tonight to ask for a congressional investigation of the school's tuition-contract difficulties with Veterans Administration.

The meeting of the 800 veteran-students, scheduled for 8 p. m. at the District Veterans Center, Pennsylvania ave. at 14th st. nw., was called by the Gis' five-man steering committee.

The committee will recommend asking the House Veterans Committee to investigate the so-called compromise settlement of the VA-Columbia Tech dispute, whereby some 400 GI day-students were permitted to resume their classes Monday, and an equal number of night GI students was frozen out.

May Spark General Probe

The request may well spark a congressional probe into the overall relationship of privately owned schools, to GI students. Several members of the House Veterans Committee are known to be interested in finding out (1) if GI students in private, commercially operated schools are getting full educational value for Uncle Sam's money and (2) if the operators of such schools are making a "fair and reasonable" return, as required by the law.

Several schools have complained they are losing money on GI students under regulations set up by Veterans' Administration. On the other hand, some VA officials and some veterans' organization leaders feel that some of the non-accredited, commercial schools are making a good thing of the large crop of GI students.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.), chairman of the House Veterans' Committee, said last night that her committee intended to look into the matter during the current session of Congress.

The tuition contract between VA and Columbia Tech ran out December 27. The local VA office, citing national regulations, asked for a financial statement for the past year, but the school refused, and announced it would not accept any GI students for the new term, which began Monday.

In the eleventh hour, an agreement was reached by VA and Columbia Tech whereby 400 day students were permitted to continue their studies, under the old rates, through mid-June. After that, no more GI students are to be trained under Federal subsidy, nor are any new GI students to enroll in the school. Classes for night GI students were discontinued.

A majority of the 400 night GI students showed up Monday night for classes at the school, 1239 Vermont ave. nw., and were told by school officials they could continue to attend classes for several more days, pending new negotiations with VA this week.

Thrill Kids Held in Vandalism

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 6 (AP).—Four 'teen-age youths were free under bonds ranging up to $3000 tonight on charges of vandalism, while their socially prominent parents arranged restitution for "thrill" wrecking of more than a score of automobiles.

William Schley Howard, former Congressman, announced he had been retained to defend Danny Payne, 19-year-old assistant scoutmaster and self-identified leader of the "thrill kids."

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins listed the four as Payne, Leonard Haas, jr., 16; Ed Evans, 17, and Harold Ferst, 17. All are charged with malicious mischief and vandalism.

Evans is the son of Dr. John E. Evans, pastor of the North Decatur Baptist Church. Haas is the son of a leading Atlanta clubwoman, Ferst is the son of a manufacturer, and Payne the son of a railroad dispatcher.

Chief Jenkins said Payne and a fifth youth, booked as Ulysses S. Seal, jr., were accused of larceny from an auto after stolen auto accessories were found in the garages of their homes. Seal was not involved in the auto-wrecking.

The police chief said the four youths had signed a joint statement in which they told the following story:

The four toured Atlanta's swank, Northeast residential section shortly after 1 a. m. Sunday. In rapid succession, Payne released the brakes on 14 automobiles. They rolled downhill. One smashed into a garage, another into a stone well, a third into a utility pole. One overturned. Another catapulted into a ravine. Two crashed other parked cars.

Sunday night, the group took another "thrill tour," wrecking at least four more cars.

Aroused citizens deluged police with complaints and advice. Fifteen detectives and patrolmen questioned 200 youths, finally charged the four with vandalism.

Six Youths 'Lectured' In School Dynamiting

Geneva, Ala., Jan. 6 (AP).—Six teen-age high school youths arrested in connection with the Christmas Eve dynamiting of the Geneva High School building have been let off with a stiff lecture, Sheriff W. P. Register said today.

Register said the bays, ranging in age from 14 to 20, were members of well-known Geneva families.

"They told us they did the thing as a sort of prank, and had no intention of actually causing any damage," the sheriff said.

Register said all windows in the 20-room structure were shattered by the blast and reopening of school after the holidays was delayed.

2d Gasoline Crisis Unlikely, D. C. Assured

The District was assured yesterday that another crisis in municipal gasoline supplies is not likely.

At the same time, the Commissioners approved a meeting for 10 a. m. Monday with local heads of major fuel oil and kerosene companies to discuss the general situation regarding these supplies.

Twice this fall and winter the District has plumbed the bottom of its municipal gasoline supplies. On Monday, Roland M. Brennan, District purchasing officer, sent a letter to E. M. Callis, president of the Petrol Corp., which supplies the District Government with its gasoline under a contract, expiring February 29.

Brennan wrote that it was necessary for his office to have a guarantee of a continuing supply of gasoline for Washington's important municipal services. He asked that Callis reply by telegram whether the Petrol Corp. could guarantee to fill municipal needs here, between 45,000 and 50,000 gallons a week.

Brennan received this telegram yesterday from Callis:

"Our supply difficulties last 90 days not due to shortage of products, but inability to procure tanker transportation. We have tanker now en route to Port Arthur, Tex., for a full load gasoline. Same should arrive Baltimore by January 15. After receipt of same, we anticipate no further supply difficulties under this contract. Be assured that we are doing everything physically possible to meet your requirements."

Brennan said the bargeload of gasoline, 250,000 gallons of it, which started here by water Saturday from Baltimore still had not arrived yesterday.

Pending arrival of the barge shipment, the Petrol Corp. has sent supplies here by truck. Brennan said no emergency exists at present.

On the subject of fuel oil and kerosene supplies for the Washington public, the Commissioners yesterday approved the proposal of J. Hhomas Kennedy, District superintendent of weights, measures and markets, that they meet at 10 a. m. Monday with the local heads of 12 to 15 companies distributing such supplies.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS
Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

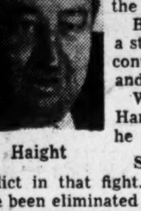
Heard On Radio

A Haight Solution For Louis, Walcott

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

I'M A SUCKER for quiz programs on the radio. I was listening to "Winner Take All," (WTOP), yesterday when up came a contestant—named Wright, out in Hollywood—with a sports angle that was a honey and is worth passing along.



Haight

I don't know the workings of Brother Wright's mind. He was half way between an electric icebox and a year's supply of something or other when he said, "I'll bet I know something that would have saved all that embarrassment about the decision in the Louis-Walcott fight."

Before Wright could answer, the MC switched to a station break, probably to determine that what the contestant was going to say about the fight was clean and above board.

When action was resumed (on the playing field, as Harry Wismer would say), Wright said his piece and he was right down the alley in my book.

SAID HE: "There was a lot of argument about the verdict in that fight. This could have been eliminated if the referee at the end of each round had pointed to the fighter who was ahead at the time—not the winner of that particular round, but the man in the lead on all rounds up to that point. This not only would let the fans know—and that goes for the radio listeners and television lookers—but also would inform the fighters, giving the one in front a chance to know how he stood and the other a chance to fight his way back."

Povich on Vacation

And the show went on.

Of course, in New York and most fight centers, there are two judges as well as the referee voting. Some system could be worked out, through lights or placards, to keep everybody up to the minute. Had this been done at the Louis-Walcott battle, I believe there would have been little confusion when Louis was declared the winner.

FANS ARE informed as to the positions of race horses and are flashed the score at baseball, hockey, basketball, etc. There's no reason why they shouldn't know the round-by-round score of a fight, especially at present-day prices.

If Brother Wright had been allowed to further reform sports decisions, I'm sure he would have something to say about ties in football. (No, I didn't play any football pool.)

Those two all-even endings of important bowl games were disappointing to me as well as every football fan I've talked to since.

Everybody concerned—that goes for coaches, players, alumni, waterboys—deserves to see a winner, even if it is the wrong team.

THE ELIMINATION of football ties is on the way. The National Football League had a new rule in effect during the play-off of the Eagles and Cardinals for the loop title. If they had finished even-Stephen during the regulation time, it would have been "sudden death" thereafter with the first team to score being the winner.

At its meeting in New York coming up, the NFL may vote to eliminate ties. At least, the Chicago Bears will sponsor a change in rules to make "sudden death" apply to all games. The rule, as set up to be presented to the rules committee, also would eliminate the point-after-touchdown.

I believe the "point" should stay. It is as much a part of the game to me as the goal posts. However, If I had to choose between losing the thrill of seeing the try for point and watching the play-off of a tie game—take the point away.

But I guess I'm just an old-timer, because I'm in favor of bringing back the center jump in basketball, too.

Louis Fight To Be Held In New York

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Twentieth Century Sporting Club announced that it had "practically closed" with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for a title bout here in June and it seemed virtually certain tonight that Jersey Joe Walcott would be his opponent again.

While no opponent was named specifically, Sol Strauss, acting director of the club in the absence of the ailing skipper, Mike Jacobs, broadly hinted that it would be Walcott.

Strauss, who met with Louis, his manager, Marshall Miles, and Truman Gibson, Chicago attorney and friend of Louis, said that the club had been in conference with Walcott's manager, Joe Webster, and Promoter Felix Bocchicchio who has first call on Walcott's services.

The club said that there will be "further discussions with the Walcott people."

There had been signs of an estrangement between Strauss and the Walcott brain trust ever since Walcott said he wanted at least 30 per cent for a return go with the champion. But Strauss indicated that the breach had been almost healed by saying that "my feelings are friendly" toward the Walcott men.

Louis will get 40 per cent for his June fight as against the 45 he received for the first Walcott fight. Strauss didn't say what the "unknown" challenger will receive but there was a strong possibility that Walcott might get something between the 20 per cent Strauss had offered and the 30 per cent he demands. Walcott received 15 per cent for the December fight.

Central Wins Opener, 44-32

Led by newcomer Al Stringer and veteran Jimmy Pantos, Central's Vikings opened their 1948 basketball season with a 44-32 win over Chamberlain Vocational High's Volts yesterday at Central.

Stringer, who moved to Washington from Missouri last summer, pumped in 14 points and Pantos 12 to take scoring honors for Central.

Writers Pick Michigan By 2-1 Vote Over Irish

By John Chandler

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Nation's sports writers gave the final answer today to the raging controversy on relative strength of the Notre Dame and Michigan football teams, and it was the Wolverines over the Irish by almost two to one—including those who saw both powerhouses perform.

Many of the 357 sports editors and football writers from coast to coast who participated in the special Associated Press poll had seen one or the other team, some had seen neither, and 54 declared they had watched both clubs in one or more games.

In the over-all total, 226 writers in 48 States and the District of Columbia picked Michigan, 119 balloted for Notre Dame, and 12 called it a draw.

Opinion of the 54 writers who saw both in action last fall coincided at almost the same ratio, with 33 giving the nod to Michigan, 17 to Notre Dame, and four voting for a tie.

USC Disagrees

Los Angeles, Jan. 6 (AP).—It may be Michigan, two to one, for the sportswriters, but among the wrecks who know the players best, it's Notre Dame, nearly three to one.

That's the margin by which the Southern California skuad—roundly shellacked by both—favors the Irish.

Doesn't Supersede Weekly

This postseason poll, conducted by the Associated Press by popular demand after Michigan thumped Southern California in the Rose Bowl, 49-0, doesn't supersede the weekly AP poll held during the regular season.

The final poll, released December 8, gave Notre Dame 1410 points for first place, with Michigan 1289 for second. The Irish had just polished off Southern California, 38-7.

In that poll, 146 writers took part, while the 357 who sent in ballots for the postseason showdown is the largest ever to take part in such an AP voting. In the regular season's final poll, Notre Dame had 107 first-place votes and Michigan 25.

Of the 54 scribes who saw both teams play, most of those on the Notre Dame bandwagon said the great Irish line, plus Johnny Lujack, gave Coach Frank Leahy's club superiority.

Irish Line Called Greatest

"Notre Dame had the greatest line in the country, plus the greatest single back in Lujack," said Curley Grieve of the San Francisco Examiner.

Jim Levandusky of the Waukegan (Ill.) News-Sun contended "Michigan's offensive line would never budge that Irish forward wall."

Among the others who saw both teams play were Paul Zimmerman, Los Angeles Times, who picked Michigan "on greater speed and elusiveness in the backfield," and Dick Anderson, Evansville (Ind.) Press, who declared "Michigan probably had the greatest aggregation of football players ever assembled on one college campus."

Singh Meets Lee In Mat Feature

Nanjo Singh will test his Cobra Clutch on Don Lee, Pacific Coast title claimant, in the feature one-hour time limit wrestling match at Turner's Arena tonight.

Supporting bouts have Billy Darnell meeting Ivan Mikeloff, Tony Coscenza and Ace Freeman pairing against Fred Corona and Pat Wesh, and Tony Sinatra facing Joe Kamaroff.

Outcome Secondary . . .

Leahy Praises Wolverines; Sorry Teams Didn't Meet

By Jerry Liska

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 6 (AP).—Football Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame praised Michigan unstintingly today in commenting on the Associated Press poll which designated the Rose Bowl Champion Wolverines as a 2 to 1 national choice over the also-unbeaten Irish, but had this meaningful afterthought:

"Isn't it a shame that the two teams couldn't have met—as a treat, say, for 85,000 fans in Michigan Stadium who would see the football game of the century. The outcome even might prove secondary."

If there was any chagrin over the reversed decision by the Nation's sportswriters, who last December 8 voted Notre Dame the top team and Michigan second, soft-spoken Leahy kept it buried.

"This is a good opportunity to congratulate Coach Fritz Crisler on his wonderful team and a really marvelous job from every conceivable angle," said Leahy. "Michigan had splended material and excellent school spirit which represents gridiron strength in any season and in any league."

Asked his opinion of the relative merits of Michigan and Notre Dame, Leahy diplomatically replied:

"It doesn't make any difference whether Michigan or Notre Dame won the poll. I guess all the Notre Dame fans will look upon the Fighting Irish as the No. 1 team and all the Michigan fans will look upon the Wolverines as the No. 1 team."

Leahy declined comment on the likely outcome if Notre Dame again met Southern California, the mutual opponent whose 49-0 pasting by Michigan last Thursday precipitated the landslide vote for the Wolverines. Notre Dame defeated Southern California, 38-7, on December 6.

Nor would Leahy speculate on whether the Irish could have matched Michigan's seven touchdowns against Southern California if they had turned All-American Quarterback Johnny Lujack loose on a passing attack during the last 40 minutes in which not a Notre Dame aeiral was tossed against the Trojans.

Leahy was to leave today for New York to attend the National Collegiate Athletic Association Coaches' meeting in New York.

Concerning constant rumors that he may resign momentarily to accept a more lucrative position with the Los Angeles Dons or some other professional team, Leahy asserted: "I'll be struggling here next fall."

Leahy will return from New York in time for the Notre Dame football banquet next Monday night at which Tom Hamilton of Navy and George Munger of Pennsylvania will be among the speakers.

Leahy, who missed his train, made public the text of a telegram he sent Crisler. It said:

"Congratulations to you and your squad on your amazing football achievements of 1947. I regret that I did not have the opportunity of seeing your great team in action. Regards."

Rickey Acquires Brooklyn Football Dodgers; Will "Go at It Vigorously"

ALL TANGLED UP—All tied up in a scramble for the basketball are three Coolidge and two St. John's players during yesterday's game at Coolidge gym. Surrounding an unidentified St. John's player are (left to right) Rod Hegarty (No. 6) of Coolidge, Jack George of St. John's and Bobby Rohr and Ray Dantuono (No. 9) of Coolidge. Though outnumbered on this play, the Johnnies managed to eke out a 48-47 victory

Gilmer Signs? It's All News To Redskins

From Washington to Long Beach, Calif., the Washington Redskins yesterday denied having signed Harry Gilmer, passing star of Alabama, to a 1948 contract.

Business Manager Dick McCann said: "it's all news to me" when asked about a United Press report that Gilmer, bonus draft choice of the 'Skins, had signed a 5-year-contract for $80,000.

In Long Beach, Owner George Marshall called the terms "ridiculous" and added: "We're not running a WPA project!"

"We've been trying to sign Gilmer," Marshall said, "but so far as I know we haven't done so."

Coach Turk Edwards, who spent almost a week in Alabama's training camp befor the Sugar Bowl game, brushed aside queries with a curt "no comment."

In reply to a query about the Press Press report that the Redskins had sold their draft rights to Mississippi's Charley Conerly to the New York Giants, McCann had a spirited "absolutely false as far as I know."

"Where all this fancy news is coming from, I don't know," said McCann. "Perhaps the same reporter who covered the transfer of the Brooklyn football Dodger management to Branch Rickey in New York yesterday was given an earful by Rickey. In that case, I could only suggest that Mr. Rickey confine himself to news releases on the Dodgers. He'll need 'em."

There Will Be No Williams Holdout; His Contract O. K.

Boston, Jan. 6 (AP).—Ted Williams, the American League's top slugger, today gave General Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox double assurances that he is satisfied with his 1948 salary terms.

Shortly after Cronin received that telegram, Ted called him on the phone.

"I'm feeling fine," Williams reported. "I've been fishhing for pike through the ice. I'm enthusiastic about the coming season and you can tell Joe McCarthy I'm determined to duplicate my 1947 performances."

Cronin, in line with the club's policy, refused to disclose the salary he discussed with the Splendid Sprinter. But the latter is reputed to have drawn down around $70,000 last season.

And it can be taken for granted that Owner Tom Yawkey was in the mood to reward Williams for his prodigious batting feats with a generous salary boost that may make him the highest paid star in baseball history.

During the past season, Williams topped the American League's batters with a .343 average. He clouted 32 home runs, scored 125 runs, drove in 114 and drew 161 bases on balls.

Right-Hander Joe Dobson, the Bosox's ace moundsman, also has agreed to his 1948 terms and contracts have been signed by Catchers Birdie Tebbetts and Boris Martin, drafted from the Toledo American Association Club, and Southpaw Mickey Harris during their recent Fenway Park visits.

Cronin now is preparing the rest of the player contracts and expects to have them in the mails shortly.

Trinidad Wins Boys Crown

The Trinidad Boys Club and the Alexandria Club captured titles in the Boys Club of Washington Christmas Basketball Tournament final round yesterday in the Eastern Branch gym.

Trinidad's 90-pounders, recent winners of the Recreation Department tournament, continued their unbeaten record by downing the Eastern Branch Quins, 33-26. Trinidad has now won 10 straight games this season without defeat. John Bock tallied 13 for the winners and Al Herndon scored the same number for Eastern.

Alexandria took the measure of Eastern, 36-23, in the title game of the 120-pound division. Shorty Shanholtz of Alexandria was high man for his team with 10 points and Dave Keyes of the losers also scored 10.

In tonight's final games, Alexandria meets Georgetown's 105-pounders at 6:15; the Celtics face Alexandria in the 135-pound title game at 7:30, and Merrick plays Eastern in the 150-pound final at 8:30.

Trinidad-Georgetown Play Before Caps Tilt

The Trinidad Boys Club will face the Georgetown Grays in a 90-pound basketball game before the Washington Caps and Philadelphia Warriors play Saturday night at Uline Arena. The game will begin at 7:30 p. m., and Joe Fulks, scoring star of the Warriors, will present a trophy donated by Mike Uline to the winning team.

Berwyn Boys Club Gridders Receive Cup

Berwyn, champion of the Prince George's County Boys' Club football league, will receive a trophy at a victory banquet in its honor tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. at the Prince George's County Golf and Country Club.

Individual players will be awarded gold footballs by the Kiwanis Club which is sponsoring the affair. Guest speakers will include Vic Turyn, Lu Gambino, Andy Farkas and Jim Castiglia.

Grant to Umpire Riggs Match Here

J. Moscoe Grant, for 25 years an outstanding tennis figure locally and an official in the National Championships at Forest Hills, Long Island, for the past seven years, will umpire the match involving World Pro Champion Bobby Riggs and Contender Jack Kramer at Uline Arena, January 22.

Grant will be assisted by Capt. Edwin M. Becker, formerly in charge of the Davis Cup squad of his area.

The towering and aggressive Kramer has created a sensation on this world championship tour by sweeping three matches in a row from Riggs and leads him, 4-3, following Monday's match in Buffalo.

Philly Joins Bidding For '56 Olympic Games

Philadelphia, Jan. 6 (AP).—Philadelphia today joined Detroit, Minneapolis, and Los Angeles in bidding for the 1956 Olympic Games.

The city's formal invitation was presented to the United States Olympic Association in New York by a committee headed by Arthur C. Kaufman, executive head of Gimble Brothers Department Store.

The National Olympic Association, working on the assumption that the games will come to this country in 1956, is expected to designate the host city within a few weeks. Finland has been awarded the 1952 games while London has the 1948 Olympiad.

Di Mag Signs For $70,000; He's Happy

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP).—A beaming, buoyant Joe DiMaggio signed a new Yankee contract today believed to guarantee him approximately $70,000 for the 1948 season and to place him among a handful of the highest paid ball players in the history of the game.

The batting and fielding star of the World Champions penned his name to the rich pact shortly before noon today after having reached a quick agreement with General Manager George Weiss. He had been reported asking $75,000, the sum paid Ted Williams last year by the Boston Red Sox.

Although neither DiMaggio nor Weiss would name the exact sum to be paid the American League's most valuable player, Weiss conceded that it "approached" Williams' salary.

In each of his last three playing seasons—1942, '46 and '47—DiMaggio received $43,750, he disclosed.

IF $70,000 is the correct figure on Joe's new contract, he automatically becomes the third highest paid player in baseball today and fifth highest in the annals of the game. He will be topped in the coming season only by Bobby Feller, Cleveland mound ace, who banked in the neighborhood of $87,000 last year, and by Williams with his $75,000.

Hank Greenberg, now a free agent, was reported to have been paid $80,000 by the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, and the mighty Babe Ruth received a similar sum from the Yankees at the peak of his careeer in '30 and '31. Hal Newhouser, Detroit pitcher, was supposed to have been paid $55,000 last year, and Johnny Mize, New York Giants first baseman, $51,000.

DiMaggio, who hit .315 last season, with 20 home runs, and led all regular outfielders with a fielding mark of .997, said he was "very happy" over his new pay check and described Weiss, his benefactor, as the "most pleasant general manager I've ever talked to."

Capitols Face A Busy Week

The Washington Capitols are pointing for three major Basketball Association of America victories in four nights over the week end.

The local pros invade St. Louis to battle the Bombers tomorrow night, return to Uline Arena against the Philadelphia Warriors Saturday at 8:30 p. m., and meet the Celtics in Boston Sunday night.

The Caps have split four games with the Bombers, 80-66 conquerors of the Warriors in St. Louis last Sunday. The Caps won decisively over the Bombers in St. Louis last Christmas night, 73-56, and hope to repeat that performance tomorrow.

However, most interest is centered around Saturday night's invasion of the great Joe Fulks and his Warriors, who will be making their last regularly scheduled 1947-48 appearance at Uline's.

Fulks is credited with 467 points in 21 games. He has registered 81 points—or an average of 27 per game—in three starts against Washington, and sparked them to their first victory in eight games against the Caps in Philadelphia last Friday night. He contributed 30 points toward their 69-60 victory.

His Action Overshadows Durocher's Appearance

By Jack Hand

Brooklyn, Jan. 6 (AP).—Branch Rickey entered the pro football business today when he announced the Brooklyn Baseball Club has acquired the Dodger franhcise in the All-America conference.

The move overshadowed the first Flatbush appearance of Manager Leo Durocher since his year of exile from baseball.

The president of the Brooklyn club said the Dodgers would operate the football team next season if necessary and would "go at it vigorously."

Rickey admitted the possibility of a sale to interested parties before the grid season when he said, "I understand that there are people of responsible caliber who are interested in operating the franchise. If they can guarantee continued football in Brooklyn and prove acceptable to the league, I will give them one year rent free."

Going After a Coach

In the absence of any definite offer, Rickey said he was going ahead immediately with a search for a football coach.

Turning to the crowd of writers who jammed his office he said, "I am appointing you as a committee of the whole to agree on a coach. If you can agree on one man, I give you my word we will hire him."

Some 17 different condidates were proposed in the confusion.

Rickey was a little vague about the process by which the ball club picked up the franchise. He said he had not decided whether to incorporate separately or let the business be handled by the baseball club.

Although Bill Cox, former president of the grid Dodgers, will have no active part in the new organization, Rickey said he was relying on "anybody who can help us line up talent." That presumably meant Cox.

Not Hot on Gilmer

All players belonging to the Dodgers last year automatically become the property of the new owners. Rickey has his scouts looking for new talent.

Asked if he had made an offer to Alabama's Harry Gilmer when he attended the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans, Rickey replied: "I understand he already has been signed by Washington." He brushed off questions about Mississippi's Charley Conerly by saying "he's on our draft list."

The double-header press conference then turned its attention to Durocher—the new Durocher—subdued in tone but dapper as ever in a neat gray suit.

"What are you going to do about Jackie Robinson?" was the first question to Leo.

"I only saw him play three games outside of the world series," Durocher replied. "I do think he is a better second baseman than a first baseman but that doesn't mean that he will play second base. As Eddie Stanky says 'the place to decide that is on the ball field.'"

As for first base, Durocher added, "that situation will take care of itself. Right now Robinson is my first baseman. Then we'll have Preston Ward from Pueblo and Kevin Connors from Mobile, both good prospects, they tell me."

Pitchers listed as "sure to be with the club" by Leo were Ralph Branca, Joe Hatten, Hugh Casey, Rex Barney, Preacher Roe and Harry Taylor, if his arm is all right.

Rickey added a discouraging report on the Taylor situation, quoting a Johns Hopkins' surgeon as saying the young right hander has only a 50-50 chance of playing big league ball in 1948.

Durocher, as usual, shied away from predictions with the routine, "we'll finish among the first eight."

What Soccer Needs Here Is Shot in Arm

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

SO MANY phone calls have come to the sports desk lately about soccer, that I decided to find out what goes on in this sport in Washington.

In New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, professional teams draw fairly good crowds, but most of the interest—both on the part of players and spectators—seems to be generated among first generation Americans who played the game in the old country.

Here in Washington, only five private schools field soccer teams, and aside from a few sandlot leagues, interest in the game has almost completely disappeared.

At Landon School, where Coach Harrison Prindle's teams have dominated local scholastic soccer for the last couple of years, the game attracts real interest. William Triplett, assistant head master of the school, believes that because the boys at Landon start playing the game in the third grade, they develop a real knowledge of the sport early in life.

BY THE TIME they are ready for varsity play, they are good players. Landon regards soccer as a major sport. And, having had success in league play, the boys enjoy playing with a winner.

St. Alban's and Sidwell Friends also get good turnouts for soccer. Friends regards it as a major sport, St. Alban's does not. Coach "Pop" Wannan of Friends claims that one reason for general lack of interest in the sport locally is that the District lacks good coaches.

Coach Edward Smith of St. Alban's thinks perhaps that the game lacks spectator appeal. "It's lots of fun for the boys who play, but the spectators like the "glamor" of American football better," said Smith.

Georgetown Prep, which started the game three years ago, is having its troubles with soccer. Only 17 boys turned out for the team, and aside from a few South American lads, who really know the game, interest is lagging.

"IF THE BOYS don't show more interest, I don't know whether we will be able to field a team," Athletic Director Father Thomas Dugan said yesterday. "Out students just don't seem to like the game."

One reason for lack of spectator appeal in Washington is that soccer is played here during the winter. The schools that sponsor the game just don't have enough boys to play football and soccer at the same time.

So soccer is deferred until football season is over. In Baltimore, it is a major fall sport in the high schools. Hundreds of sandlot teams play regular schedules. And professional teams draw crowds in the thousands.

But Washington public schools have never taken to the game. It is played informally in the junior public high schools, but the highs just leave it alone.

But maybe enough fairly recent arrivals from other parts of the country have brought enough new interest to Washington to make a general organization of the sport worthwhile.

American U. Journeys to Penn State

George Washington University's Colonials and American University's Eagles, having had a day of rest in which to recover from defeats Monday, return to action tonight.

The Colonials tackle the improving Cavaliers of the University of Virginia at 8:30 p. m. at the National Guard Armory. And the Eagles journey to State College, Pa., to take on the Penn State Nittany Lions.

Tonight's George Washington-Virginia tussle is the second between the two teams this season.

In defeating the Cavaliers, 55-49, last month, the Colonials were winning their fourth game in a streak that went up to nine in a row. North Carolina State bumped G. W., 67-45, Monday night to end the streak.

Cavaliers Have 4-4 Record

Virginia has compiled a 4-4 record against all comers, with a 3-3 record against collegiate opposition. The Cavaliers whipped War Department Headquarters, Old Dominion Club, Randolph-Macon and Duke. They had been beaten by G.W., William and Mary, Georgia, and Georgia Tech.

Before losing to N. C. State, the Colonials had beaten uantico, Kings Colonials had beaten Quantico, Kings Point, Wake Forest, Virginia, VMI, Davidson, Richmond, South Carolina and Clemson.

G. W. has averaged 57.4 points per game to the opposition's 47.5. Virginia's average has been 44.9 to 39.2.

G. W.'s starters will be Bill Cantwell, Johnny Moffatt, Art Cerra, Phil McNiff and Maynard Haithcock. Cantwell has averaged 10.5 points per game to lead the Colonial scorers.

American Has 6-4 Record

Virginia will start Ronald Richard, Charlie Noe, Bill Pandake, Les Blankin and Joe Noertker. Noertker paced the Cavaliers in their last game with G. W. by netting 13 points.

American risks its 6-4 record against a Penn State team that has a disappointing 1-2 record. The Lions, coached by John Lawrther, are noted for their tight zone defense.

After beating Washington and Jefferson, 63-49, in their opener, the Lions lost to Bucknell and Pitt. Their tallest man is 6-foot 3-inch Jack Culp. However, the key pointmaker is Jack Biery, who has a deadly eye from long range. Another Penn State star is veteran Milt Simon.

American, which had a five-game winning streak snapped by Loyola of Baltimore, 64-55, Monday, will start, as usual, Don Hillock, Pete Negley, Reggie Crockett, Bart Fugler and Bob Lamon.

Terps to Grapple

Coach Sully Krouse will send his University of Maryland wrestlers out for their second straight win here tomorrow against Virginia Military Institute.

The Terrapin grapplers scored a 34-0 win over Galludet in their opener.

Braves Light Home Plate, Next the Bells Will Ring

BOSTON, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—There were three big innovations at Braves Field last year—a baseball team that finished third in the National League, fried clams for the fans and neon-lighted foul lines for night games.

Field Superintendent Al Oliver, the man who designed the lighted foul lines, promised today a whole new set of innovations for Braves' followers in 1948.

First of all, he said, there will be an illuminated home plate for night games. It will consist of a light bulb beneath the plastic plate to provide fans with a clearer view. He said nothing about the light helping wild pitchers.

THEN OLIVER will install rubberized foul lines that will be white at the start of the game and white at the finish.

His 1948 masterpiece will be a new scoreboard which, he said, will flash everything including late news and eventually may include a television screen.

Oliver doesn't intend to rest on his laurels in 1948 any more than he did last year. Even now he is planning on bell-ringing bases that would clang in pinball-machine style when touched by the players. This he believes would end a lot of beefs on close plays.

Now if Manager Billy Southworth could come up with a pennant, the fans say, they could really enjoy eating those fried clams they sell in the grandstand.

Bill Bennings Says:

Dear Folks: At Gulfstream

The life of a jockey is, at best, a limited one. A few short years of silks and glory and he passes on to let another take his place, an endless cycle. In Gulfstream Park's jockey room there are half a dozen or more valets, all famous riders in their own right a decade or so ago, but who now are occupied in cleaning boots and keeping their charges presentable as they fare forth to do the feats they once accomplished themselves. Apprentice Featherston, drawing a check over $800 for a week, reflected he would salt it away in a safe place while he was making it, and before the haunting bugaboo of increasing weight caught up with him.

He told Horace Wade, the track's "Right now I'm having a good year but the fans don't realize the expense we are under. Look at what the well-dressed rider wears onto a track: boots, $22; pants from $20 to $30; saddles, $90; mud pants, $18 to $25; skull caps, $12; elastic stockings, $10 . . . add girths, surcingles, goggles, whips and spurs and you've got some idea of what it totes up to. We each own from four to six saddles apiece, which must be occasionaly replaced, and at least five pairs of pants, each lasting us about 50 rides. It's a constant expense, on top of our daily fees to agents and valets.

"If you think it's an easy way to make a living come out to the track some morning at 5 o'clock and watch us exercise horses, then home to a nap and back to ride the afternoon card, home again for dinner and an early bed so we can be up bright and early for workouts the next a. m. Sure, it's tough—but if you're lucky the returns are great, and there's not a one among us who would swap places with a King or a President."—BILL.

Stretch Run Wins for Eb At Gulfstream

Gulfstream Park, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP). The long and short of it here today was that favorite followers had a long wait before Eb. a long-striding horse with a short name and short odds, came to their rescue in the featured Useppa Purse.

H. A. Grant's 6-year-old South American color-bearer, which does his real running in the stretch as do most thoroughbreds from the gaucho country, had to pass all seven of his rivals before clicking by a length at $5.70 for $2. He was the first public choice to win and was clocked in 1:45 2/5 for the mile and a sixteenth of a track that was cut up Sunday and therefore became more than a second slower to the mile.

Mrs. Lottie Wolf's Red Pompon was second by three lengths, with T. D. Buhl's second choice, Air Sailor, third. The sport was witnessed by 10,491 fans.

Some of the earlier winners, such as Cherokee V., longest-priced victor of the meeting at $121 for $2 in the second contest, and Machairan, which returned $114 in the third, had figure followers exchanging their dope sheets for headache powders. Then Eb came along with his Armed-like conquest—a smashing effort which may earn him the chance to run in the $25,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap of a mile and a quarter on closing day, when Armed may be among the starters.

Eb was about 20 lengths off the pace soon after the start. Air Sailor rushed into a five lengths lead and still was four in front after a half mile. He disposed of Townhouse and Santa Claus but the effort told once he reached the home turn. Horses ganged up on him and it was Eb, on the outside, that had the power to win under Jockey L. M. (Lightning) Jones.

St. John's Turns Back Colts, 48-47

St. John's Cadets turned back a late Calvin Coolidge Colt rally to earn a 48-47 victory yesterday at the Coolidge gym.

The Cadets, who took the floor heavily favored, came from behind a 4-0 deficit to lead 11-10 at the first quarter. They led, 26-19, at half and 38-30 at the three-quarters mark.

But the determined Colts pulled up to within three points of St. John's with a minute to go. With 16 seconds remaining, Jess Houston of Coolidge potted a long field goal to make it, 48-47, St. John's. The Cadets managed to freeze the ball the remaining seconds.

Jack George, usually St. John's leading pointmaker, was held to nine points by Coolidge's Bobby Rohr. But little Billy Martins and lanky Tom Fannon scored 14 and 12 to fill the gap for the Cadets.

Warner Scores 30 To Pace Anacostia

Anacostia hot-shot Wally Warner piled up a 30-point total to lead the Indians to a 66-49 victory over Gonzaga in a schoolboy scoring exhibition at the winners' gym yesterday.

Gonzaga Forward Clem Conlin's 23 points gave the losers an early edge, but a 21-point Indian third period saw the winners move in front to stay. Gonzaga tallied only six points in the third period.

Marlboro Group Tells Lane Racing Commission Is Unfair

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Southern Maryland Agricultural Association, threatened for the second consecutive year with loss of its horse racing license at Marlboro, asked Governor Lane today for a hearing at which to defend itself against the Maryland Racing Commission.

Claiming it was "being persecuted" by the commission, the association denied that Marlboro was in a "dilapidated" condition as described in the commission's annual report.

The hearing request was made by Joseph A. Farrell, association president, n a letter to the Governor. In Annapolis, the Governor's office reported the letter had been received, but the executive had not yet read it.

Farrell requested the hearing only if the entire racing commission is present. He said the commission is "creating false impressions because of the unfairness and inconsistency" of its report.

The commission's report suggested the legislature might "well consider whether it (the association) should be permitted to continue its franchise, if it does not provide an adequate plant for its meetings and hold a first-class agricultural fair." It also referred to the "dilapidated condition and inadequate facilities of the Marlboro race track."

The same alleged "dilapidated condition" was cited by the commission last year in twice refusing to grant Marlboro horse racing dates.

The Federal Diary

Commerce Dept. Opens Probe Into Market Activities of Employes

COMMERCE yesterday launched its own inquiry into the commodity speculations of its employes. Twenty of its employes were listed as being in the commodity market in a minor degree. The inquiry is to determine:

1. Whether any of the employes had inside Government information before they entered the market, and.

2. Whether any of them violated an administrative order which prohibits speculation by Commerce employes, and what disciplinary action, if any, should be taken against them.

REORGANIZATION: The Hoover Committee has requested the help of Federal agencies in its large-scale study of Government reorganization. It has asked for suggestions leading to economy and efficiency, and indicating areas of Government activity that should be overhauled. The committee also wants each department to designate an official with whom it can discuss reorganization problems.

NOTES: Carroll Diamond, personnel officer of the Army's Adjutant General's Office has resigned as vice president of AFL's American Federation of Government Employes. He will retain his interest in the union, however . . . Dean Dittmar, the "father" of the Navy's big White Oak, Md. Ordnance Laboratory, has resigned to join Atomic Energy's Los Alamos project. Hilton Graham has succeeded him as NOL plant engineer . . . Wade Skinner, general counsel of the Maritime Commission and the Government's No. 1 authority on maritime law, can be expected to retire soon.

RETIREMENT: A compromise Langer - Chavez - Stevenson retirement bill is being drawn up for early Senate action. The Senate GOP high command has put the bill on its "must" calender.

The compromise is expected to provide benefits for children under 18 of Federal workers who die in the service. Senators Langer, Taft and Williams are working on a bill that would be agreeable to both House and Senate leaders.

PATENT OFFICE has unfrozen grade promotions. The agency yesterday approved several score promotions to professional grades 2 and 3. Grade promotions had been frozen under a new law which barred them if their cost would increase the annual expense of operating the agency.

The office hired 100 additional new examiners in the quarter that ended December 31. Its allotment for this quarter is 130 new examiners. The agency plans to have 2200 employes by June 30. It still has a big backlog of work.

MESSAGE: The President goes to Capitol Hill today with his state of the Union message. Federal workers will be watching it closely for the Administration's views on the many bills to raise their salaries.

But if my information is correct, this message will make no specific recommendation on the problem. However, in a later message, the President can be expected to recommend an overhauling of the Classification Act—the law that fixes the salaries of annual workers.

Any such revamping of the act would be designed to give the Civil Service Commission greater flexibility in fixing salaries of Government people. It could result in modest pay raises for many groups of Government people.

Meantime, several additional Senators are drafting pay-raise bills—but they may limit them to postal workers.

COMMERCE does not plan to hire more than 300 additional employes within the next three months to carry out its duties under the GOP anti-inflation act. Several of its officials had requested more than double that number, but they were overruled.

Commodity specialists will be hired by both the Office of Domestic Commerce and the Office of International Trade. OIT also will hire clerks to work on an expanded export control program.

ODC commodity specialists and economists must determine the impact of foreign aid on the domestic economy, and they must gather the factual data which will be used to draft voluntary agreements on the allocation of scarce materials.

NOTES: The Interior cafeteria will be kept open during the strike of GSI employes . . . The comptroller general was ruled that Public Health Service must give in-grade promotions to its employes on their return to their civilian jobs from military service. Many PHS employes served in the agency in uniform during and after the war . . . An administrative promotion has been given to Park Ranger William J. Butler for finding the Marine transport that recently crashed on Mt. Rainier in Washington State. Butler refused a $5000 offer for discovering the crashed plane.

Weatherman Reiterates Claim Sun Will Shine

Prediction Twice Snowed Under in His Contest With District Winter

The contest between the Weather Bureau and Washington's winter weather was called on account of wet grounds yesterday, with the score tied.

Neither could decide what to do.

The bureau called for sunny. But sunny, also called for last Sunday, was snowed under both days.

Yesterday's precipitation left the parks and open country with a faint white blanket, but downtown Washington was dripping as though from a drizzle. The temperature hit a high of 33 degrees at 11:04 a. m.; a low of 28 at 5:45 a. m.

To Try Again Today

The bureau is going to try "mostly sunny" for today, with a high temperature of about 40 degrees.

Some Midwest snow was sifting in toward New Jersey, Delaware and parts of Virginia and Maryland, but only the mountain regions of West Virginia and Pennsylvania had anything over 2 inches last night.

Mild weather moved into the Plains States behind the eastbound snow. Temperatures were in the 40s in Des Moines, Omaha and in Dodge City, Kan., and snow and ice began wearing away.

But it was 51 below zero in parts of McKenzie, Canada.

William A. Xanten, superintendent of the District's division of sanitation, had a hypothetical snow "council of war" yesterday "just in case" a New York-style blizzard should hit the city.

Could Clear Only 120 Miles

A snowfall exceeding 15 inches would see emergency clearance of only Pennsylvania and Massachusetts aves., 14th and 7th sts., he said. "We could clear only about 120 miles of the city's approximately 1000 miles of streets."

In event of a super snow, he urges citizens to clear their own sidewalks and the streets in front of their houses, piling the snow along the curbs.

None such is forecast—today at least.

Rev. G. P. Gunn Made Bishop-Coadjutor

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Ceremonies of the Episcopal Church were performed today at Christ and St. Luke's Church as the Rev. George P. Gunn, former rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, was consecrated Bishop-Coadjutor of the Diocese of Southern Virginia.

Elevation of the popular Episcopal clergyman to the position of assistant to Bishop William A. Brown, whom he will succeed upon Bishop Brown's retirement three years hence, was attended by ministers and laymen from many churches.

U. of Virginia Meets Oxford in Debate

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 6.—British and American war veterans will battle out America's international economic policy verbally at the University of Virginia's Cabell Hall tomorrow night.

Subject of the debate between three visiting students of Oxford University and the University of Virginia will be "If full employment is to become an international reality, America must radically alter her traditional economic policy."

Frederick County To Seek School Loan

Winchester, Va., Jan. 6—The Frederick County board of supervisors has granted permission to the county school board to seek a $700,000 loan from the State literary fund for a consolidated high school to be built west of here.

Tentative plans call for a school on a 30-acre tract on U. S. 50, with a gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria capable of serving more than 1000 pupils.

Sleeping Sickness Kills Girl After 13 Years

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Death today ended 13 years of sleeping sickness for 16-year-old Yvonne Fischer.

Dr. Nathan H. Sphritz, who had been her physician throughout the illness, pronounced Yvonne dead at 7:30 this morning and said the care Mrs. Mortimer Fischer had given her only child over the 13 years was "remarkable."

"Leah just shut herself out from the rest of the world and sat at Yvonne's bedside," said the father.

D. C. Is Too Quick to Abandon Old Schools, Bates Contends

The District is too quick to abandon old school buildings that in many cases could be remodeled, Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), chairman of the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, said yesterday.

Bates declared he will "scrutinze very carefully" any future program for large-scale construction of new public schools in the District.

He said he had been "greatly disturbed" by what he termed "a consistent policy of District officials to abandon school buildings simply because they do not meet some peculiar need, or may be a little old."

The policy of cities throughout the country, the Congressman said, is to remodel and renovate old buildings as much as possible.

Present Costs Stupendous

"Present building costs," Bates continued, "are stupendous and there can be great waste unless any construction program is closely watched. No building ought to be abandoned if it can be remodeled and put to good use.

"Millions can be saved by remodeling the old buildings instead of building new ones. They do it everywhere else—why not here!"

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning explained later, "Many old buildings have been reconditioned for use. Most of the abandoned school buildings are in areas where children no longer live."

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said, "We need new buildings in new neighborhoods. And it is frequent that one large new building is more economical to operate than several small outdated ones."

Bates also opened the door yesterday to renewed study this year of a District sales tax. He admitted he doesn't like the sales tax, but added that it appears that District revenue problems must be studied anew this year.

The sales tax,Bates asserted, "ought not to be adopted unless it can be shown that the present system of taxation is resting too heavily on any segment of our taxpayers."

Favor Sales Tax

The District Commissioners favor a sales tax, but Bates said be would not step into the problef until he sees the District's new budget, slated to reach the Capitol next week.

Meanwhile, Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) called the House District Committee to hold its first meeting of the new Congress January 21.

Dirksen said the meeting is time to present pending District bills to the House at the District Day session January 26.

At the same time, the House District Subcommittee, headed by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), called a meeting for next Tuesday to consider legislation for special learners' driving permits for use in public school driver-training courses.

Other Meetings Planned

Other subcommittee meetings are to be scheduled before the full committee meeting to take up the one-year District rent controlo extension bill of Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), Senate-approved bills to give the District a new corporations law and to permit pooling of trust accounts into common funds for investment purposes.

The subject of legislation to give the District permanent daylight saving time is also likely to come before the District Committee.

On January 15, the subcommittee headed by Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) will renew its hearings on school textbooks, an inquiry which resulted from the protest of the District Veterans of Foreign Wars against use of the textbook "Building Citizenship" in the schools.

Discovery of Gun Averts Break at Md. Penitentiary

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Alert prison guards have thwarted a "plot of considerable proportions" for a mass jail break at Maryland State Penitentiary, Warden Edwin Swensen announced tonight.

Two guards, acting on a tip, found a loaded German pistol under a piece of lumber in the penitentiary yard. It was smuggled to a prisoner by an unidentified woman visitor, Swensen said.

"If guards Olin Beale and Vernon Pepersack hadn't acted fast," he added, "there would have been some widows around here."

Swensen said an investigation left no doubt that members of a prison gang were planning to shoot theri way out.

He said Bernard Beasley, a prisoner serving a 15-year term for armed robbery, was the "contact man" who arranged the gun-smuggling.

State officials called on the FBI for help in their investigation. They said the woman visitor was believed to have come from another State.

'Ike' to Visit Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, United States Army Chief of Staff, will fly to Norfolk Friday to address the students and faculty of the Armed Forces Staff College. After the lecture he will attend a luncheon and fly back to Washington.

with the shuttling back and forth. The full board will meet at 3:30 p. m. today to act on the proposal.

Under the proposed plan two shops will be set up in both the Blow and Webb buildings and three in the Merritt.

Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, Negro first assistant superintendent of schools, who drew up the plan, said that students in the Blow and Webb buildings will have all the benefits of a junior high program with the exception of use of an assembly hall, cafeteria and gymnasium. Two hundred and forty students will be assigned full time to each building.

Would Transfer 11 Classes

Eleven elementary classes will be transferred out of the Merritt building into the new Richardson Elementary School when that building is ready for occupancy February 15.

The vacated rooms will be used to house 330 Browne students. Merritt, constructed during the war as a combination elementary-junior high school unit, has an assembly hall-gymnasium but no lunchroom.

Wilkinson said that the use of the three annex buildings will free the main Browne building for full-time instruction for approximately 1052 students.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning said that 10 Negro attendance officers have been assigned to the Browne school. They will go into the homes and notify parents that they are breaking the law by refusing to send their children to classes. Attendance officers pay such visits in all cases in which children are out of school without an excuse for a prolonged period, Corning said.

Under the District compulsory school law a parent may be charged with a misdemeanor if he keeps his child out of school without excuse for two full days or four half days. The penalty is a $10 fine or five days in jail or both for each offense.

2 Danville Men Accused of Rape By Young Mother

Danville, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Police court hearings are scheduled Saturday for Dr. Eugene W. Arnett, jr., 35, and Ollie C. Pickerall, 28, both charged with rape.

A young mother of three children swore to a warrant accusing the two married men of criminally assaultnig her Saturday night in an apartment building office. The men were released under $10,000 bonds each.

Greenbelt Investigation

The nine-man Greenbelt investigating committee will resume hearings at 8 p. m. today in the town council offices. The investigation involves Police Chief George Panagoulis, charged with dereliction of duty, and Town Manager James T. Gobbel, accused of mismanaging finances.

Verdict in Slashing

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 6.—Clifford Belcher, 18, of Washington, received a two-year suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty in King George Circuit Court to the slashing of Ralph W. Brown, 20, of King George, in a fight August 10. Belcher was ordered to pay Brown's hospital bills.

D. C. Warns Cox to Enforce Drink Ban at Armory Dances

The Commissioners moved yesterday to ban drinking at National Guard Armory dances.

They ordered a letter sent to Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding general of the District National Guard, warning him that drinking at armory dances is in violation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control law.

With the letter, they said they would forward a copy of a report by Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Police Woman's Bureau, who said she observed bottles of liquor on tables during a New Year's Eve dance at the armory sponsored by Name Bands, Inc.

General Cox said he would make a thorough investigation. He said when the Armory is leased to private organizations, they are told they must abide by all aws, including ABC regulations.

Captain Milliken and Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett told the Commissioners that a concessionaire had been serving "setups" of mixers and ice to persons attending the December 31 dance.

Captain Milliken said she noted "no serious disorder" as a result of the drinking.

The Commissioners said they would ask General Cox to make special efforts to prevent drinking at the next dance, scheduled for January 31. They also directed Major Barrett to have a detail of policemen inside the armory.

"We'll have patrons check their bottles at the door," Barrett promised, "like they do at any other public building."

Justice Dept. May Fight for Rights Law

Rep. Gwynne Says 1937 Act Obliges U. S. to Intervene In District Case

Representative John W. Gwynne (R., Iowa wants the Justice Department to go to bat for the 1940 law giving District residents equal rights in the Federal Courts with citizens of the States.

Gwynne, author of the law which the Fourth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals has called unconstitutional, said he would ask Attorney General Tom Clark to intervene and defend its constitutionality before the Supreme Court.

The appellate court's decision is to be appealed to the Supreme Court.

A Justice Department spokesman said the case was being studied by the office of Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, but that no decision had been made.

1937 Law Basis for Move

Gwynne cited a 1937 law which makes it possible for the Attorney General to intervene as a party in a private suit when the constitutionality of an Act of Congress is in question.

Gwynne said he was glad to know that the case is to be appealed to the Supreme Court, and he said he plans to study the opinion of the Appellate Court. He said it was exactly the kind of case that the 1937 law covered, and added "this would seem like a good place for that law to operate."

The 1940 law, labeled unconstitutional by the Circuit Court, gave Federal District courts original jurisdiction in civil suits between residents of the District, Alaska or Hawaii, and residents of any State or Territory.

Attorney General Would Intervene

The 1937 law told Federal courts that they were to certify to the Attorney General any case where the constitutionality of an Act of Congress was questioned. It also said that in these cases the courts were to let the Attorney General intervene to present evidence and argue the constitutional question.

In presenting the 1937 law to the House, its Judiciary Committee pointed out that previously no representative of the Government could appear as a matter of right in private cases to defend a statute which had been challenged as unconstitutional.

"When a serious question of constitutionality is raised, that becomes the matter of first importance in the case," the report said. "The people generally, who then become directly interested in and vitally affected by what otherwise would be a private law suit, are entitled to have their representative appear with the right . . . to present that issue."

Strasburg Prisoner Denies Mill Robbery

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Reginald Ogden, 34-year-old Strasburg lime plant employe, today was arrested and charged with the Christmas-Eve payroll robbery of the Strasburg silk mill.

In Shenandoah County jail the former employe of the mill denied the charges.

Train Removes Auto Of Arguing Motorist

Aberdeen, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—An express train settled at least the initial phase of an argument that arose when a local motorist found his way across the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks blocked by another car.

Corporal John Lanbeck of the State Police said Frank Sirangelo, 35, left his vehicle last night to argue with the other driver, heard a crash, and turned around to see that a train had carried his car a mile down the tracks.

400 Ministers To Pray Today On Capitol Steps

More than 400 Negro ministers from over the country will hold a prayer meeting on the East steps of the Capitol today for passage of anti-lynching and civil rights legislation.

The Rev. W. H. Jernagin, director of the Washington Bureau of the National Fraternal Council of Negro Churches in America, said yesterday the group will march on the Capitol from Mount Carmel Baptist Church, 3rd and I sts. nw., starting about 10:15 a. m.

The ministers will reassemble at Mount Carmel Church at noon to hear reports on status of Congressional anti-lynching, fair employment practices, anti-poll tax and other civil rights bills. Dr. Mordecai Johnson, Howard University president, will address the ministers at 3 p. m.

Police Start Modern Radio Setup Today

The modernized communications control system of the Metropolitan Police Department will go into operations at 8 a. m. today, according to officials.

"We have gotten rid of all the mechanical bugs," said Capt. John J. Agnew. "We are ready to go."

The system, using new equipment for the most part, is geared to give citizens and the polie high-speed communications. It is part of the new Communication and Record Bureau.

The bureau was set up after The Washington Post exposed the police practice of "pocketing" crime complaints which resulted in a systematic official understatement of the city's crime situation.

The accent is on radio in the new system. Complaints of crime now will be quickly flashed over the police airways. Routine reports which were sent over the teletype between precincts and bureaus are now to be handled by messenger. Arrangements are made for a more effective telephone system.

Major Robrt J. Barrett, police superintendant, has promised that by the new system of coordinated records, the public will not only be assured of better service, but will be presented a complete crime record of the community. He said he intends to have quarterly reports of crime issued.

New Emergency Police Number

CALL EXecutive 2060, the new emergency police number, if you want to make a criminal complaint or request police assistance.

Routine calls to specific individuals in the Police Department will continue to be handled through the old police number, NAtional 4000.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, says use of the new number will save an estimated 90 seconds handling time on each call.

Library Submits $77,000 Budget In Prince Georges

A request for a $77,000 budget, more than double the figure allocated this year, was submitted to Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday by the Prince Georges Memorial Library.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, has been planned to meet heavily increased demands for service, C. Howard Brown, chairman of the library board of trustees, said.

Brown said the budget was based on a proposed library tax levy of 4½ cents on the $100 evaluation, in comparison to the present two-cent rate. The $77,000 figure, which is in contrast to the current $29,000 budget, includes $45,000 for salaries, $25,000 for equipment and $7000 for operating expenses.

The commissioners took the request under advisement.

2 Montgomery Cab Men Held in Test of Law

A promised crackdown on Montgomery County cab drivers operating without a license began yesterday with arrest of Robert H. Swisher, owner of Piney Branch Cab Co., and one of his drivers.

Swisher and Duane Brand, 204 Flower ave., Takoma Park, were charged with violation of the county cab ordinance passed last summer. Swisher said he wants to test the law's constitutionality. He and Brand were released on personal bonds to appear in Silver Spring Police Court Tuesday.

Ahalt to Speak

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 6—Clarence R. Ahalt, of Leesburg, will speak on "The Benefits of a Two-Party System" at a meeting of the Loudoun Business and Professional Women's Club on Thursday night in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Hamilton.

Administrator Agrees Need Is Pressing; Present Law Dies March 31

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) yesterday launched a drive to give the District another year of rent control.

O'Hara

O'Hara, chairman of the House District Judiciary Subcommittee, introduced a bill in the House to continue the present District Rent Act through March 31, 1949. The present District law dies March 31 this year.

The bill was sent to the House District Committee, and is slated to be handled by O'Hara's subcommittee.

O'Hara helped last year to get the District one month more of rent control than the rest of the country was granted—with the idea that Congress would have ample time this session to review the need for another extension.

In addition, the District rent control extension was a straight continuation of the wartime controls, without provision for the voluntary rent boosts contained in the National Rent Act. The new bill calls for straight extension of the present law

O'Hara indicated he would ask early action by his subcommittee.

"We've got to have it," he commented.

District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell agreed that the District will need another year of rent control.

"While there is some lightening in the demand for rooms in Washington," Cogswell declared, "the demand for houses and apartments seem to be as critical as ever."

Earlier, chairmen of the Congressional District Committees had indicated that extension of the District Rent Control Act would probably follow whatever pattern is fixed by Congress for national rent control extension. The committee chairmen are Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) and Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.).

Resignation Confirmed By Kronheim

Milton S. Kronheim, jr., leading candidate for Presidential appointment as Municipal Court judge here, resigned as treasurer of his father's liquor firm only last month.

The judgeship has been vacant since December 16, at the death of Judge Nathan R. Margold.

Kronheim, a member of the law firm of Donohue, Kaufman and Gronheim, told The Washington Post last night he resigned as treasurer of Kronheim and Son Corp. at the corporation's last board meeting of 1947, "a week or two ago."

Failed to File Copy

He said he neglected to file a certified copy of the meeting's minutes with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board as notification of change of officers. The minutes are prepared and await certifying signature of the corporation secretary, who is expected home today or tomorrow from a Florida vacation, Kronheim said. The board sets no time limit on such notifications.

The explanation followed queries on a news story in The Washington Post in which Kronheim was quoted as saying he resigned the treasurership, and subsequent checks with the ABC Board where he was found still listed as treasurer.

Not on List of Bar

The lawyer deemed most likely to receive the appointment, Kronheim was not among candidates for the post which were selected and recommended by the District Bar Association.

Those recommended by the association included Frank H. Myers, Milton D. Korman and J. Edward Bindemen, all, like Kronheim, practicing attorneys here.

Police Nab Boy, 12, In Candy Factory

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—The burglar alarm at an East Baltimore candy factory rang last night. Four policemen surrounded the building, then entered cautiously.

They found a 12-year-old boy, his mouth stuffed with candy.

Using the ring around his mouth as "prima facie evidence," they booked him for juvenile authorities.

Manassas, Va., Jan. 6—Prince William County farmers will meet in the Manassas postoffice at 1:30 p. m. Thursday to consider possibilities of extending artificial insemination service in the county.

Area News in Brief

ABC Board Hears 2 Tavern Keepers

Charges that two tavern keepers here permitted gambling and beer selling to minors were aired yesterday before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Charged with permitting gambling was James Nevros, who operates the Central Lunch, 321 9th st. nw. The sale to minors was made, according to charges, by Edward Marosy, 72, 5438 South Dakota ave. ne.

A confessed bookmaker named Sam Flakowitz, 50, admitted before the board that he pleaded guilty recently in District Court to accepting bets in the 9th street establishment. Flakowitz said he did not believe Nevros knew of this.

Marosy was charged with the sale of beer to boys of 14 and 15. The tavernkeeper said he sold the beer in the belief the boys were two older regular patrons.

The ABC board called an executive session in which, it was later disclosed, the members lectured parents of the boys who bought the beer.

According to John Ihlder, NCHA executive officer, the appointments were ordered by President Truman, effective December 31. All are ex officio.

Two memberships have just been created—those going to the head of the Board of Education and the urban planning officer for FWA.

The other two members of the Authority are John Russell Young, president of the D. C. Board of Commissioners, and John Nolen, jr., director of planning for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

7-Pound Baby Born on Sidewalk In Silver Spring

A 23-year-old Washington woman gave birth to a 7-pound baby girl early yesterday on the sidewalk at 16th st. and East-West Highway, Silver Spring.

The baby and the mother, Beatrice Copeland, of 237 12th st. ne., were rushed to Suburban Hospital where they were reported "doing well."

According to Silver Spring police, Mrs. Copeland did not expect her baby for another month. When she discovered it was to be born yesterday, she tried to get a cab. Mrs. Copeland said she had been on the sidewalk 25 minutes before a passerby called police and the rescue squad. Mrs. Copeland was employed as a maid in Silver Spring.

Four Silver Spring police officers arrived first and wrapped the baby in a blanket. Shortly afterwards, Dr. John N. Andrews, of 9601 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, arrived and attended the mother and baby. Immediately after that, the Suburban Hospital ambulance arrived, and took mother and child to the hospital.

Chicks Chirp At Meeting of Farm Bureau

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—The chirping of chicks and displays of potatoes and honey turned two of Baltimore's largest hotels into a second farm front today as members of the Maryland Farm Bureau and its assocoiated agencies poured into the city for their annual convention.

The farm bureau is holding its thirty-second annual meeting but many of the affiliated groups are older. An estimated 5000 representatives of Maryland's farm folks were registering for the various meetings which will be climaxed by an even larger gathering to hear Governor Lane at the annual banquet Thursday night.

While the farm bureau is meeting, simultaneous sessions of the Associated Women of Maryland, 4-H clubs, tobacco growers, Poultry Council, Vegetable Growers Council, insurance agents, Beekeepers Association, Stockmen's Association and the Crop Improvement Association are due to sit down tomorrow to discuss their problems.

The opening of the three-day annual conclave of Maryland's farmers started today with meetings of the Farm Bureau Wool Pool and the Nurserymen's Association. The rest of the day was devoted to registration at the Lord Baltimore and Southern hotels for the meetings which get under way in earnest tomorrow.

At the nurserymen's session, G. Hale Harrison, president from Berlin, reported that a shortage of experienced hands caused by the war was being relieved gradually. He said there still is a shortage of stocks in general, but predicted 10 years of good business for the industry.

Ambassador's First Party

Augusto Dillon Is Host To Ecuador's Minister

By Marie McNair

THE NEW Ecuadorian Ambassador, Augusto Dillon, and Senora de Dillon, are charming and gracious representatives of their country. They made the best possible impression on official Washington at their first party yesterday given in honor of their Foreign Minister, Dr. Antonio Parra Velasco, who will leave today after a brief visit to the Capital.

Here less than a month, Ambassador and Senora de Dillon haven't yet moved into the embassy, but instead have been occupying an apartment at the Mayflower until their new home has been put in readiness for them.

So—into the west ballroom of the Shoreham almost 500 guests had gathered yesterday eager to meet the distinguishd visitor and his hosts.

In the receiving line, also, was an old friend to a lot of us—Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, newly named Ecuadorian Ambassador to the Pan-American Union, and, for a number of years his country's envoy to the United States.

Smile Is Disarming

Frankly curious to meet the latest Ambassador from Ecuador which has sent succession of diplomatic representatives to Washington in the last year or two, I found Augusto Dillon, a scholarly looking gentleman with a friendly handshake and disarming smile. And his Senora? She's tiny, and soft spoken with deep brown hair and white skin, and as chic as a Vogue model. Her gown yesterday was of midnight blue satin, made with wide rounded neckline, the long, slim skirt draped with panniers caught up in the back in a bustle.

Happy days are here again if one may judge from the lavish buffet which stretched half the width of the ballroom. Seemingly thousands of little canapes of all sorts of delicacies were laid out on giant platters. Waiters made the rounds with trays of oysters on the half shell to be dipped into a tangy sauce; hot fish balls and shrimp were gobbled up but never seemed to give out. All the chiefs of mission and their wives had been invited, most of those who were in town turned up.

There was the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, in a huddle with Secretary of the Treasury, John W. Snyder, and Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, but I didn't see either Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne or Mrs. Snyder.

Mme. Bonnet Attends

On the sick list was the French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet, recuperating from pneumonia, but Mme. Bonnet was there in her now famous Dior coat and a bird of paradise soaring from her tiny black hat.

Harry Andrews, Minister of South Africa, reported that Mrs. Andrews is a victim of bronchitis and then he hurried off to the reception being given by the new Burmese Ambassador, U So Nyun. The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Belt, brought along Senora de Belt, suffering with a cold. "It's chronic," she said, "I don't feel natural without it."

Georges Boncesco, one time financial counselor of the Rumanian Legation, was without his wife, "Nippy," who went up to New York on a combined business and pleasure trip and is now stranded there.

I saw the Costa Rican Ambassador and Senora de Gutierrez and the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro, the Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, but not Senora de Nieto del Rio; the Netherlands Ambassador and pretty Mme. van Kleffens, and the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen in a blue frock to match her eyes.

Peru's Charge d'Affaires, Humberto Fernandez-Davila, and Senora de Davila; the Finnish Minister, Dr. Jutila, made a serpentine path through the throng and stopping for a chat as he went down the receiving line was Robert Scotten, former United States Ambassador to Ecuador, who's on his way as Minister to New Zealand.

The Nicaraguan Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Sacasa, was there and others were Raul Diez de Medina, Minister-Counselor of the Bolovian Embassy; the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, William Dawson, United States Ambassador to the Pan American Union and Stanley Woodward of the State Department.

Colonel and Senora de Munilla were constantly surrounded; Gen. John N. Greely and Mrs. Greely, handsome in plum-color crepe, came early and were on their way to Mrs. Albert Bowley's cocktail party, where Mrs. Greely had been asked to assist.

Military Foursome

A military foursome in a corner were Gen. Gordon Young, District Engineer Commissioner, and Mrs. Young and Air Inspector General Gen. Junius Jones and Mrs. Jones.

Then—to go on—there were Capt. Floyd Ferris, USN, and Mrs. Ferris; Mrs. Sidney Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Jose Colom, Gen. and Mrs. Stuart Fries, Mrs. Vernon Lowrey introducing her young nephew, Harry Stone, who is looking forward to seeing friends from England at Mrs. Lowrey's party on Sunday for the Oxford University debating team.

The W. D. Whittemores were there and Francisco Banda, head of the Pan American Department of AAA, who is responsible for putting over the one-visa plan for all of South and Central America. Also, Capt. and Mrs. Valentine Pottle, who had with them Mrs. Pottle's mother, Mme. Basset, and another daughter, Miss Basset; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Dr. Juan Bautista Lavalle, Peruvian Ambassador to the Pan American Union; Dr. William Manger, Assistant Director of the Pan American Union.

A special session of the Governing Board of the Pan American Union was called in honor of the distinguished visitor Dr. Velasco, earlier in the day, and a luncheon in his honor followed in the Hall of Heroes.

Guests included members of the Latin American Diplomatic Corps and representatives to the Pan American Union.

Mrs. Brewster Covers Europe

Dinner Table Speculators Ask 'Will It Be London Or Palm Beach for Griffis?'

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NOW THAT popular Jim Landis, once dean of the Harvard Law School and SEC top man, no longer heads the Civil Aeronautics Board, there is considerable dinner table chit-chat about a possible successor.

GRIFFIS

A name most frequently mentioned is Stanton Griffis, the astringently versatile gent whose irons-in-the-fire encompass interests in a Wall Street banking firm, ownership of Brentano's, theatrical angel for Kit Cornell and, at present, our Ambassador to Poland.

At present Stanton is in this country, feels he has done his best in Poland, is getting nowhere fast. At last hearing he showed no interest in a Washington, job but should Lewis Douglas leave to direct Marshall Plan aid, a London ambassadorship would suit Stanton to the conventional "T". Recently, our envoy to Poland, when asked if he wanted to return to Warsaw, quipped "For me, it is London—or Palm Beach!"

Mrs. Brewster's Travels

NOW THAT Congress is with us again it is interesting to know what some of our legislators and their wives have been up to. It's no cynosure being married to a Senator, and to prove it we'll capsule the trip Mrs. Owen Brewster, wife of Maine's investigating Senator, has pulled through during the past months. Mr. Brewster, who is chairman of the Senate Aviation Committee, was a delegate to the Aviation Conference in Geneva, made a survey of European airports and aviation facilities. But although the Senate's approval of European aid funds was never in doubt, Senator Brewster interrupted his trip, registered his vote, and remained two weeks at the joint session before rejoining Mrs. Brewster in Paris.

MRS. BREWSTER

Mrs. Brewster, who claims she went along as "sort of secretary" flew over 20,000 miles, jotted 10 books full of notes!

They arrived in London from Geneva shortly before Princess Elizabeth's marriage, saw the wedding gifts privately. Seven rooms spread full in St. James's Palace and only a quarter of the staggering total unpacked What impressed Mrs. B. (aside from the fact she didn't have to queue up in the rain!) was the necklace made from stones given the princess in Africa, a marquise diamond ring and a series of coronets and other glittering oddments presented by Queen Mary. Later, the Brewsters spent four or five days in Berlin as guests of Gen. Lucius Clay, were appalled by the dead city, then flew to Denmark and Sweden in his plane. In Copenhagen they lunched with our Ambassador Joe Marvel in Vitbek, the wonderful restaurant which the Nazis destroyed out of sheer spite and which the Danes, by sheer determination, rebuilt identically. They were wafted to Istanbul for a brief visit, stopped over in Athens, then reached Cairo for Christmas Eve, a full moon shining over the Pyramids, and the thermometer reading a cozy 75! They traveled on every airline, inspected almost every airport, absorbed the most fantastic amount of information.

GEN. CLAY

Left alone in Paris when the Senator returned to Washington, Mrs. Brewster never entered a shop—there was too much going on—including a strike! As a young girl she had been in Paris during the first weeks of World War I and it didn't seem too different!

At one time all lights were extinguished, subways stopped running, hotel guests had to use candles, matches were in such short supply that the Senator had to bring her some from home. She carried a candle and matches in her handbag for emergencies. She took in a dinner given for the Foster Dulles by our Ambassador Jefferson Caffrey, sat opposite Robert Schuman, the new French Premier, was escorted to table by Paul Reynaud. If Mrs. Brewster gets time to unpack her trunks and draw breath, she'll have a busy winter writing down and enlarging what is written in those 10 note books.

Ladylike Work on Display

IF YOU GO IN for the ladylike art of needlework be sure to step over to the Shoreham today or Thursday between 10 and 5. The Needlework Studio of Bryn Mawr is staging an exhibition of their latest designs in petit point and bargello. The studio is run by Mrs. Benjamin Rush and Mrs. Henry C. Earnshaw, who have made a considerable success creating special designs on French canvas. For instance, they will figure out your house, your coat of arms, almost anything on canvas, then provide you with wools, silks, instructions. As a concession to the patient type who finishes what she starts, they will mount your handiwork, too.

DAR Chapters Pay Tribute To Jas. Monroe

Approximately 100 members of the Continental Dames and Judge Lynn chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, turned out last night to stage a program honoring President James Monroe, fifth Chief Executive.

During the observance, Laurence G. Hoes, great-great grandson of the man who gave the world the Monroe Doctrine, related historical anecdotes of the writing of the document. He also recalled intimate sidelights on Jefferson, Madison and Monroe. The 125th anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine will occur this year. Mr. Hoes is president of the James Monroe Memorial Foundation organized in 1947.

Following the program two volumes relating to Monroe and his Doctrine were presented to the Chapter House Library. Mrs. Joseph B. Paul, regent, Continental Dames Chapter, gave W. P. Cresson's recent biography of Jame: Monroe, and Mrs. George B. Hartman, regent of the Judge Lynn Chapter, gave a copy of Dexter Perkins' "History of the Monroe Doctrine."

State officers and presidents of seven womens organizations were guests of the two chapters during the program. Among those present were Mrs. Guy Withers, directoress, Washington branch, Association for Preservation of irginia Antiquities; Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, president, DAR State Officers Club; Mrs. Charles V. Grunwell, State president, Daughters and Founders of Patriots of America; Mrs. Merley LeRoy Cox, president, Descendents of the Lords of Maryland Manor; Mrs. Donald Earll, burgess, First Families of Virginia; Mrs. Benjamin Harrison Lingo vice president, National Society Children of the American Revolution; Mrs. Jerry W. Briggs, regent, Mount Vernon Chapter of Virginia; Mrs. Arthur C. Houghton, State president, Daughters of Colonial Wars; Mrs. Mildred J. Clearman, District DAR State regent who came with her group of State officers.

Hostesses for the Continental Chapter were Mrs. Leon Philibert and her daughters, Misses Estelle, Imogene and Helene Philibert. Miss Mamie Hawkins was chairman of the hostess group of the Judge Lynn Chapter.

Other hostesses included Miss Shirley Treadwell, Miss Dessie C. Clark, Miss Edna May Beck, Mrs. Frederick F. Schondau, Mrs. Calvin W. Hassell, Mrs. Olka Harris Lucas and Mrs. Bertram E. Williams.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Devoted Husband, Lonely Overseas, Starts Romance With Needy English Girl That Plays Hob at Home When His Wife Learns About Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was in the service overseas, away from my wife and children for about a year. When the war ended I had some free time in England before I could sail for home and there I met a lovely girl.

I told her I was married but lonely and would be glad to have her company if she wanted a good time, but I made it clear that I loved my wife and was going home soon. The girl was lonely, too, as she had no one to take care of her. Her parents are dead and her husband had never been good to her.

We had some nice weekends together and she was very grateful to me for some fun. When I got home I wrote to her once in a while, and of course said nothing to my wife about her. I am in Government service and was sent back to England last year. Naturally I looked her up, got her some good food, etc., and left a little money with her.

Wife Discovers Flow of Gifts

SOON after my return, I was ill and one of her letters came out to the house with other office mail. My wife got hold of the letter, in which Mary thanked me for a coat and shoes I had sent her, so of course I had to confess the whole story and I've surely been in the doghouse ever since.

I have assured my wife that I love her and the children, but that this poor girl was cold and hungry, whereas they haven't suffered. They have all they need and are well cared for. However, she has become very jealous and suspects my every move. She says if I love her, I must not write to Mary again.

I can't see why she should feel this way; why she should care if I write to this other poor girl once in a while and maybe send a gift of much-needed clothing, when she (my wife) has all she needs. I have no intention of leaving her and I think she is being very unreasonable. What do you think? I hope you can help us.

W. C.

Sound Approach To Understanding

DEAR W. C.: Let's fit the glove on the other hand, as a means of helping you understand your wife's feelings.

Just suppose you had discovered only recently that your lovely lonely wife—to borrow one of your word-pictures of Mary—was ardently solaced in your absence by an affluent wolf of polygamous stripe, and that a sub rosa exchange was still going on; with your wife in regular receipt of imported luxury goods from him.

Brother, would you be fit to be tied? I'll say you would! And how much stock would you take in the argument, if such were offered, that the whole thing was a sort of Good Samaritan deal, keyed to pity and gratitude, that only a most selfish spouse would try to interdict? Would you swallow that line? Hardly.

So give yourself a half hour's reflection along these lines. Draw on your imagination to feel yourself as the person whose trust was betrayed. Evaluate the shock you've given your wife in terms of its happening to yourself, and then decide whether or not her reaction is humanly valid. It certainly is.

Man Is Sucker For a Pirate

AND by the way, go over your letter again, just to see for yourself the comical disparity between your first and last references to Mary. In the beginning she is "a lovely girl," a companion in fun, joyously—in fact fervidly—agreeable to an adulterous whirl. In the summing up, she is a poor cold hungry piteous thing for whom your heart bleeds—to hear you tell it.

Mary is a seasoned opportunist, greedy and unscrupulous, with no character whatever in the general sense of the term, or she wouldn't be cadging, or call it accepting, money, clothes, etc., from you on a sweetheart basis. She has played on your sympathies deliberately, almost to the point of ruining your marriage as matters stand—and my advice is to wash your hands of her before you bring down the foundations of a life you value.

Harbingers of Spring

Small, Elfin Hats Are Featured In Miss Carnegie's Collection

By Peggy Preston

MY, how times change!

Just a few years ago no chic woman dreamed of wearing a spring straw hat until Washington's birthday, February 22. Now, we hardly get the Christmas tinsel out of our hair before we're donning a straw bonnet.

In New York, the top-notch milliners are showing their spring lines to buyers, and soon these hats and less expensive copies will be appearing in local shops. One of the designers whose hats bear watching for their effect on spring trends is Hattie Carnegie, who is showing a part of her spring hat collection this week.

Miss Carnegie says "the small head is the smart head for spring." She had prepared a group of hats which fit in with the growing acceptance of the short hairdo, and has created close-to-the head chapeaux.

Carnegie "bonnies" are demure, pretty, easy-to-wear. They come in many fabrics, including Shantung baku and are especially smart when trimmed with balanced Mercury wings which are a prime favorite with the designer. Other styles are fashioned of silk prints to match a costume.

Her "Elfin Caps" are small and round, fit well down on the head and are perfect with short hair. Sometimes these caps take a smart dip to the right and occasionally have some form of high trimming to give its wearer height. In the Mille Fleur series, the caps are paved solidly with tiny, multicolor flowers. Others add dainty handmade straw braid flowers tipped with brilliants as a side accent.

Turbans in the Carnegie collection take two forms. One series is draped of pastel veiling and is lovely with dinner clothes. The other is mad of hubby braid in wheat color, majors in line and plays down trimming.

BURNT leghorn makes the crown of this rounded turban from the Hattie Carnegie spring millinery collection. Red chiffon is used for the drape and scarf

Movies' Blonde Charmer Diets To Achieve '48's Fine Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

In the movies, nearly every "other woman" is blonde, and that's why Marilyn Maxwell is a blonde. It's a dark secret, but she's really a brunette. Why the change? It's her figure. Marilyn has the kind of curves and come-hither that dazzle the swashbuckling hero, and such gentlemen prefer blondes . . . so there you are. She's the distraction part of the proverbial triangle.

Marilyn might be called the 1948 version of Mae West—on a smaller scale, that is. She is 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 126 pounds, curved accordingly . . . 36-inch bust, 25-inch waist and 36-inch hips. But here's another secret that Marilyn passed along in the interest of glamour, which proves she's a nice girl in spite of the roles she plays: she used to weigh 142 pounds, with a 38-inch bust, 27-inch waist, and 39-inch hips. You can't carry that much weight in pictures, so our story is how she slimmed down to become a menace. It is a perfect program, which is more than can be said for all Hollywood diets.

The Doctor's Diet

The doctor's prescribed diet: two eggs, one serving of lean meat, one serving of fish (not fried), a green vegetable, a yellow vegetable, and three fruits—plus a vitamin concentrate. She had lots of liquids, but not with the meals. On this menu she says a girl can easily take off 6 pounds in two weeks. Then the plan is to take a vacation from strict dieting for the next two weeks and eat a bit more each day, but along the same pattern with nothing too fattening. Have enough food to hold your own in weight for two weeks, neither gaining nor losing, then go back on the strict diet again for another two weeks. By that diet plan, plus exercise, Marilyn took off 20 pounds in six months and says there is nothing like it for getting back your bounce.

Marilyn started her career at age 3, when she took dancing lessons at the famous Ruth St. Denis School, where her mother used to play the music. So when it came to streamlining exercises, she knew just how to go about it . . . and what do you think she chose as the quickest and surest method? Calisthenics!

Would Marilyn rather be a blonde or a brunette? Well, she says she feels more sophisticated and perhaps a bit more glamorous as a blonde . . . still she believes dark hair gives her face more character. One day she hopes to go back to her own color hair, so don't be surprised if you see her as a brunette. After all, in pictures it's the brunette who finally gets the man—for keeps.

Moral and Practical Support Sought for Jews in Palestine

By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

TAKING a brief glance at the report of the dramatic role now being played by women in Jewish Palestine are (left to right) Mrs. Morris Mazur, Mrs. Yehudith Simchonit, Representative of the Jewish National Assembly, and Mrs. Alexander Drazine, president, Washington Council for Pioneer Women. They are shown at the mass rally at Hotel 2400 last night where Mrs. Simchonit gave a first hand report on Palestine

Mrs. Yehudith Simchonit, representative of the Jewish National Assembly, last night called upon American Jewry to give greater moral and practical support to the Jews in Palestine.

Speaking at a mass rally sponsored by the Washington Council for Pioneer Women, she said, "As much as the Jews in Palestine are determined to fight, they will not be able to go on long without moral and practical support of the Jews in America."

An outstanding leader of the women's labor movement in Palestine, Mrs. Simchonit came here on a special mission for the 70,000 members of the Working Women's Council of Palestine, which now is in the midst of a $750,000 campaign to raise funds for the rehabilitation of Jewish youth and children.

She told the large audience jammed into the ballroom at Hotel 2400, "I must warn you that press reports present the rival combatants on equal basis, but considering it from an objective view Jews are defending themselves against violence aimed to break decisions of the United Nations . . ."

Pointing out that the transitional period and the role of the mandatory government are unknown factors, she declared, "People in Palestine are confident of the ultimate outcome. Mobilization will be complete to meet the emergency. Our backs are against the wall. We have no place to retreat. The small groups of Arabs are leading the fight for political interest, not for their existence."

Mrs. Simchonit said that the Jews were threatened not only by the Arab population but by a constant stream of reinforcements through the borders, according to reports of international correspondents.

"How can we expect effective defense by Haganah (a Jewish organization) if not granted the legal right to buy and bear arms?" she asked, adding "for this reason, we must appeal to the United Nations for intervention."

Referring to the active role now being played by the Jewish women, the speaker said, "we send as many women as possible to the ranks of Haganah. Many of our second generation women are serving in the front line. In fact, they are replacing men wherever possible."

WHAT could be handier than this new fluorescent pin-up lamp, to light up dark working spaces in the kitchen?

I have some rubber cement which, due to evaporation, is thicker than I like. The solvent smells like gasoline or cleaning fluid. What could be used to thin the cement? P. D. W.

Very large damask napkins are sometimes marked in the center, but the more usual place for the initial is in one corner. The initial is usually placed "cross-cornered" but sometimes straight. To decide the exact spot for placing the initial, fold the napkin as it will be folded when placed on the dinner table. Then make a light pencil outline in the center of the folded napkin.

Several small holes were gouged or chipped off the surface of the linoleum in our kitchen when some furniture was moved. Is there any way of repairing these holes? W. N. K.

The holes can be filled with a paste made by pulverizing a small piece of linoleum of the right color to a fine powder and mixing it with a small quantity of spar varnish. Before filling the hole, smooth its edges with fine steel wool. Then force the paste into the hole and allow it to dry hard. It can later be polished with a little paste wax.

The old-fashioned custom was to use the bride's maiden initial or initials in marking her linen or silver. However, it was confusing to have the household effects of a long-married couple all marked with the wife's initials as they were before marriage. Nowadays, the bride's future initials or last initial are used instead on her linen, silver, or dishes.

Commercial cements for patching such places on porcelain or enamel are sold in paint stores. Another very satisfactory way to repair chipped porcelain is mixing some of the paint used on chinaware (it comes in powdered form) with the liquid sold for the purpose of putting a glaze on china. These materials are available in art supply stores. Mixed to the consistency of putty, they can be smeared over the chipped place and smoothed out. (Such a paste is especially good for repairing porcelain stoves because the heat bakes it extra hard.)

Can you tell me how to remove red nail polish from a leather upholstered chair? F. D.

Daub the spot quickly with nail polish remover. When the polish is off, wipe the spot immediately with a cloth dipped in warm water. Apply saddle soap or a leather dressing later if a dull place remains.

While some repair work was being done, the brick chimney in the playroom of our apartment became splattered with cement. Can you tell me the easiest way to remove it? R. S. F.

To take off the cement spots, first moisten them with a solution of 1 part muriatic (hydrochloric) acid in 20 parts of water. Allow to act for a few minutes, then flush off with plenty of water. The effect is to soften the cement and it can then be scraped off. If necessary, the application should be repeated. After the cleaning, acid remaining in the surface should be neutralized with ammonia, followed by rinsing. Be sure to wear rubber gloves and old clothes when handling the acid.

There is a wooden drain board on our kitchen sink and it has become very dark and dirty looking. Have you any suggestions for freshening it up? It's very unsightly looking in spite of frequent scrubbings. G. P. F.

Soiled wooden drain boards can be bleached with a saturated solution of oxalic acid, applied liberally and allowed to stand all night, followed in the morning by several washings and rinsings. When the board has dried, it can be given a soaking coat of raw linseed oil, the surface oil being wiped off after an hour or so. After three applications, the board will be more resistant to further stainings.

We have a medium-sized rug in our living room that has developed a permanent curl in one end. Despite all our efforts, we can't seem to get the rug to lie flat. Is there any sort of sizing we could apply at home or any other method we could use to straighten it out? W. T. Y.

This condition has probably developed because the sizing (usually found on the backs of new rugs) has worn off. To resize the rug, stretch it upside down on a floor where it can remain for 24 hours. Tack it lightly in place. Spray or paint the back with a solution of ¼-pound of chip glue in two quarts of water. Allow to remain until thoroughly dry.

Elected Board Takes Reins In Arlington

Arlington's elected school board appeared to be in complete—but possibly temporary—authority yesterday for the first time since it took office January 1.

After studying the verdict Judge J. Garland Jefferson handed down Monday, attorneys on both sides of the county school board controversy agreed the new board now has power to pay, hire and draw up contracts.

Judge Jefferson upheld legality of the election of the five board members November, thereby overruling the old appointed school board which claimed the new board's election was unconstitutional. There was one "if" in the case. The five old members may appeal Judge Jefferson's verdict, asking the State Supreme Court of Appeals to set it aside pending a formal hearing.

Unless such action is taken, Arlington Treasurer John L. Green said he believes he has authority "to pay all drafts of the elected board."

Attorney Harry W. Porter, a member of the old board, said he still did not know whether his group would appeal. An appeal, if made, would be in the form of a petition for a writ of error, he said. But he emphasized his personal belief Monday's verdict ended the dual school board system which functioned by Circuit Court order for a week.

Even if an appeal is made, Porter said, he hoped some sort of "gentlemen's agreement" could be set up between the two boards, permitting the new group to hold its power unless unseated by State Supreme Court verdict.

If the high court should find last spring's school election unconstitutional, Porter said he thought the old board might agree to recognize all acts of the elected group while it held office.

William D. Medley, attorney for the elected board, said Jefferson's verdict "clearly places all power with the new school board."

He pointed out that the Circuit Court order stating that all school drafts must be signed by both boards was to stand only "pending the decision of this court."

Meanwhile, the elected board to eliminate potential school fire announced it would consider steps hazards at its next meeting at 9:30 a. m. Saturday at James Monrie School, 2300 Key blvd.

Also to be discussed will be the progress of school construction under the bond issue authorized in a referendum last May, and appointment of "exploratory committees" to tackle individual school problems.

British Movies See Disaster in U. S. Film Ban

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—A spokesman for Britain's movie exhibitors said today there is danger the whole British movie industry, including production, may go "bust" unless the supply of American films is restored.

"Practically all independent British film production has gone by the board, W. R. Fuller, general secretary of the Cinematographic Exhibitors Association, said.

He explained that producers cannot get money to finance their output because the government's tax of 75 per cent on earnings from showing American films may force a large number of the country's 4500 movie houses to close.

Other activities planned for Saturday and Sunday include presentation of Miss Air Reserve of Andrews Field and display of a jet plane, the P-84, and a German V-1 rocket.

First Federal Assets Up 16% To New Peak

By S. Oliver Goodman

Assets of First Federal Savings and Loan Association soared 16 per cent to a new peak of $32,505,902 at the end of 1947, President Carl H. Ellingson reported yesterday.

The $4,581,325 gain in resources was the second best in the institution's history, being exceeded only by the 1945 record. Since 1938, its assets have increased about 28 million dollars. The figures by years compared as follows as of December 31:

1938	$ 4,505,582
1939	6,785,013
1940	9,701,633
1941	11,238,740
1942	12,227,243
1943	15,213,665
1944	19,033,498
1945	26,931,640
1946	27,924,577
1947	32,505,902

The association's reserves rose to $1,549,007 at the end of the year, an amount equal to 6.18 per cent of the investment in first mortgages, Ellingson pointed out.

Home loans made to war veterans climbed to $..301,817, the greatest amount of this type made by any one loan association in Washington. The gain in G. I. loans was $3,158,817 for the year.

NEW SEARS' MANAGER: Hugh K. Duffield has been appointed group manager of Sears Roebuck & Co. stores in the Washington area. He succeeds N. A. Barron, who will take an executive assignment in connection with Sears' expansion in Latin America. Barron has been with Sears' retail organization since 1929 and took his Washington assignment in December, 1945, following his discharge as a colonel in the Army Quartermaster Corps. Duffield comes here from Indianapolis, where he was manager of the Sears store.

Kerman

DGS ELECTS: Paul D. Kerman was reelected president of District Grocery Stores, Inc., for his fifth consecutive term and all other officers likewise were renamed at the twenty-seventh annual meeting Monday night. DGS is a cooperative organization of 280 individually owned and operated food stores in the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia areas. Other officers: Frank Seidel, first vice president; Louis Snider, second vice president; Jack Oler, third vice president; Harry Brill, secretary, and Louis Biskin, treasurer. The board of directors includes: Benjamin Bessel, Milton Ferber, Louis Fox, Francis, Hawkins, jr., Sol Katz, Jerry Litvin, Maury Metro, Dave Petrushansky, Archie Rosenblatt, Abe Rosenfield and Abe Zarin.

PEPCO ISSUE: The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized Potomac Electric Power Co. to issue and sell an additional 15 million dollars worth of first mortgage bonds, due in 1983. Interest and price will be fixed by competitive bids, which will be opened on January 20. Proceeds will be used to meet anticipated expenditures in connection with a construction program expected to total about 18 million dollars. At present, Pepco has outstanding 40 million dollars in bonds.

ODD LOTS: William M. Werber, local insurance agent, will address the auditors' section of the District Bankers Association at a monthly meeting Friday night in the Burlington Hotel . . . The Washington agency of Berkshire Life Insurance Co. led all company units in December sales and eight members of the local agency are attending a conference this week at Palm Beach, Fla. . . . The Washington branch of New York Life Insurance Co. broke all records for new business in 1947, Manager Earl D. Krewson reports . . . Commercial and industrial failures in the week ended January 1 numbered 58, compared with 38 in preceding week and 30 comparable period of previous year, according to Dun & Bradstreet . . . New York Central expects deliveries on its 60-million-dollar order for new passenger cars will make possible the re-equipment of 28 key trains this year.

AIB PLANS: Second semester plans of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, were outlined last night at a dinner meeting in the Mayflower. Herbert D. Lawson, jr., chairman of the Educational Committee, said a new short course for bank bookkeepers will be started. Principal speaker was Robert C. Rutherford, assistant secretary of the AIB.

WARNER NET UP: Warner Brothers Pictures Inc. yesterday reported net profit of $22,094,000 for the fiscal year ended August 31, an increase of $2,670,000 over the preceding year. Harry M. Warner, president, told stockholders in annual report that because of uncertainties in the foreign situation the company had not included its equity in the undistributed profits of subsidiaries operating abroad. The 1947 net, equivalent to $3.02 a share on the 7,295,000 shares of common stock outstanding, compared with $19,424,000, or $2.62 a share on 7,402,180 shares, in 1946. Film rentals, theater admissions and sales brought in $164,643,000 in 1947, an increase of $6,030,000 over the 1946 figure. Box office receipts and film rentals, both in the United States and abroad have declined since the spring of 1947 as compared with the corresponding 1946 period, the report showed.

Late Support Cuts Losses; Aircrafts Up

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Stocks generally continued to stumble in today's market although late modest support reduced many early losses running to 2 or more points and enabled assorted favorites to emerge on the upside.

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	249	356
Declines	593	469
Unchanged	190	199
Total issues	1032	1024

Aircrafts enjoyed a fair-sized jump on further talk of big military plane orders. Moving pictures were more or less depressed by the cloudy business outlook in this field. Rails were a bit hesitant and oils somewhat heavy. Dealings slowed at intervals but picked up in the final half hour when prices hardened. Declines were well in the majority at the close. Transfers of 1,030,000 shares compared with 1,090,000 Monday.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .2 of a point at 65.2.

At peaks for the past year were Boeing Aircraft which ended up 1¼ points at 25 and United Aircraft, up ¾ at 25¼. Douglas Aircraft added 3 at 52, Lockheed ⅞ at 15 and Glenn Martin ⅝ at 15⅞. American Woolen advanced 1¼ at 43¼ and Eastern States Steel 2¾ at 21¾.

Skelly Oil dropped 5⅝ points at 103½ and Superior Oil of Calif. 5 at 145. Off .1 to 3 were Bethlehem Steel at 100, Youngstown Sheet 76¾, U. S. Rubber 43¾, Gulf Oil 73¼, Pacific Western Oil 44½, Mission Corp. 50¾, Southern Railway 38⅝, Union Pacific 162¾, Du Pont 184, Union Carbide 99, Amerada Petroleum 95¾ and Owens-Illinois 70.

Kaiser-Frazer Files Offering

Philadelphia, Jan. 6 (AP).—Kaiser Corp., registered today with the Securties and Exchange Commission 1,500,000 shares of its $1 par common stock for a public offering.

The price will be announced later. The shares will be marketed by an underwriting syndicate headed by Otis & Co., Cleveland; First California Co., San Francisco, and Allen & Co., New York.

The company said it will add proceeds to its general funds to be used principally to acquire equipment and inventories necessary to enable it to increase production of automobiles to 1500 a day.

Sale of the 1,500,000 shares registered today will bring Kaiser-Frazer's outstanding common shares to 6,250,000.

Chase National Loans Increase 200 Million

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Chase National Bank reported today an increase of nearly $200,000,000 in outstanding loans during 1947 to a total of $1,324,000,000 on December 31.

The bank, second largest in New York, reported deposits at year-end of $4,477,562,000, down slightly from the total of $4,495,304,000 on December 31, 1946. Including net profits on securities, the total net earnings for 1947 were $19,826,000, or $2.68 a share, compared with $22,141,000, or $2.99 a share, in 1946.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP).—Grain futures except soybeans ran into heavy selling at the close today and prices dipped to below yesterday's closing figures in active trading. Soybeans were strong, with the March delivery reaching a new all-time high at 4:18 a bushel.

The day's trading was mixed. At the start all grains were nervous and declined under light pressure, only to recover when buying, attributed to mill interests, entered the wheat pit. Traders had a report that demand for flour had increased and prices for all grains advanced.

Later selling, believed to be against purchases of stored grain, touched off profit-taking and liquidation and wheat closed 1 to 2 cents lower than the previous finish, May, 2.92@2.91¾; corn was 1 to 2 cents lower, May, 2.54¾@2.55; oats were 1⅜ higher to ⅝ lower, May, 1.20½@1.20¾, and soybeans, in constant demand, were 5 to 7 cents higher, March, 4.18.

One report that had an adverse effect on wheat prices was that three million bushels of Canadian wheat had been sold to Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg. In addition, traders heard that European crop prospects had improved with general moisture over the entire territory, and that South American harvest prospects were improved.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Cotton futures today registered losses of $2 to $3.50 a bale as a heavy liquidating pressure developed late in the session. The decline was accentuated by stop loss selling. Good mill buying developed on the decline but not sufficient to stem the break. There was also some hedging of cotton which had been carried on an open unprotected price basis.

Growing fears that cotton exports under the Marshall Plan were to be scaled down substantially under congressional pressure to reduce foreign aid below the Administration's ideas, appeared to shake the confidence of traders in the tight statistical position which has been predicted for cotton this season.

Beltsville Trolley Hearing Is Jammed

Proposal to Abolish Streetcar Service Packs Md. PSC Chamber in Baltimore

By Rene J. Cappon
Associated Press Staff Writer

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Prince Georges County citizens jammed a Public Service Commission hearing room today to plead with the agency to refuse a Capital Transit Co. request to abolish its Beltsville-Branchville streetcar line.

The utility said the 3.2-mile line accounted for nearly half of its perennial deficit in Maryland streetcar operations and its abandonment would result in improved service elsewhere in the State.

Dean J. Locke, Capital Transit engineer, admitted patronage on the shuttle line had "increased substantially" in seven years but contended there still weren't enough riders to justify its operation.

Louis B. Arnold of College Park, attorney for the citizens, called a dozen witnesses to show maintenance of the line was essential for public convenience and future development of the area. Testimony continues tomorrow.

Some Would Pay More

Daryl Myse, utility attorney, asked each opposing witness if he were willing to pay 15 to 25 cents more for the same service to help the company absorb its loss. Some said no. Others replied they would if no other transportation was available—and it was Arnold's contention there wasn't.

The company asserted bus lines on Washington blvd., which connects the same communities served by the streetcar line, now share its patronage and suggested they could absorb the present trolley customers if the line were abandoned.

David K. Hart, chairman of the Berwyn-Vansville district transportation committee, submitted a petition of protest signed by 399 residents.

Virtually all of Arnold's witnesses were cross-examined not only by company attorneys but also by Roscoe Walters, Rockville lawyer, who told the commission he "represents myself," and who said he would show the whole affair was outside the PSC's jurisdiction.

He contended most users of the line were working in the District of Columbia or Virginia, which made the case an interstate problem. His participation in the proceeding brought one protest from Arnold and one exchange with Commission Chairman Charles Boswell. Boswell told Walters that "you apparently have nothing to do but come here and try cases for yourself."

Mayor Duvall Protests

Mayor William A. Duvall of College Park described the line as a "necessary and important factor in the development of the area" and said abandonment would be a "serious detriment." A resolution from the mayor and council of Hyattsville objecting to the transit plan was read.

Edward H. Killen, of the Department of Agriculture horticultural station, said abandonment would "definitely prove detrimental" to the unit's personnel system. A number of employes depend on the trolleys for transportation, he said, and would quit if they were eliminated.

In the year ended September 30, 1947, the company's deficit from its Maryland bus and streetcar operations was $472,868, J. E. Heberle, vice president and controller testified. He said operation of that line cost the company $49,688 during the year ended last September 30. This represents nearly half of the total $108,859 the company said was the deficit from all Maryland rail operations in the 12 months.

L. L. Bean Quits Congress Race

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—L. L. Bean of South Hill considered a prospective candidate for Congress from the Fourth District, today removed himself from further consideration and announced his support of Watkins M. Abbitt, Commonwealth's attorney of Appomattox County.

Bean, who made the race in 1944 and received about one-third of the District's vote, announced his decision within 24 hours of the withdraway of Charles H. Wilson of Crewe, an announced candidate. Wilson said he withdrew when he found many of his friends already otherwise committed and to stay in the race might cause embarrassment to some of these friends.

Transit Service Study By PSC to Be Asked

The Maryland Public Service Commission will be asked by the Prince Georges County commissioners to make a complete study of Capital Transit Co. services before approving any rate boost in nearby Maryland.

A request for the study was authorized by the county commissioners yesterday in Upper Marlboro, after "protective action" was asked in a letter from the Prince Georges County League of Women Voters.

The commissioners agreed not only to ask for a full analysis to determine whether proposed Capital Transit fare increases are justified, but to oppose any fare boost that would adversely affect school children. The league contends proposed changes in rates and schedules would subject school children to an "intolerably heavy cost."

At the Anchor Room

Louise and Al, new team of diversion aces, open at the Anchor Room tomorrow. Louise is one of the noted Carroll Sisters who toured the country with Ted Lewis' phenomenal revue.

MILDRED KIRKE, attractive former USO singer featured last summer at Glen Echo with Jack Corry's Band, is getting a sweet break at the King Cole Room, which has incubated such wonders as Evelyn Knight and Dona Mason. Mildred opens at K.C.R. tomorrow for a three-week engagement. Boss Man Vin Gallagher is delighted with her rehearsals.

ALMOST A HOMECOMING was Margaret Phelan's bow a the Statler. Margaret sang at Trade Winds for months on end during the war and to coin a cliche was the toast of the town. Her beauty and exquisite singing voice are a rare combo. She's under contract to Universal-International Pix. She's sung at the Astor, Havana-Madrid and with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in the Hollywood Bowl.

Ralph Hawkins is in again. With a crack new band he'll open tonight at his old stamping ground, the Cross Roads. Blonde Sherry Sherwood is the band's singer.

WHAT A PAIR!—this Patti Moore and Ben Lessy at the Cairo. They're a whole musical comedy in themselves, do a dozen steamy numbers including a streamlined version of "Gallagher and Shean." They work themselves into a lather to the great satisfaction of beholders, leave with the blessings of all who enjoy good trouping . . . The Cairo is also happy in presenting Bud Sweeney, a droll Broadwayite with a fresh line of wise cracks, and Roberto and Alicia, fiamenca dancers who burn up the floor . . . There'll be a new band, not yet selected, at the Cairo next week.

NO STRANGER to Washington is magnetic Patricia Lane, the new attraction at the Rainbow Room. Patricia was a headlined band singer at several spots a few seasons ago—but under a different name. She left town for vocal study in New York under Murray Miller. Since then she's appeared at Leon and Eddie's, at the Charles in Baltimore, at the Hialeah in Atlantic City, with Arthur Godfrey and on her own radio program. When you drop into the Rainbow Room see if you can remember when she was billed as ???

With good reason the Casino Royal is holding over its entire Helene and Rico revue—with the exception of Emcee Danny Sullivan, who's off to Leon & Eddie's.

RECOMMENDED LISTENING. "Because" almost becomes an aria as sung by Tommy Dix in the Mayflower Lounge. It's also Tommy's favorite song—for some reason connected with his first meeting the girl who became his wife . . . Another one for the romanticists is "When or Where," when sung by Walter Donak in the Lounge Riviera . . . There's a fresh shine to the guitar-piano duets being done by Bobby Dominick and Kenny Foy in the Hi Hat . . . Some of the nicest dance music around is being turned out by the Julian Altman Band down in the Pall Mall Room. Julian's also on the thrilly side as a solo violinist . . . You'll think you're on the old hacienda if you drop into Merry-Land when the Ko-Ko-Nuts are bearing down on "Rancho Grande" with cowboy yells . . . And if you're a longhair, simply walk around the corner to Michel's where they'll cheerfully play Mozart and Brahms for you.

Sidney Seidenman, noted impresario, is building something special in the way of a continental group around that fine violinist, Sacha Lucas. You'll be hearing more of it.

MANHATTAN BOOST. A medal was recently pinned on the Madrillon by Nick Kenny of the New York Mirror. He wrote "New York could use the genius of Peter Robb has been leading the band there for 12 years." This is very nice and very accurate, except that gifted Johnny Robb hasn't been fronting the band for any such period.

NEW NITERY USE. The Quonset Inn has decided to rent its downstairs dancing room to private parties. This means that folks who want to toss their own party in a night club atmosphere complete with dance floor and bandstand, now have two choices. The other is Ruby Foo's beautiful Trade Winds Room, a smack-up nitery in the war days.

Muse Wins Press Award

Manassas, Va., Jan. 6.—Paul A. Muse, 17-year-old sports editor of the Manassas Messenger, has been awarded third place among Virginia weekly newspaper sports writers. Muse, a senior at Manassas High School, will go to Lynchburg Saturday for the annual awards banquet of the Virginia Press Association.

Man Accused Of Drunk Driving Ends Own Life

Middletown, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—Louis R. Taylor, 28-year-old farm laborer whose brothers quoted him as saying "I will never serve time," was found shot to death today, one day before he was scheduled for a hearing on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Dr. R. W. Baer, county medical examiner, recorded the death as suicide.

Taylor was found in a barn on the farm or R. W. Wilds, where he and his brothers, Vernard and Howard, worked and lived. Taylor's hearing on the drunken driving charge was set for Wednesday night in Frederick, where he was arrested last week after a car allegedly driven by him knocked down a light pole. He was free on $1000 bond.

Heaps Heads Horticultural Association

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—Marshall T. Heaps of Cardiff was elected president of the Maryland Horticultural Association as more than 200 growers and orchard industry representatives participated in final sessions of the organization's fifty-ninth annual meeting today.

John P. Caspar of Hancock, Md., was named first vice president; R. Samuel Dillon of Hancock, second vice president, and A. F. Vierheller of the University of Maryland horticulture department, secretary-treasurer.

Truman H. Nold, executive secretary of the National Apple Institute in Washington, told one of today's sessions that the industry now faces its most critical time.

"Promotion, advertising and education can do a lot to condition people to a more extensive use of fruit in innumerable dishes during this period of high prices for other foods," he said. "Harvesting apples at the proper time and the correct use of spraying materials are important factors in making a profit.

Heaps succeeds Lloyd Balderston 3d of Colora, Md., as president. Caspar also is head of the Maryland State Apple Commission.

Mental Hospital Workers Resent Long Work-Week

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—Dr. George H. Preston, commissioner of mental hygiene, told the Board of Public Works today the morale of mental hospital workers is suffering because of differences in working conditions on various State jobs.

Dr. Preston pointed out that the granting of extra holidays at Christmas and the New Year had complicated a condition that is causing unrest.

He noted these workers are on the job six days a week, compared with five days for office workers. The institution employes do not receive overtime pay until they have put in 48 hours, while the others are entitled to it after 35½ hours, Preston said.

Governor Lane said that a year ago Dr. Preston had asked for sufficient funds to hire more workers. Of the 1800 proposed for the institutions, only 1200 now are on the job.

Md. Blue Cross Asks Boost in Premium Rates

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Maryland Hospital Service, Inc. (Blue Cross), has requested a one-third boost in premium rates of its subscribers, records of the State Insurance Department showed today.

Man and wife—From $1.50 to $2.

Family—From $2 to $2.60.

Subscribers making direct payments rather than as members of groups would pay an additional 10 cents monthly.

J. D. Coleman, executive director of the association, said higher hospital costs made the increases necessary.

Morgan College Budget Gains Cited

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6 (AP). Backed by the largest budget in its history, Morgan State College has "moved into an entirely new fiscal atmosphere," President D. O. W. Holmes declared today in his annual report to the board of trustees.

Dr. Holmes contrasted the 1947-48 operating budget total of $801,887 with the $158,617 appropriated for the institution 10 years ago.

The school benefited from the "sympathetic attitude and good will" shown by State officials and members of the general assembly, he said.

State School Loan Urged for Fairfax

Fairfax County School Board yesterday sought a State literary loan of $131,000 to enlarge Groveton Elementary School.

If approved by the county supervisors, the request will go on to the State Board of Education for final action. The addition would include five classrooms, a library and cafeteria.

The board also contracted with J. & S., Inc., of Alexandria, and Watson Automotive Equipment Co. of Washington for six new school buses.

Stock Sale Approved For Power Company

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 6 (AP). The Northern Virginia Power Co. received Public Service Commission authority today to sell $2,700,000 worth of its common stock to its parent firm, the Potomac Edison Co. of Frederick, Md.

Northern Virginia, which has offices in Winchester, Va., has holdings and customers in Berkeley and Morgan counties, W. Va.

Garrott Heads Court

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 6.—J. Matt Garrott of Zoar, was reelected president of the Jefferson County Court for the ninth successive year. Other members are George T. Shirley, James E. Tabb, Henry M. Snyder and J. Gregg Gibson.

Feminine Touch To Arm of Law

MISS CARRIE LEE GARDNER STRIDER, 37-year-old brunette of Charles Town, W. Va., has been named sheriff of Jefferson County to succeed Sheriff Garland H. Moore, who died last week. She had served as Moore's chief deputy

Md. U. 'Dorm' Contract Gets Board's Okay

By The Associated Press

The Maryland Board of Public Works yesterday approved tentatively a contract for erection of two girls' dormitories at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, informed the board in Annapolis that $600,000 was allowed in the 1947 bond issue, but the lowest base bid was $684,256.

In view of this, he suggested approval be given a contractor's management plan, which would grant a $35,000 flat fee to Burnap Owens of Silver Spring, the contractor, for supervising the work provided the cost is not more than $563,156.

State Engineer John B. Funk said the management form of contract had been used at College Park with "substantial savings."

The board approved the contract provided it satisfies Attorney General Hall Hammond "as a matter of State policy."

The contract also will have to meet full approval of Funk after he studies complete plans.

Maryland Man Critically Burned

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—Maurice Murray, 30, received critical burns when an oil can exploded as he was kindling the kitchen fire at his home near Big Spring, 15 miles west of here, early today.

He was brought to the Washington County hospital here with severe burns over his entire body. The shoes had been burned from his feet.

Murray said he was unable to extinguish the flames by rolling on a carpet. He dashed 50 yards to a spring and jumped in.

5-Year-Old Boy Perishes In Baltimore Blaze

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Five-year-old Billie Gene Hemberee burned to death today as rescuers sought vainly to save him from flames which destroyed his east Baltimore home.

The child was trapped on the second floor of a frame house by fire which police and firemen said started from an oil stove explosion.

3400 in 29th Guard

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Strength of the Twenty-Ninth Infantry Division, Virginia-Maryland National Guard has passed the 3400 mark as a result of a recent recruiting campaign, Maj. Gen. William H. Sands, commanding general, announced today.

Guilty Plea Entered in Va. Bank Case

Richmond ,Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—William Reeves Gardner, Virginia's former chief State bank examiner, was brought into Federal District Court from the State penitentiary today and pleaded guilty to a 20-count indictment naming him the principal in misapplication of funds from a Fredericksburg bank.

The hefty vice president of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank, now serving a seven-year sentence for embezzlement imposed in a State court, was granted a severance in the original Federal trial last year because of his health—a trial that resulted in the conviction of nine defendants accused to aiding and abetting him in the misapplication.

But in the retrial which opened yesterday, ordered after evidence of attempted tampering was presented, Judge Johnson J. Hayes ordered Gardner's trial to proceed.

Makes Plea in Person

He made his lea in erson after his attorney, W. W. Butzner, assured the court that Gardner was fully aware of the implications of his actions and had not been given opiates during the night to ease the discomfort he suffers from high blood pressure and a heart ailment.

Gardner made his decision, the attorney said, in order to be of aid to the court and to speed retrial of the proceedings which dragged out for 53 days last spring.

There were other developments today as the court continued with the selection of a jury. Delegate Joseph E. Proffitt and Bank President Clarence L. Robey, two of the defendants, waived trial by jury and consented to findings of fact and law by the court in their cases.

Separate Trials Granted

Judge Hayes granted motions for separate trials for Proffit and Robey and said he would set a date for hearing their cases at a later time.

Most of today was spent in assembling a 12-man jury and 2 alternates to sit in the case which now involves only Hugh R. Baker, wealthy Leesburg dairyman; his wife, Mrs. Lillian Conner Baker; Kyle M. Weeks, a former member of the General Assembly and law partner of Priffit, and Joseph A. Sowers, cashier of the Floyd State Bank, of which Proffit is president.

Immediately after the jury was selected and before it was sworn in—at 5:45 p. m.—Attorney R. H. McNeill, counsel for Baker and his wife, told the judge he would make a motion relating to a "question of venue." The judge directed him to wait until morning.

Virginia Tremors Explained as Due To Microeisms

Farmville, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—The three-county section of southside Virginia that had the shakes this week may have ben suffering from a rather commonplace terrestrial malady—microeisms.

These microseisms, explained Father Joseph Lynch of New York, Fordham University's earthquake expert, have been jiggling the earth a bit for the past two weeks at about the worst rate in history.

This, then, may explain the tremors that beset Dillwyn, Buckingham, Prospect, Farmville and a stretch of 50 miles or so in Fluvanna, Prince Edward and Buckingham Sunday night and early Monday. They were accompanied by rolling sound waves somewhat like explosions or thunder, and the vibration was strong enough to drop the keys on telephone switchboards and flip a bracket lamp off the wall of Ralph Rainey's house at Dillwyn.

Loudoun Board Fails To Act on Teachers

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 6.—The Loudoun County board of supervisors has declined again to act on the county school teacher situation before the meeting of the Virginia General Assembly.

The board heard Superintendent of Schools O. L. Emerick declare that the situation was bad, pointing out that all the teachers at the Lucketts School are without regular cerificates. He said the same problem existed among all the elementary teachers at the Aldie School, and blamed low salaries for the shortage of good teachers.

EXTRA
It will pay anyone who is looking for an office position to investigate the "Extras" our service has to offer.

(1) If you are interested in learning more about yourself (your personality traits, the type work in which you would be more successful) we give a short, interesting "Personality-Aptitude" test. You will enjoy it.

(2) Before sending you out for an interview with a prospective employer you may have a copy of our "Do's and Don't's"—suggestions that help to make your interview successful.

(3) We have prepared a pamphlet for you describing some of the essentials of "How to Make a Success of Your Job."

(4) There is no charge for any of the above and there is no registraton fee.

(5) Only after you are actually "on the job" is there an amazingly low placement fee.

You will say, "It's all too good to be true."

Until you come in and see for yourself that we really are.

GARRET PARK
This beautifully situated bungalow has an "Old English" charm easily augmented by well-placed ivy and additional shrubs. The front lawn is terraced below street level in front and supported by a charming red brick retaining wall that incloses a sunken garden along the side of the basement wall. Remaining land slopes away from the house at basement level towards the rear. The house itself has 2 bedrooms, and an inclosed sleeping porch on the 1st floor, in addition to the usual living room, kitchen, etc. A full basement contains a recreation room with adjoining shower and toilet. The laundry and automatic hot-water heating plant occupy the remainder. This unusual property is in sound condition and is well adapted to the minor alterations an imaginative purchaser would desire. It is an ideal property for an artistically inclined person who enjoys "doing it yourself." The present owners are going to Mexico and offer the place completely furnished with the exception of a few personal belongings. The price is $13,750 for quick disposal. Inspection is by appointment only.

'47 Md. Crops Sold For All-Time High

Total Value of $121,491,000 Up 5% Over 1946, Despite Decline in Truck

The new record was set in the face of a decline in truck crops. Last year they were valued at $19,179,000 against $20,595,000 in 1946.

"The season of 1947 was a difficult season for planting, cultivating and harvesting because of extremely variable weather conditions," the Maryland Crop Reporting Service reported.

"Corn acreage was restricted by wet weather at planting time and was subjected to very dry weather during the growing season.

"While this year's yield of 36 bushels an acre is below last year's record of 38 bushels, it is above the 1936-45 average of 34.5 bushels."

All grain yields were as good as 1946, except soybeans, oats and buckwheat, while winter wheat was better than 1946. Tobacco and truck crop yields, while not as good as 1946, were above average.

Production, compared with last year and the 10-year average was:

Democratic Group Adds 16 in Fairfax

The Fairfax County Democratic Committee last night increased its membership to 64 by electing 16 new members from 12 voting precincts.

Elected to serve two-year terms were: from Swetnam, Miss Eleanor L. Chesley; from Well's, Malcolm C. Wells; Branesville, Charles E. Gardner, sr.; Forestville, William Moreland; Herndon, Robert C. Lowe, F. W. Robinson and Guy McClincy; Pleasant Valley, Miss Edith Rogers; Thompson's, Maurice W. Fox; Thornton's, Mrs. Jean S. White; Burke, Mrs. Edith Boyce and E. C. Sheads; Lorton, W. French Fleming and Mrs. Alvin Davis; Woodyard's, Milton Garner and Accotink, Walter Shepherd.

Committee Chairman W. Franklin Gooding announced appointment, during a meeting in Falls Church, of seven standing committees to serve for the next two years.

Committees and chairmen are: by-laws, W. F. P. Reid; finance, James C. King; membership, Mandley T. Rust; public relations, Keith Price; electoral board, Charles E. Babcock; legislative, Robert J. McCandlish, jr., and conventions, Burns N. Gibson.

Gooding also appointed district chairmen from each of the six magisterial districts in the county. Those named: Centreville, John W. Ferguson; Dranesville, Maurice W. Fox; Falls Church, John W. Koons; Lee, E. C. Sheads; Mount Vernon, Arthur I. Shaffer, and Providence, Franklin S. Gicker, jr.

Two Counties To Allot Md. Racing Funds

Incorporated towns in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will share in more than $174,000 racing receipts allocated to the two counties by the State, it was learned yesterday.

Montgomery County commissioners, who have received a State check for approximately $110,000, will distribute the funds to incorporated towns on the basis of the 1940 State census, they have decided. The same basis will govern distribution of funds in rural areas.

Prince Georges County commissioners have received $64,287, but as yet have not set the basis for allocating the funds to subordinate political units. Under State law, however, they must distribute the funds in ratio to population, although use of the 1940 census is not mandatory.

The Montgomery County board has deferred action on a requested ruling by County Comptroller Alexander K. Hancock as to whether the county's special taxing areas should participate in the distribution. At least two special taxing areas, he said, have stated intentions of claiming some of the money.

Hancock said communities, to receive their shares must match the funds received with local appropriations.

10 Days Delay Seen in Beall Death Verdict

Mystery surrounding the death of Winfield Scott Beall, jr., in his burning car on the Baltimore blvd. early yesterday probably will not be cleared up for about 10 days.

This was learned yesterday as Prince Georges County Medical Examiner Dr. James I. Boyd issued a temporary certificate of accidental death in the case.

Dr. Boyd's certificate is subject to revision after tests on the blood and stomach contents of the dead man are completed by the FBI—a process expected to take 10 days.

The death temporarily has been attributed to second and third degree burns and shock.

Beal, 39, of 809 King st., Silver Spring, an employe of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., was found by two Prince Georges County policemen at about 5 a. m. yesterday when they noticed a coupe parked on the boulevard near Beltsville with the lights on and the motor running.

Windows Steamed on Inside

James H. Burgess of the Hyattsville Police Station said the windows appeared to be steamed over on the inside. When he opened the door of the car, he said flames burst from the interior.

Beall's body was found lying on its right side on the seat. Burgess was not able to pull it out of the car immediately, and extinguished the fire before he extricated it. The right side of the face and body were "badly burned," police said.

According to police, Beall was en route home after having gone to Baltimore to visit his estranged wife, Mrs. Nevada Beall, at the time his death occurred. Police said he had not been able to see his wife, who had been working at the time of his visit.

With completion of the medical examiner's autopsy, police speculation centered around the theory that Beall had been smoking and had fallen ill and "passed out," or been overcome by carbon monoxide fumes.

Dr. Boyd said there was no indication of a heart attack, and that Beall apparently was not dead at the time he was burned, since the autopsy showed shock.

Beall had been working for the telephone company for the past 20 years, and according to company officials had a "fine" record. His parents, with whom he lived at the Silver Spring address, said he had attended school at Sandy Spring, Md.

In addition to his wife and parents, Beall is survived by a 2-year-old daughter, Caroline, three brothers, Walter, of Rockville, Md., and Stanley and Albert, both of Silver Spring, and a sister, Mrs. Louise Gibson of Washington.

2 Maryland Jailbreakers Held in Utah

Two of four men who slugged a guard and broke out of Upper Marlboro jail last month have been apprehended in Salt Lake City, Utah.

County officials were informed by the FBI yesterday that William G. Midgett, 25, formerly of 1529 S st., se., asd Robert Morris, 23, of Laurel, Md., both of whom escaped from the jaid December 10, had been arrested along with a third man, identified only as James E. Dove.

Upper Marlboro police said they thought the man who gave his name as Dove actually is Joseph Boswell, 31, no fixed address, who escaped along with Midgett and Morris.

The FBI said the three men were arrested early Sunday with two women, and all are being held for questioning. They were riding in a car carrying s everal guns and about $20,000 worth of narcotics.

Midgett, Morris and Boswell, along with James Francis Hampson, 21, of East Riverdale, Md., escaped from the jail after severely beating Vincent Wells, 67-year-old jailer.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

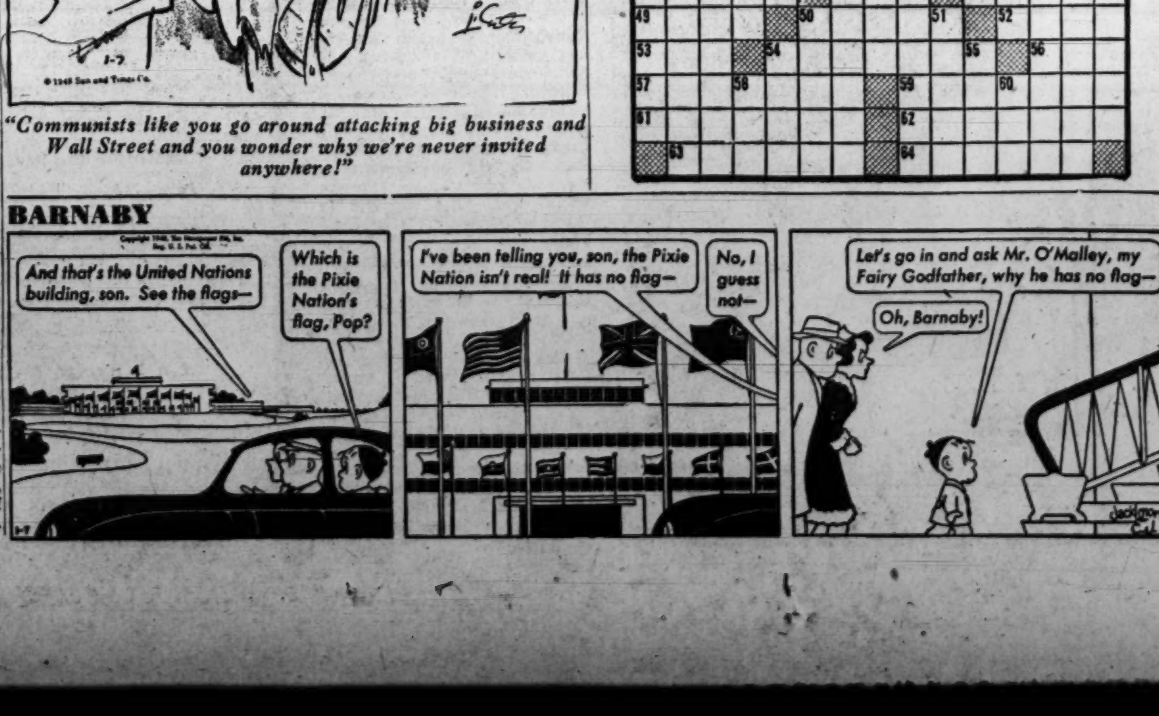
BARNABY



And that's the United Nations building, son. See the flags—
Which is the Pixie Nation's flag, Pop?
I've been telling you, son, the Pixie Nation isn't real! It has no flag—
No, I guess not—
Let's go in and ask Mr. O'Malley, my Fairy Godfather, why he has no flag—
Oh, Barnaby!

Why Do Neighborhood Theaters Book Same Shows?

It seems to me that they'd all do more business if they'd rotate their bookings to give patrons a wider selection.

In our part of town, for example, there are five theaters within convenient distance—yet we seldom have a choice of more than two films.

If neither of the two interests us, we stay home. And that's a buck which just never gets to anybody's box-office.

In checking the newspaper ads of Washington's 70 neighborhood theaters, I find that five pictures usually account for around 35 of the bookings. In other words, these five titles are being offered in about half of the city's neighborhood houses.

And the situation is even worse than these statistics would indicate, because the remaining features are (for the most part) B-minus quickies with little appeal for the average adult patron.

PERSONAL NOTES

Dr. Robert U. Cooper, 3150 Pennsylvania ave. se.; Samuel J. Rosenberg, 516 Decatur st. nw.; A. Roche, 2123 California st. nw., and Ewart Hobbs, Seat Pleasant, Md.: You're right—I should have known that 1948 will have 366 days.

But Leap Year doesn't mean much to me, because the only question that will be proposed to me by a female will be: "Well, how many more years do I have to wait for that fur coat?"

MAIL BAG

The following communication has been received from Elisabeth Griffith of 4356 Lee hwy., Arlington, Va.:

"I read your stories every day and like them all. Especially when you talk about my principal, Miss Mary Barbour, at the John Marshall School. We kids just love her.

"I am in the fifth grade and am 10 years old. Here are some tokens for Children's Hospital. But boy, did you ever slip up this morning!

"You should have said 366 days from now because 1948 is Leap Year.

"Your friend,

"Elisabeth Griffith.

"P. S. We are still laughing about the little boy and girl who went calling on Hallowe'en. My sister has a friend at U. of Va. and he was almost put out of class for laughing out loud at that story."

Dear Friend Liz:

Do you suppose you kids could lend me a dunce cap to wear until I learn that there are 366 days in Leap Years?

You tell your sister's friend to go right ahead and laugh if he feels like it. That's the trouble with the world today —too few people laugh at my jokes.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Mrs. C. E. Bennett of 2007 Klingle rd. nw. forwards a baffling excerpt from our morning contemporary:

"Six years ago, Mrs. Rocco suffered a 31-day attack, and a year ago she hiccoughed for 18 years."

TEMPUS FUGIT—BUT NOT FOR EVERYBODY

Mrs. J. W. Jackson of 2817 N. 23d st., Arlington, Va., hates to throw away all the pretty Christmas cards which arrived during the holidays—yet one can't continue to save such things indefinitely or the walls will soon begin to bulge.

So Mrs. Jackson wonders whether any local institution would be interested in getting such greeting cards. And Harvey E. Pyles of 5750 Branch ave. se. asks whether anybody wants some used comic books.

The answer to both questions is "yes." Children's Hospital will be glad to have anything that will help the time pass more quickly for its patients.

BROADWAY GAZETTE: SPORTS DEPARTMENT: Joe DiMaggio was discussing the $80,000 a year salaries being demanded by a few of the baseball stars. He explained that a ballplayer's span of activity is limited to a few years, that he is conscious of this fight against time and therefore must make the most of his best playing years . . . "Well," said Mrs. Pauline Gallico, "now Joe has some idea of how it must feel to be a woman."

GIFT DEPARTMENT: Fiona Field, the youngest daughter of Marshall Field 3d, is six years old. On the day before Christmas she found the solution to her Christmas-gift shopping problem: In a stationery store near her home the child found a stack of fifty 1947 calendars and bought the complete lot for 5 cents . . . When Fiona was reminded that a 1947 calendar might not be considered a suitable gift for the year 1948, she replied: "Why not? All you have to do is add another day."

BOOK DEPARTMENT: Ludwig Bemelmans received a letter from Joe Marr complaining about the surprise ending of Bemelmans' book, "Dirty Eddie" . . . "My dear Joe," the author wrote in reply, "If that were the only fault the book has, then I would be very happy" . . . He then added the Bemelmans touch. At the bottom of his reply, in large letters impressed by a rubber stamp, were the words, "GO SEE A DOCTOR."

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT: The Duke and Duchess of Windsor attended a New Year's Eve party at the Plaza. Because of Mayor O'Dwyer's ban against the use of private cars during the emergency caused by the snowstorm, the Windsors dismissed their car and chauffeur . . . When the party ended the Windsors stood beneath the hotel's marquee, waiting for an empty taxicab. A rented limousine drove by. The occupant recognized the Windsors. He told the chauffeur to stop the car, stepped out and volunteered: "Use my car to take you home. I'll wait here." That's how the Windsors got home on New Year's morning.

MOVIES: Jean Cocteau's movie, "The Eternal Return," now being shown in New York, is his modern version of the Tristan and Isolde legend. The London critics voted it among the ten best films of the year. Some of them, however, lamented the fact that the hero and heroine were Germanic and that both were blonde . . . "One no more represents the lovers as being dark," replied Cocteau, "than one represents Carmen as being blonde."

Friendship Food Well Handled

By Drew Pearson

Bologna, Italy (By Wireless).—When I left the United States I promised various editors in cities which had contributed to the Friendship Train that I would give them a careful report on the distribution of the food and whether the people of France and Italy fully realized that it came from the American people. So far, I can conscientiously say that the over-all reaction has been excellent and the food is being distributed efficiently.

Dunn

It was agreed by American church and relief groups in France that after the first Friendship Train ran to Marseille, at least one American would ride on each of the nine subsequent Friendship Trains to other French cities, in order to stage appropriate ceremonies with the local mayors and the French press explaining how the food had been collected and how it truly came from the American people.

Geoffrey Parsons, editor of the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, did a fine job of this on the first train and Henry Cassidy of the National Broadcasting Company together with Harry Hill, president of the American Club in Paris, agreed to get either an American newsman or an American businessman to accompany each train. The American relief agencies also agreed to send a man on ahead to each town, in order to organize appropriate receptions and to give the story of the Friendship Train to local newspapers. In addition, relief agencies agreed to print a booklet with pictures of the food being distributed in order further to impress the French people with the way the food was being used and where it had come from.

Inept Public Relations

The New York Herald Tribune's William Attwood has just published an interesting report from Arsoli, Italy, entitled "No One Knows Who Sent the Foods." In it he tells how, thanks to American aid, 2000 people in one Italian village are eating better and are warmer than at any time since the war but the local mayor is a Communist and he tells the people that the American food which he distributes is from Stalin, while the people think the food distributed by the church groups is from the Vatican. Nobody gives any credit to the United States.

Since last July, Italy has received 200 shiploads of gift food from the United States and Ambassador James C. Dunn has religiously met many of these ships in order to impress upon the people the fact that the food comes from the United States. However, it is Attwood's conclusion that they still realize this only vaguely and that, in the smaller towns at least, the Vatican and Stalin are still getting the major credit.

Part of this misunderstanding is due to the fact that the United States wheat is turned over to the Italian government for distribution, which is probably the only machinery possible for bulk handling, but part is due also to the nickel-nursing of Congressman John Taber and his GOP colleagues who cut the heart out of the State Department's propaganda program. And finally it's due to some of the most inept public relations imaginable.

For instance, when the United States recently turned over to Italy 22 Italian warships given the United States by terms of the peace treaty, it was big news back in the United States, but got scant notice in the Italian press because no one took the trouble to dig up the names of the vessels or the fascinating background relating to them. Later, John Secondari, then editor of the Rome American, managed to unearth the fact that the Conte Grande, one of Italy's prize passenger vessels, actually had been allocated to Brazil and that the United States Government paid 60 million dollars to Brazil to get the ship back and give it to Italy. The Italian people, however, knew nothing about this. No one in the American Government took the trouble to inform them.

Italians Print Posters

One hundred and fifty big trucks, draped with Italian and American flags, left the Rome railroad station during my last day in Rome to drive slowly up to the historic Campidoglio. In the trucks were bags of flour, some marked with greetings from Fort Worth, Tex.; some with greetings from Buffalo, N. Y., Richmond, Va., and from Jackson County, Mo.—President Truman's home—and other cities.

On the sides of the trucks were big posters, showing a picture of the Friendship Train in the United States with a message in the Italian language. We had these posters especially printed in the United States and even brought along brushes, varnish, paste and adhesive tape to guarantee their use. However, the Italians went our brushes, varnish, paste and adhesive tape one better and printed some excellent posters of their own.
